FRENCH FALLING BACK FAR BELOW PARIS IN ALLIES' 'BLACKEST WEEK IN HISTORY'

'Won't Forget Help Given to Enemies,' German Envoy Says

Baron Von Spiegel Foresees United States Begging for Trade, Commerce With New German Empire.

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—Baron Edgar von Spiegel, German consul general for the southern states, today said in an interview that "Germany will not forget that when she was fighting bitterly for her very life, the United States gave every material aid to her enemies."

(The German consulate in New Orleans was placed under 24-hour police protection tonight at the request of the consul general, Baron von Spiegel, the United Press reported.)

The German official, a widely known U-boat commander in the first World War, said that Spain shortly would join the war against France, predicted an early German victory, said Germany still has 28,000 warplanes, and predicted that with that victory the United States may beg for trade and commerce "with the new empire and get none."

The statement was made in an interview with a New Orleans States' reporter. Von Spiegel later said he had not meant to talk for publication.

Von Spiegel said that German territorial ambitions outside Europe were limited to "regaining her possessions in Africa, and possibly a little more.

Denies American Aims.

"Germany does not want Florida, Georgia or Louisiana, nor does it want the western hemisphere," he said. "Nevertheless my country will not forget that when she was waging a struggle for her very life that the United States did everything in its power to aid her enemies."

The consul general, whose territory includes all southern states from North Carolina to Texas also includes Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, said it was a "matter of days" before France falls and said Hitler would then turn on "England and all its far flung empire."

"When General Weygand and Monsieur Reynaud get together and realize that the United States isn't going to send any men, they will capitulate, as did Leopold of Belgium, who foresaw the might and power of the German army," he said.

"He said the new Germany when victorious would not need to establish trade relations with the United States. "The new Germany will be self sufficient, what with the oil in Holland and Rumania, and wheat and wool from her friend Russia, and the countless other supplies from other European countries," he added.

F. D. R. Scoffs At Nazi Pledge About America

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—President Roosevelt today openly scoffed at any Hitler pledge to refrain from invading the western hemisphere.

At a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt was informed of a news dispatch (by Karl Von Wiegand, chief foreign correspondent of the Hearst newspapers) stating that Hitler had called any idea of a western hemisphere invasion "grotesque."

Going to the unusual length of authorizing direct quotation, Mr. Roosevelt said in a tone of pointed sarcasm that Hitler's remarks "bring up recollections." Those few words he thought sufficient to the subject, saying they could be enlarged with dates and the names of countries going back over a period of years.

Obvious Meaning.

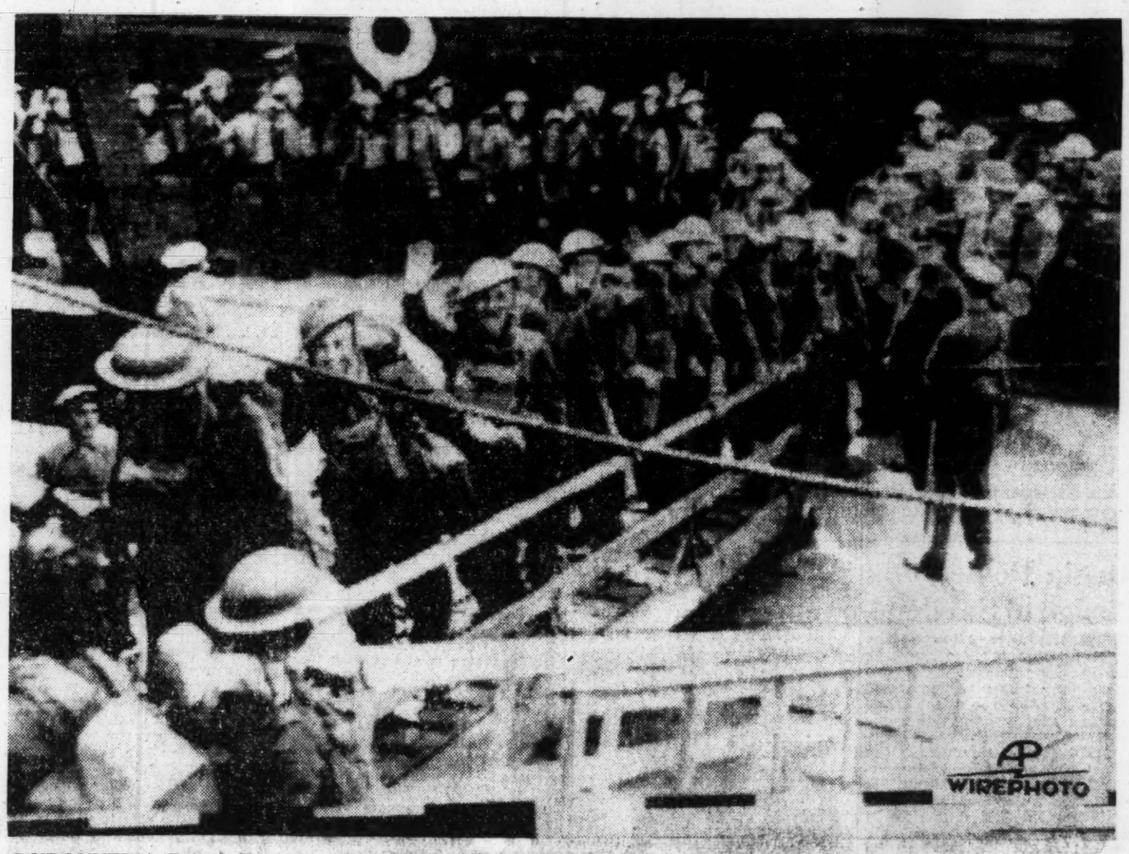

He did not elaborate on this, but his obvious meaning was that on specific dates, Hitler had assured particular countries that they were safe from German attack and later had sent his Nazi legions crashing into these same nations.

Informed of Berlin reports that Ambassador William C. Bullitt was in "protective custody" in Paris, where earlier he had sent the word that German troops were "inside the gates," President Roosevelt posed this question:

Could the ambassador be protected against what and whom?

Representative Fish, Republican, New York, announced he would try to repeal legal provisions which prohibit United States citizens from fighting in foreign UNDAUNTED—British Tommies, defeated in their first attempt to drive the Nazis out of France, try again. British soldiers are shown embarking at an English port for France in an effort to help their sorely pressed ally. The first British expeditionary force was defeated in Flanders, but thousands escaped.

British War Chest Opened for Huge Purchases in U. S.

London Press Calls Upon America To Join War on Nazis.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, June 15.—(Saturday)—This "blackest week in history" for Britain and France drew from official circles today the dogged assertion that "whatever happens Britain will fight on" against Nazi Germany, while press and radio turned eager, speculative eyes on "the prospects of American intervention."

Confronted with the fall of Paris hard in the wake of Italy's entry into the war as a foe of the Allies, the British flung open their war chest to make immediate purchases in the United States of everything needed to prosecute the conflict.

The "intervention" and blackest week" quotations both came from an official British radio commentator, who said the prospect of the former more than counterbalanced the latter.

Newspaper Plea.

The London News Chronicle asserted:

"A declaration of war by America now would inject an impulse of bounding hope into every Frenchman's heart.

"Now, in this momentous crisis, America may have it in her power to tide civilization over its darkets hour by a strong dramatic act."

The newspaper's commentator, Vernon Bartlett, said he believed 150 divisions (about 2,250,000 men) had been identified in the present battle of Rrance and that "many more" remained in reserve:

"Faced with such odds," he declared, "it is doubtful whether anything short of a declaration of war by the United States could effectively alter the situation."

'Complacency' Assailed.

The daily mail and the Laborite Herald railed at Britain's previous "complacency' and "fantastic unpreparedness," but both

By The Associated Press.

TOURS, France, June 14.—The main armies of France fell back tonight far below abandoned, German-invaded Paris in a fighting retreat that may be their last movement of the war.

Other forces far to the ea: were declared to have throw back with "tremendou losses," a German head-on atta against the Maginot line.

All but broken under the mightiest assault ever thrown against men, the Poilus who fought the main battle of France counterattacked with a desperate fury as they retired under the Nazi pressure.

They did not even know whether their command could continue the struggle.

Paris, from which the government long since had fled, was gone—occupied by the Germans and ringed by their armored units and infantrymen.

In Paris, United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt was reported to be in the protective custody of the invaders.

Tours, the new emergency seat of the ministers from which Premier Reynaud sent a "last appeal" to President Roosevelt last night for American aid, was being abandoned for yet another refuge—presumably the far southern seaport of Bordeaux.

Italian Coast Shelled.

Tonight's communique said the withdrawal below Paris had been "carried out conforming to plans," but was barren of details beyond disclosing the first French naval action against Italy in this war.

This was the bombardment last night by French warships of industrial establishments and the railway line along the Italian coast—an operation accompanied by an air raid in the region of Venice and the dropping of pamphlets on Rome.

But word from the fronts was little and bare of comfort for the French, aside from the French

You're Reading Paper Made of Southern Pulp

Constitution First in State To Use Newsprint Made in South.

The dream of a great chemist comes true as the presses of The Constitution roll off today's editions, which are being printed on newsprint paper manufactured from southern pine pulp in a southern paper mills plants. The paper you are reading was made by the new Southland Paper Mills at Herty (Lufkin), Texas.

The process by which this paper is made was developed by almost a lifetime of work by the late Dr. Charles H. Herty, who had the co-operation and aid of Georgia publishers and the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, as well as the state of Georgia and the University System.

First in Georgia.

Today's editions of The Constitution are the first in Georgia to be printed on southern pine newspaper manufactured in the south. The Constitution in the past has used southern pine pulp newsprint to further the experiments that were being made by Dr. Herty, but while the paper was processed from southern pulp mills in the north rolled the paper.

Those experiments convinced Dr. Herty that his process was practical as well as economically sound and today's editions are proof that he was right. The Constitution is among the first southern papers to make a large run with paper from the new Herty mills.

New Era for South.

The Southland Paper Mills were built through the co-operation of southern newspaper publishers and the plant is the first to use southern pine exclusively for its newsprint production. The success of the venture is expected to result in more large paper mills in the south and the expenditure of many millions for plant construction and equipment as well as an enormous annual financial turnover through newspapers using southern newsprint in place of northern, Canadian and Scandinavian paper, the only newsprint available in the past.

It is estimated 50 large paper mills would be necessary to supply the American newsprint demand. The Texas plant cost $6,000,000 to construct and took a year to build. The first run of paper was made last January 17.

Group of 30 Atlanta Leaders Warns Against Curb on Rights

Fifth Column Precautions in U. S. Must Be Well Conceived and Carefully Co-ordinated, They Declare; Say Hysteria Must Be Averted.

A statement urging preservation of civil rights despite the stress of defense, preparations for the country was issued yesterday by a group of 30 Atlanta ministers, educators, civic workers and businessmen.

The statement resulted from a meeting last Monday of a group of six persons and subsequent consultation with others. Its text follows in full:

Dangers Recognized.

"We, the undersigned citizens of Georgia, recognize the dangers with which democratic institutions are today surrounded. We feel that it is the part of wisdom to urge the appropriate governmental authorities to be completely alert against all such dangers—whether international or internal. We understand and share the fears of Americans who, having seen the fate of innocent countries at the hands of traitors and aggressors, dread a similar fate for our own country.

"We feel, however, that there is grave danger of adopting toward aliens, nonconformists and minority groups, attitudes which are more like those which prevail in the aggressor states than like those upon which America has stood.

"Our 'land of opportunity' through the generations has permitted the unfortunates of the world to come in and has welcomed their loyalty to free institutions. Where aliens have come into this country in conformity with law and where they have sought to meet the obligations upon them to be thrifty and productive, it does not seem wise or humane to make it impossible for them to live orderly, loyal and self-sustaining lives.

Co-ordination Needed.

"We believe that the necessary program of vigilance against internal treason is an integral part of the federal government's program of national defense and cannot be entrusted to irresponsible individuals and vigilante groups. All aspects of national defense must be well conceived and carefully co-ordinated. Sporadic and decentralized methods will not stop a cleverly managed 'fifth column,' but may even lend themselves to its purposes by confusing our thought and our action.

In the trying days which are ahead of us, we must support the processes of the federal government. We must defend the rights to disagree and to criticize, though recognizing that they do not include the right to disobey the law. We must not allow rumor to take the place of fact. We must avoid hysteria. We must protect the innocent. We must not sacrifice the essentials of our American heritage of tolerance and kindness. In attempting to save our heritage we must not adopt a program of action which is itself an abandonment of it."

The statement was signed by Miss Mary Barker, Julian Boehm, Lyle Chubb, Tarleton Collier, R. B. Eleazer, Robert L. Foreman, Mrs. Harry M. Gershon, Mrs. Stephen Ives, Dr. M. Ashby Jones, Dr. Nat Long, Mrs. J. N. McEachern Sr., Dr. D. P. McGeachy, Dr. Edward G. Mackay, Dr. David Marx and Dr. Mildred Mell.

F. D. R. by Acclamation, Governor Rivers Says

"There won't even be a roll call, although it may get started," the Governor said. "I doubt if anyone else's name will be placed in nomination."

U. S. Is Ready To Train 7,000 Pilots a Year

Woodring Announces Plans for Expanding Air Program.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) Plans to produce 10,600 trained men a year, including 7,000 pilots, to staff the nation's expanding army air force were announced today by Secretary of War Woodring.

The plans involve use of three of the air corps' principal operating bases as training centers for pilots and instructors, in addition to the existing "West Foint of the Air" at Randolph Field, Texas.

The period of training has been ordered shortened by a month. It will be 35 weeks long, Woodring disclosed.

In addition to the 7,000 pilots, 5,600 bombardiers and navigators will be trained annually to man the vastly expanded air forces.

The new program calls in general for an extension of the system set up last summer after congress voted a $300,000,000 air corps expansion.

Woodring said primary training would be conducted, as at present, at the nine civilian flying schools already set up. Each of these will open a branch school to accommodate additional students.

Bone, Two Others Offered for Pepper

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 14. (AP)—The Tallahassee Democrat received from Chelan, Wash., today an offer to trade Senator Homer Bone, Democrat, Washington, and two congressmen for Senator Claude Pepper, Democrat, Florida.

The offer came in a telegram signed "Lake Chelan Lions Club, by R. M. Pickett, secretary," reporting the club has adopted unanimously this resolution:

"Resolved, that the Lake Chelan Lions Club would like to trade our Senator Homer T. Bone and two assorted congressmen for your forthright Senator Pepper, who has the candor to speak his mind upon crucial affairs of the day." The "assorted congressmen" were not named.

Fight Averted Between Oden And McCullar

After a fist fight between Dr. John W. Oden, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane, and C. B. McCullar, Milledgeville attorney, was averted yesterday, the State Welfare Board dismissed Mrs. Mary Williamson, a head nurse at the institution, for her alleged negligence in permitting an attendant nurse to whip a patient with a paddle.

The hearing was thrown into confusion near its close when Dr. Oden and McCullar, who represented Mrs. Williamson, engaged in a hot controversy and jumped to their feet and rushed toward each other, both uttering threats.

Several Clashes.

The controversy began when McCullar implied that Dr. Oden had intimidated employes of the hospital in getting them to make certain statements regarding the case.

The two clashed intermittently throughout the hearing, McCullar declaring at one point that he would like to see Dr. Oden removed as superintendent of the hospital.

When McCullar made his implication about intimidation, Dr. Oden advanced toward the attorney, his hand going into his pocket. McCullar retaliated by declaring he would "tolerate no monkey business," and rushed toward the superintendent. George Kennedy, assistant state welfare director, stepped between them and separated them. Finally both took their seats, and the board went into executive session.

Clash With Deen.

McCullar and Braswell Deen, state welfare director, engaged in a brief clash, McCullar charging that Deen did not have certain witnesses at the hearing which had been requested. Chairman Talmage Dobbs ruled it was not Deen's job to get the witnesses.

In upholding Dr. Oden, who had first demoted the head nurse and then suspended her pending the hearing, the board commended him "for his interest and actions for the welfare of the patients at the state hospital."

Mrs. Williamson, who was head nurse of a ward of 81 patients, protested her suspension and contended she was treated unfairly.

Miss Helen Bowen told the board that she paddled the 24-year-old patient "after she sat on the floor in the dining room, kicked and screamed" when trash was taken away from her. Miss Bowen previously had been dismissed.

"Four Blows."

"She was a pretty obstreperous patient and you didn't think a little spanking would hurt her anyway, did you?" she was asked by Attorney McCullar. Miss Bowen said she did not think so, and added she struck the patient with a paddle, which was exhibited at the hearing, "about four times."

Mrs. Williamson testified that a nurse had been fired once before because of the patient involved in the case and declared the patient was hard to control. She also testified that she received $48 per month until her demotion, when she received only $38 per month.

Patient Crying.

Dr. Oden estimated that the patient had been struck 15 or 20 times and that he rushed to the scene of the whipping when he heard the blows.

"When I got there, the patient was sitting on the floor rubbing her thighs and crying," he said. "I examined her and found welts on her thighs and back and her face had been slapped."

Dr. George L. Echols, physician at the hospital, told the board he thought the patient "received a pretty good spanking" and added the head nurse should have intervened to prevent it.

Department Store Sales Show Gain

Atlanta department store sales for the week ending last Saturday gained 6 per cent over the same week last year, but dropped 7 per cent below the preceding week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta reported yesterday.

Sales in the Sixth Federal Reserve district for the same period increased 9 per cent over last year but declined 1 per cent from the previous week.

For the four weeks ending the same date Atlanta sales showed a 4 per cent gain while district sales rose 5 per cent over the corresponding period of 1939.

Rivers Scores Dictatorship in Flag Day Talk

Governor Tells Elks Nation Will Give Blood for Liberty.

"If it takes blood to keep America's freedom of speech, press, assemblage and religious liberty—then we'll keep them," Governor Rivers declared last night as he addressed a large gathering at an Elks' Flag Day observance.

In a speech that bristled with denunciation of totalitarian governments, the Governor warned that America must get ready for any emergency and added: "We have lost sight of the fundamental of our liberty—self-preservation."

He urged particularly a drive against what he termed those insiders "who under the guise of American liberty are seeking to tear down our very fundamental liberties."

"Too long we have neglected to do that job on the inside," he said. "Every one of them should be taken by the seat of the britches and thrown out of this country."

"There are a thousand things worse than the expense of a defense program," he said. "France, Belgium and the Allies are experiencing them now."

The program was presided over by Judge John McClelland. It included the singing of patriotic airs by the audience, a pledge of allegiance to the flag and special music by the American Legion drum corps.

Sea Island Beach Visited By Secretaries of State

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

SEA ISLAND, Ga., June 14.—The National Association of Secretaries of States, in session in Savannah since Wednesday, came to Sea Island today to complete its annual convention.

With the exception of one business session, all business of the association was transacted in Savannah. The outing at Sea Island is one of pleasure and recreation over the weekend. At the one business session at the resort Saturday, officers will be named and the next convention city chosen.

The secretaries came to Sea Island aboard the coast guard cutter Modoc. The visitors will be tendered a shore dinner Saturday at St. Simons Island.

SINGING CONVENTION.

FITZGERALD, Ga., June 14.—The South Georgia Singing Convention will hold its annual sing here Saturday and Sunday.

Russia Denies Pledge to Sweden

MOSCOW, June 14.—(AP)—The Soviet government described as "devoid of any foundation" reports abroad that Russia had promised Sweden assistance in event of attack upon that Scandinavian country by a third power.

A statement issued by Tass, the official news agency, said "Responsible Soviet quarters point out that the Soviet Union generally nonagrees in distributing 'promises' of assistance."

May Weather Is Blamed for Delayed Crops

State Market Service Says Peach Prospect Greatly Improved.

By The Associated Press.

ATHENS, Ga., June 14.—The Georgia Crop Marketing Service said today that cool, dry weather during most of May continued to retard plant growth and cause irregular stands.

A survey of the situation as of June 1 showed "Crops were considerably later than usual in all areas of the state."

Total production of peaches was expected to be much larger than first believed this season. An increase of 484,000 bushels to a total of 3,484,000 bushels was predicted as compared with 1939.

"Prospects improved materially during May in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia peach orchards," the service explained. "Peak movement of Elbertas is not expected until the latter part of July in North Carolina. Production in Arkansas is expected to be smaller than last season in all important producing sections except the Clarksville area. The Tennessee peach crop is reported to be a near failure."

Revised figures on the 1939 cotton crop showed Georgians ginned 919,349 bales, while the total for the nation was put at 11,815,759 bales. This was an average yield of 227 pounds per acre in Georgia, and 237.5 for the nation.

Husband on Death Call; Wife Accidentally Killed

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

Mrs. Cook's body was found by a daughter. Electrocution was attributed to a faulty electric cleaner.

Mrs. Cook, the former Miss Leslie Goins, of Brunswick, is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. Brooks Cheshire, Mrs. Russell Handy and Mrs. Betty Chamberlain, and one son, Charles H. Cook Jr., all of Miami.

HIT, HURT BY AUTO.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., June 14.—Homer Cranford, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cranford, received a broken leg and other injuries yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while riding his bicycle.

State Program Of AAA Costs 14 Million in '39

Agriculture Department Says National Cost Was 520 Million.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) The cost of the 1939 agricultural conservation program was estimated today by the Agriculture Department to be $520,360,802.43, of which Georgia's share was $14,333,713.93.

The total covered $490,014,692.25 already certified for payments to co-operating farmers, county association expenses, and materials furnished to farmers as grants-in-aid. For these purposes, the department said payments remaining to be certified would amount to $16,164,507.18.

It estimated AAA field administrative expenses at $8,608,947, administrative costs in Washington at $3,094,007, administrative costs in other Agriculture Department bureaus at $1,520,269, and transfers to the general accounting agency and other co-operating government offices at $958,380.

The report did not cover expenses of the 1939 sugar program, or of the 1939 price adjustment program, both of which were administered by the AAA.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—There are 29 kinds of synthetic rubber, 13 of them German, records of the United States Bureau of Standards show.

Nearly all of them are better, in one or more respects, than natural rubber. They are also from two to five times more expensive. The biggest single item that enters into rubber synthesis is electricity.

Formulas Similar.

The basic chemical formulas for many of them are quite similar. They are polymerizations of butadiene, a liquid hydrocarbon whose molecule consists of four atoms of carbon and six of hydrogen tied together in a specific arrangement. Butadiene can be extracted from coke or from petroleum.

The problem from the first has been to bring about this polymerization. The pioneers have been the Germans. During the first World War one of the outstanding weaknesses of the reich was rubber shortage. A factory was set up which produced 2,500 tons of butadiene rubber. This, it is generally agreed, was of inferior quality and the whole project was dropped after the armistice.

Patents Filed.

Synthetic rubber experimentation on the butadiene basis was resumed in 1926 by chemists of the great G. I. Farbenindustrie, the German dye monopoly, and considerable progress was made long before the emergence of Hitler. Several score American patents were filed. Government chemists, who have studied them, say that they mean very little unless one has a key to them. Two years ago, however, the "G. I." was allowing foreigners to go through its plants and observe its chemical processes.

Basically the process is to extract the butadiene from coke, a process requiring considerable expenditure of electricity. It would actually be cheaper to extract it from petroleum, but Germany has no petroleum to spare. It is then mixed with lime. This forms a white powder, calcium carbide, which is mixed with water in various proportions. This turns it into a gas which, by means of certain catalysts, is changed back into a liquid again. After several more transformations it polymerizes into an elastic substance very close to rubber.

Quality Poor.

Thus far the process is well known, but the "rubber" is not of very good quality. It is the basic "buna" upon which the German armies are rolling westward. Since the advent of the Nazi regime, however, several refinements have been added to the process, including the addition of a chemical called Styrine, obtained from natural gas, and another known as acrylonitrile. Both enter the process of polymerization.

The styrine rubber, buna S, is the most common. It is used chiefly for tires. There are well-authenticated claims that such tires will stand up from 30 to 50 per cent better on road tests than natural rubber. The acrylonitrile rubber is more expensive. Its great value is that it stands up better in contact with petroleum products.

Plant in Louisiana.

License to manufacture buna, in its various forms described in German patents, has been given to an American corporation. During the past few years a small amount has been exported from Germany. The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana now is building a plant at Baton Rouge which, it is estimated, will turn out about 10,000 pounds a day.

One German plant, a subsidiary of the G. I. Farbenindustrie, is now turning out about 25,000 tons a year and another with the same capacity is very near the production stage. The Germans have been somewhat secretive about costs of the process. The buna exported to the United States was sold for about a dollar a pound. Allowing for a reasonable profit this would make the cost about four times that of natural rubber which varies between 15 and 20 cents a pound.

Half of Needs.

Germany's normal rubber consumption is about 100,000 tons a year. It is producing, at the best, about half of this amount out of coke and lime. The United States, the biggest rubber consumer, requires about 600,000 tons a year. An enormous and costly industrial development would be necessary before all this could be extracted from petroleum, the most likely source of butadiene in the new world.

The United States, the bureau chemists say, can make all the rubber it wants whenever it is willing to pay the price. But even with the most efficient mass production methods it can hardly hope to meet the present costs of natural rubber, and 600,000 tons a year will require enormous factories.

New 'Excursion to Hell' Fails To Save 6,000 Trapped British

By JACK W. CULMER.

A SOUTHEASTERN ENGLISH PORT, June 14.—(AP)—A motley "dawn flotilla" of one-time pleasure craft straggled back home today from a new "excursion to hell."

Boats ranging from cabin cruisers to putt-putt speedsters set out across the English channel three days ago to go to the aid of some 6,000 Allied troops trapped at St. Valery-en-Caux, down the French coast from Dunkerque.

But they came back almost empty-handed. The Germans saw to that with a fence of flame and steel laid down along the fog-shrouded St. Valery cliffs. The only ones saved were the soldiers who rowed four or five miles off-shore in whatever kind of boat they could grab.

One tiny craft which crept across the choppy channel at dawn did succeed, however, in getting back 24 hours later with 15 French Poilus. There had been 17, but two were wounded severely by machinegun bullets and died soon after being lifted into the boat.

No Room for the Dead.

There is no room in a lifeboat for dead men, so the weary oarsmen, needing every ounce of strength for the long, hard pull to England, gave their bodies to the sea.

"It was bloody murder," said a volunteer. "The miracle of Dunkerque was not to be repeated. St. Valery has high cliffs, not a beach like Dunkerque. There was a heavy fog, the sea was rough, and the Germans were ready for us this time."

"A tin hat—issued to each volunteer before the trip started 'in case it rains'—isn't much protection so far as I can see, and it certainly did rain, a rain of steel and fire.

"I didn't see anyone actually killed but it is no pleasant sight or sound to be near a man with a bullet in his belly.

Noise Most Alarming.

"The noise was the most alarming part of the whole show to me, a civilian under fire for the first time, but I suppose one gets used to it.

"Answering the call from across the channel, the admiralty rapidly organized and manned several flotillas of small craft—tugs, cabin cruisers, fishing boats, converted lifeboats—and placed a young naval officer in command of each flotilla of about a dozen vessels.

"Mounted in each craft was a Lewis machine gun, its base hastily screwed to the deck and its crew put through a rapid course of instruction that in some instances lasted only a few minutes."

New Orleans Nazi Consulate Is Threatened

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—(UP)—The German consulate here was placed under 24-hour police protection tonight at request of the consul general, Baron Edgar Von Spiegel.

Von Spiegel, one-time officer in the German navy and World War U-boat commander, requested that the consulate be guarded a few hours after an afternoon New Orleans newspaper carried a story quoting him as having warned that the United States must be careful in aiding the Allies.

The story—which the Baron subsequently denied—quoted him as saying that "Germany will not forget that when she was waging a struggle for her very life that the United States did everything in its power to aid her enemies."

Shortly after the paper appeared on the streets, it was understood, the consulate began receiving threatening, anonymous telephone calls. One report was that uncomplimentary letters were thrust under the consulate door. Motorists stopped and shouted in front of the building.

As soon as the Baron requested protection, the police department sped a squad car to the consulate and ordered two patrolmen to stay outside it.

It was the first protest against the Nazi government's consular office here since the present war began. Nearly a year ago, Dr. John Harvey Sherman, president of the University of Tampa, Fla., testified in Washington before the Dies committee that Von Spiegel had sought to influence the school's faculty by donation of German books.

Von Spiegel explained the books were intended only as prizes for German scholars, that many Universities and colleges in his eight-state jurisdiction had accepted the books with thanks.

Benning Engineer Unit Will Take New Stations

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

The battalion which remains at Benning will leave next week for the air corps' new base at MacDill Field, Fla.

The regiment was organized at Fort Benning last fall as a general service engineer regiment. Recently it was assigned to aviation engineering duty. This would include clearing ground and laying out landing fields in wartime under any terrain or weather conditions.

Berlin, Rome May Challenge British Fleet

U. S. Naval Men See Menace If France Capitulates.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Swift developments of the European war suggested to naval men today the possibility that the Berlin-Rome alliance might be able directly to challenge Great Britain's sea power by gaining possession of the French fleet.

On Capitol Hill also, Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, expressed belief that if the French armies capitulated to the Germans, the Nazis might make surrender of the French fleet a part of the peace terms.

Combined, German, Italian and French warships would outnumber the British navy in battleships and in categories other than aircraft carriers and cruisers.

CMTC Camps Open To Leaders Here

Three hundred business and professional men who reside in the fourth corps area, of which Atlanta is the headquarters, will be offered special training this summer at citizens' military training camps, Secretary of War Woodring announced yesterday.

Under the plan, this special training will go to men between the ages of 25 and 50 who will be selected on the basis of educational qualifications and civic leadership.

The men selected will be required to pay their own expenses. The training will be similar to that given younger men in the CMTC camps during July and August.

Armed Merchant Cruiser Sunk by Nazi Submarine

LONDON, June 14.—(AP)—The armed merchant cruiser Scotstoun, mortally wounded by a torpedo, sank today, but guns manned by men waist deep in water were believed to have taken revenge against her submarine attacker.

Even when shells had to be carried over their heads to keep them dry, the British navy men aboard the former Anchor Liner Caledonia served her guns, and they were not silenced except by waves which sent clouds of steam up from their heated barrels.

The admiralty also declared that the naval air force scored hits on the German battleship Scharnhorst in Trondhem fjord early yesterday.

Coffee County Farmer Cleared in Quota Case

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 14.—(AP) Federal Judge William H. Barrett today ordered a verdict of acquittal in the case of E. E. Hilliard, Coffee county farmer, accused of selling tobacco in excess of his quota.

Judge Barrett also nol-prossed a case against James F. Lasseter, of Coffee county. The two were charged with conspiracy to violate federal laws by selling excess-quota tobacco without payment of the government penalty.

Letter Carrier Employs Hobby To Kill Hawks

Gun Always Went With Him on Rounds, He Relates.

BAXLEY, Ga., June 14.—(AP)—"I guess every mail carrier gets to be a crank about something, so I got to be cranky about having a gun."

Thus does veteran carrier Lee Tillman explain his hobby which for many years has given him not only pleasure but has enabled him to rid this section of numerous chicken hawks and other birds of prey.

Tillman retired last year after following the same rural route for 33 years from the post office at Surrency, northward along the fringes of the Altamaha river swamp.

He went into the government service the first day the rural free delivery was inaugurated.

Recalling that "the chicken hawks were once a sight in the woods" in that section, Tillman now says there are few to be found.

He did not take to shooting hawks in spite, he explains, but because he "loved a gun." From childhood he had one, and always carried a shotgun or rifle on his daily round.

Acquiring much skill from practice, he shot hawks from fences, stumps and the tops of trees as he moved along. Occasionally he would bag a rabbit or partridge for variety, and one day, he recalls, he shot a large turkey as it ran down the road ahead of his horse and buggy.

Tillman has used practically every type and make of rifle, shotgun and revolver, including a rifle used by a Spanish soldier in Cuba, and one fired by an Argentine infantryman 45 years ago.

Travelers' Aid Serves Public, Young and Old

Sailors, Runaways, Aged Persons Receive Help From Agency.

Carolyn McKenzie, The Constitution's girl reporter, takes her camera and goes out into the highways and byways of the city to find her news. She paid a visit to Atlanta's transportation centers to study the travelers who need advice and assistance. In this article, and in the accompanying photographs which she took, Miss McKenzie writes about what she saw during a day with the Travelers' Aid Society.

By CAROLYN McKENZIE.

Sailors, runaway children, unfortunate families, persons seeking information—all come to the Travelers' Aid.

In one day—and a dull day at that because summer is the least severe season for travelers—a runaway boy from Cleveland, a housekeeper hunting a ticket to her sister's home where she hoped to find work, several small children, an old negro woman, and several persons who asked for "confidential" advice visited Atlanta branches of the Travelers' Aid.

Sitting around the office, one may reach out from a war-troubled world and sample humanity, the lives of American citizens of various economic strata.

Some of the Travelers' Aid clients mop their brows, bow heads, and shy away from case workers—and reporters. Others, jovial in every sense, toss their battered suit cases around and actually beam when a flash bulb bursts in their faces.

Familiar Faces.

You have seen these faces. They are your neighbors, the persons who pass you on the street, sit next to you on the train or bus. But only when you watch them come and go do you realize that these persons form a large part of the America in which we live.

We sampled the services of the Travelers' Aid to some of these people.

In January, Herbert John Lewis rekindled a score-year-old love for the sea and set out on a cruise through the Pacific to Shanghai. Now he's tired and wants to go home to see "Mama," whom he contentedly agreed is about his own age.

Solve Social Problems.

The program of this social work agency involves two other forms of service. It assists persons for whom travel may be treacherous; and the heart of the service lies within its solution of social problems.

Miss Ola Clark, for 11 years a mill worker and light housekeeper around Atlanta, called at the bus station to inquire about a ticket which her sister is sending her. She was referred to the Travelers' Aid.

"I hadn't never heard of it before," she said, "but they sure must do good. They're gonna help me get my ticket."

We met Betty Jane Hardy, of St. Cloud, Fla., at the Terminal station. A wire said that she could neither give her name nor address—but we met her and her aunt and two cousins took her into Atlanta for a summer visit.

A social problem, but one which soon will be solved, presented itself at the station.

Help Boy Return.

Fifteen-year-old Francis Crowe ran away from his Cleveland, Ohio, home three months ago because he didn't want to go to school. After working in Atlanta and Miami, he applied to Travelers' Aid for help to return home.

"I'll stay there this time," the youth said as his eyes clouded and he smoothed his strawy hair from a forehead browned and crisped by labor in the sun.

And these are a few of the interesting faces which saunter up to a Travelers' Aid desk, bow the brow, prop on the desk, and anxiously await the help which is theirs—for the asking.

LIGHT HOUSEKEEPER in search for work and for a ticket to Jacksonville, Ala., called at the Travelers' Aid yesterday upon the advice of the ticket agent. "I hadn't never heard of it before," she said, "but they sure must do good. They're gonna help me get my ticket." She's Miss Ola Clark, resident of Atlanta for 11 years.

Duties in Army Given to State's Young Officers

Two Atlantans Among West Point Graduates Given Assignments

Commissioning of the 14 Georgians who were graduated from West Point this June as second lieutenants, and their assignment to various branches of the service, was announced yesterday by Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

The two Atlantans in the class, John D. Townsend and Thomas K. Spencer, were assgned to the infantry and coast artillery corps respectively.

Other assignments were: Infantry—Delbert E. Munson, Columbus; Alvin C. Gillem, Fort Benning, and Wing F. Jung, Savannah. Coast Artillery—Hugh J. Turner, McDonough, and Irvine H. Shearer, Alapaha. Field Artillery—James P. Strauss, Decatur; Ford P. Fuller Jr., Savannah, and James L. Orr, Decatur. Cavalry—Allan A. Crockett, Savannah, and James F. Kreitzer, Savannah Beach. Quartermaster Corps—Lloyd W. Hough, Savannah, and William B. Campbell, Carrollton.

F.D.R. Favors Sugar Bill In Its Approved Form

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) President Roosevelt told a press conference today he hoped the Cummings bill for continuing the sugar program would be passed in the form approved by the house agriculture committee.

The State and Agriculture Departments are for it in that form, he said.

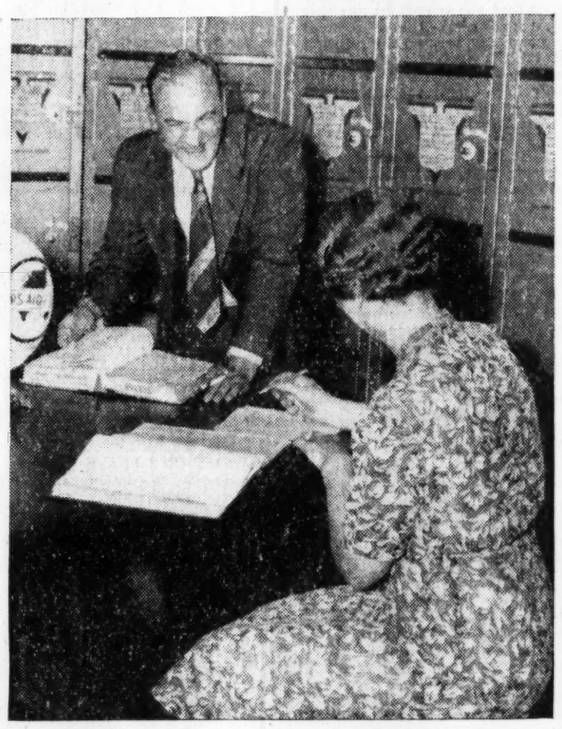

$2 Saving on Carfare Given to U. S. Defense

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—Uncle Sam got the $2 which Colleen Wright, 16, saved by walking a mile and a half to school each day.

She sent the money to Washington "for the defense of the United States." Her gift was acknowledged by Daniel W. Bell, undersecretary of the treasury.

WANTED VACATION, so Francis Crowe ran away from home. Now he's homesick and wants to go back to Cleveland, Ohio.

HE SHAVED to have his picture made with the Travelers' Aid case worker. This sailor, Herbert John Louis, of Mobile, tossed aside his more than score-year-old love for the sea to go home to see "Mama," whom he contentedly admitted is about his age.

Ballot on Three-Year Leaf Quota Authorized

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) Legislation to permit tobacco growers to vote on the question of establishing tobacco marketing quotas for three-year periods instead of one became law today with the signature of President Roosevelt.

The act amends the definition of "carry over" in the agricultural adjustment act to exclude from consideration, in determining the marketing quotas, tobacco of the 1939 and 1940 crops purchased for the British trade and temporarily stored in this country.

Georgians Ask WPA Schools For 'Defense'

MacDougall Says Washington Must Designate 'War' Projects.

Add people who want money for school houses "as a national defense measure" to the woes of the WPA state staff.

In an effort to stem the flooding tide of applications for federal funds, Robert L. MacDougall, Georgia WPA administrator, emphasized yesterday that any projects in the state that may be designated as undertakings for national defense will be so designated in Washington, not Atlanta.

"While war defense projects will be given priority," he said, "such undertakings by the WPA will be only on recommendation by the War and Navy departments in Washington.

"The WPA in Georgia has nothing to do with the designation of projects in the defense classification."

MacDougall said a large number of communities were proposing WPA projects as esential to emergency defense. Some have even suggested school buildings as defense measures.

"It will save much time and trouble for those communities hoping to get WPA projects under the heading of national defense if they will remember that all defense construction will be co-ordinated according to a national plan," he added. "All such projects probably will be designated in Washington after careful study of our national needs."

Colonel F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, already has given priority to 73 projects in the United States as emergency defense jobs. Construction of buildings and other work at Fort Benning is the only one of these projects in Georgia.

Teamsters' Union Knows Nothing About Horses

SEATTLE, June 14.—(AP)—Teamsters' Union was stumped by a request for drivers—for three teams of horses.

"What's that? You want someone to drive horses?" asked the astonished business agent for the teamsters. "Why, none of our men knows the first thing about handling teams."

Workmen had protested against motorized equipment in a highway tunnel project because of the monoxide gas danger. The owners were hired to drive the teams.

Overhaul U. S. Tax Structure, Witnesses Say

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Two witnesses—Ellsworth C. Alvord of the United States Chamber of Commerce and M. L. Seidman of the New York Board of Trade—told the senate finance committee today that the entire tax structure should be overhauled.

Alvord, chairman of the chamber's federal finance committee, urged that the pending tax bill calling for $1,004,000,000 annually for five years for defense purposes be limited to one year and then supplanted by comprehensive new legislation.

Seidman said he questioned the wisdom of delaying thoroughgoing tax revision until next session.

Kenneth Carroad of New York City, representing the National Lawyers' Guild, suggested a munitions tax, an "abnormal profits tax" and elimination of existing tax exemptions on public bonds.

C. C. Pettijohn, counsel for the (motion picture) Producers and Distributors' Association, suggested a change in the amusement tax.

He suggested a sliding scale to place a 1-cent tax on admissions between 10 and 25 cents, a 2-cent levy on admissions between 26 and 49 cents and a flat 10 per cent on admissions from 50 cents upward. He was the last witness.

State Colleges Launch Flying School Today

Tech, 8 Other Institutions Join in Summer Training Program.

Nine Georgia colleges, including Tech, will launch today a special summer flying school, with the southeast scheduled to produce 2,130 pilots by September 15. In all, 62 institutions in the Civil Aeronautics Authority second district, from North Carolina to Louisiana will participate.

The Tech aeronautics school, which yesterday completed training 45 students as private pilots in the first 90-day CAA course, will provide instruction for 60 students in the summer session.

Professor William R. Weems, director of civilian pilot training, said the school will be operated on a 12-hour day, six-day week basis. His staff of instructors include W. F. Underwood, J. C. Brown, F. G. Sigman, William Grissom and H. A. Moorer, and will be increased by one.

The first assembly will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics. Weems, Ed Nilson, senior private flying specialist for the CAAA, and possibly Professor Montgomery Knight, director of the aeronautics school, will deliver short speeches.

Congratulations upon what he said was a historic achievement in registering students, completing physical examinations and actually starting instruction within 10 days after launching the program, was sent to all participating colleges yesterday by Nilson.

"This forcefully emphasizes a spirit of patriotic co-operation, efficiency and determination worthy of highest commendation," he declared. "God bless each of you—and more power to you!"

Jury To Probe Harry Barfield Vote Charges

Defeated Candidate Turns Affidavits Over to Grand Jurors.

Investigation of charges of irregularities in the June 5 election will be taken up Tuesday by the Fulton grand jury, it was reported yesterday.

With but two weeks of its term to go, the jurors yesterday agreed to probe the charges made by Harry Barfield, defeated candidate for sheriff, who turned over to the jury affidavits of citizens alleging irregularities in the voting lists and at the polls.

Barfield yesterday turned over to newspapers a statement naming witnesses to alleged violations and urging the jury to call these witnesses for questioning.

The jury is to inspect ballot boxes, voting lists, lists of election managers and clerks at its session Tuesday, it was understood. John C. Aycock, member of the jury, is understood to be chairman of a committee appointed by Carlyle Fraser, foreman, to probe Barfield's charges.

At the same time, it was learned that other jury committees investigating affairs of the county are ready or nearly so to make final reports to the jury as a whole.

These include one on the public works department, headed by J. J. McConneghey, another on taxes, headed by Guy H. Wood; one dealing presumably with "justice," headed by Ingram Dickinson, and another on the county commission and county affairs, of which D. C. Black is chairman.

Obtaining election returns, boxes and registration lists for Tuesday's session were understood to have been delegated to Frank L. Fleming, assistant foreman, who acted in Fraser's place during most of yesterday's session.

Barfield's statement to the newspapers urged the jurors to investigate the votes cast by inmates in the almshouse—many of whom were said to be unable to mark their own ballots. He also charged that in nearly every precinct the law forbidding anyone from coming within 10 feet of a voter in a booth was flagrantly violated, and that "no less personage than one of your own members (of the grand jury) was forced to have the election manager at Buckhead stop the election, clear the floor, before allowing the election to proceed."

Barfield charged also that the voting list contained names of persons not eligible to vote and that it did not list the names of others qualified to cast ballots.

Charges Vote Purchased.

In one instance, he charged that one vote was purchased in violation of the law. In his report to the jury, Barfield said he named names.

Earl Suttles, tax collector who has charge of registration, yesterday asserted "there was less confusion in the June 5 election than in those in previous years."

"However, if anybody has any information of irregularities I will be glad to co-operate in straightening them out," he added.

Troy Chastain and Dr. Charles R. Adams, county commissioners, both went before the grand jury yesterday morning upon their request. It was understood they discussed the farm and park program of the county with the jurors.

PASTOR CALLED — The Rev. Marc C. Weersing, pastor of the Elberton Presbyterian church, has been extended a call to the pastorate of the Capitol View Presbyterian church.

Virgin Islands Census Shows Population Rise

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) Population of the Virgin islands increased 13.1 per cent in the last 10 years to 24,889.

The Census Bureau, issuing this report today, said, however, that the 1940 population was still 15.5 per cent less than in 1917, when the islands were purchased from Denmark.

Capitol View Presbyterian Calls Pastor

Rev. M. C. Weersing Will Occupy Pulpit Twice Tomorrow.

The Rev. Marc C. Weersing, pastor of the Elberton Presbyterian church, will occupy the pulpit for both services tomorrow at the Capitol View Presbyterian church, in response to a call extended him last Sunday by a unanimous vote of the congregation.

The youthful pastor, along with Mrs. Weersing, will arrive in Atlanta today for a field survey prior to making a decision on the call, which is expected to be forwarded by the pulpit committee next week.

The Rev. Mr. Weersing has been at his present pastorate since March, 1938, after receiving his theological degree from Columbia Seminary in Decatur. Mrs. Weersing, the former Miss Jean Barry Adams, of Charlotte, N. C., is a graduate of Agnes Scott College.

He is a native of Grand Rapids, Mich., and is now director of the Young People's conference of the Athens Presbytery.

Britain Orders Vast Purchases From America

Official Britain predicted an early German "peace offensive" but declared that Allied and United States industries would build up "a weight of armaments with which Hitler will be quite unable to compete."

British official circles sought to put the best face possible on the fall of Paris, predicting that France would continue the struggle and noting that the French withdrawal "was a military, not a political decision."

Regardless of the outcome, these quarters added, Britain is in the war to a finish.

In the momentous decision that the tide must be turned in France within weeks at most, the British made clear they were going "all out" to obtain post-haste guns and ammunition, even of World War vintage, to supply Tommies streaming back onto the continent on "return tickets" from the disaster of Flanders.

At the expense of sorely needed home defenses, the British coupled all their stored-up economic resources with manpower, staking everything on a fight in France far below the abandoned city of Paris.

Sudden Turn.

The British decision is a sudden turn from the long war plan aimed at starving out Germany—as was done in 1914—and it comes in the face of Nazi claims that the British blockade of the seas has been broken by the Allied setbacks in Scandinavia, the Low Countries and Flanders.

Government sources disclosed that war funds allocated for years now are released for spending in weeks.

In effect it is an economic blitzkrieg to meet the piled-up Nazi war stores and men pressing ever deeper into France and to offset, as best it can, the loss of 75 to 80 per cent of France's steel producing plants, now in German-occupied territory.

Most French ammunition plants, however, are in the south and thus still in Allied hands.

The government now is more concerned with obtaining war materials already fabricated in the United States rather than in pressing for new manufactures.

Obsolete though they may be, the United States' left-overs from to replace the arms lost wholesale to the Nazis in the historic flight from the Flanders pocket.

The British idea outlined today echoes the plea made late last night by French Premier Paul Reynaud for "clouds of warplanes" immediately swarming over the Atlantic, presumably flying with their own power rather than snailing across in surface ships.

An idea of Britain's prospective "all out" expenditures may be had from an authoritative estimate that her purchases of machine tools alone can swallow the entire export capacity of the United States to the rate of 2,000,000 pounds (about $8,000,000) a month.

The World War weapons sought are those that the United States manufactured toward the end of the old hostilities to replace those obtained by America from the Allies.

Specifically mentioned are American 75s (capable of piercing big German tanks) and the American-manufactured British Enfield rifles.

ALLIES HAVE 7 BILLION TO BUY WAR GOODS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) United States officials estimated today that the British and French empires still have roughly $7,000,000,000 of "quick assets" with which they could purchase supplies immediately in the United States. These assets include gold, cash deposits and American securities.

The officials, however, indicated that lack of materials to be bought quickly was much more of a problem to the Allies than the availability of cash for payment. They pointed out that in spite of pressing needs for airplanes ever since the war began, the Allies have had to sign some contracts for planes not expected to be ready for delivery until September, 1941.

Surveys Under Way.

War Department officials said exhaustive surveys were being made to determine what additional surplus equipment was available for sale to the Allies.

They would give no indication as to what such supplies might be, but emphasized that the department was not selling any equipment in the hands of troops or the national guard.

"We are not dearming the army," a spokesman said.

Equipment Released.

The department has already released for sale to the Allies 173 airplanes and more than $37,000,000 worth of varied equipment declared to be surplus. This material is understood to have included more than 500 75-millimeter field guns and 600,000 Lee-Enfield rifles of the World War period. In addition, the navy and marine corps have released 90 planes.

After it was announced that $37,000,000 worth of equipment had been sold to a United States Steel Company subsidiary for resale to the Allies at cost, Anglo-French purchasing agents said that additional military supplies had been declared surplus by the War Department. The nature of this equipment was not disclosed.

The War Department spokesmen said that no national guard equipment and no machinery of government arsenals had been made available for sale.

FRENCH STILL BUYING WAR TOOLS IN U. S.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—The Anglo-French purchasing board said today that contracts amounting to "many millions of dollars" had been placed during the day in a denial of rumors that French purchases of war materials had been halted by the fall of Paris.

A spokesman said that of contracts totaling $1,600,000,000 to date, approximately $600,000,000 had been placed in the past four weeks.

"More purchasing agents are being sent from France to this country right now," he added. "There is no immediate end of our resources in sight."

Efforts for Peace Urged by Baptists

BALTIMORE, June 14.—(AP)—The Southern Baptist convention adopted a resolution today, urging President Roosevelt and all others in high governmental positions to do everything possible to keep the United States out of the war in Europe.

Sharing attention in today's business session was a decision to decline an invitation to membership in the world council of churches.

All Free Peoples Should Back France, Queen Elizabeth Says

LONDON, June 14.—(UP)—Queen Elizabeth, broadcasting in French tonight to the women of France, told them that their invaded nation "deserves the unqualified support of all free peoples of the world" in its hour of peril.

She predicted an ultimate victory for France and the Allies regardless of how dark the hour may be, and recalled her visit to Paris two years ago with King George VI.

"I felt then that the heart of the women of France was beating close to mine," she said.

"In these sad days it is to those women that I wish to say just this, that their sorrows are our sorrows.

"A nation defended by such men and loved by such women must sooner or later attain victory. I believe that our two peoples will, by their endurance and hard work, have made good our armament deficiencies and will be able to say to each other 'maintenant ca va.'

"This hope I owe to the courage of your wounded, and I want to bring it to you tonight, together with the most affectionate sympathy of all women of Great Britain who are ready in the cause of our common victory to vie with sacrifices which is your crown and is the crown of France."

Italian Tactics Shown To Be Harassing Acts

Minor Thrusts Against Allies Planned as German Aid.

ROME, June 14.—(AP)—Italy's part in the war became manifest today as a sniping action to keep the Allies harassed at many points while the Germans try to finish off the French.

These tactics were outlined in Italian newspapers, giving Italy a role secondary to Germany and aimed particularly at keeping French and British forces in the Mediterranean and Red Sea occupied with air raids.

The only fighting on the French frontier by Italian troops reported by the high command was an action where Italians drove back a French attack at Galisia Hill, where there is an Alpine mountain pass into Italy.

In its third communique of the war, the Italian high command reported its forces fought off British attacks on Libya from Egypt, and on Ethiopia from Kenya.

The high command reported the Italian fleet was active in the Mediterranean, where events were topped off by the occupation of the international neutralized zone of Tangier, Morocco, by two divisions of Generalissimo Franco's Spanish troops and a Spanish destroyer.

Johnson Calls For Industrial Preparedness

Assistant War Secretary Confident of 50,000 Plane Output.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 14.—(AP)—Colonel Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, said tonight he was confident that industry could be geared to meet President Roosevelt's order for 50,000 planes a year and added that "if we cannot do it, the safety of this country indeed is in jeopardy."

Speaking on "Lessons From Abroad," Colonel Johnson declared that the important one was that a nation "must have plans of campaign not only on the military but on the industrial front, and they must be consistent with the temperament and the institutions of the country."

"An America prepared on the industrial front," he told the Harvard Business School Alumni Association in a prepared address, "will do more to discourage attack against us than perhaps any other single factor in our preparedness program."

Italians Oust Dutch Minister

LONDON, June 14.—(AP)—A communique issued by the Dutch legation in France, heard tonight in a French broadcast, said that, although Italy had not declared war on the Netherlands, the Italian government had requested the withdrawal of the Dutch minister to Rome.

Allies, Dutch Set Guilder Rate

LONDON, June 14.—(AP)—A tripartite British-French-Netherlands monetary agreement was announced today establishing the Netherlands East Indies guilder at 7.60 guilders to the pound.

New York foreign money dealers said the new rate was approximately the same as that prevailing prior to invasion of Holland by Germany.

Red Cross Vessel Is To Sail Today

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—Carrying an estimated $1,000,000 cargo of food, medical supplies and hospital trucks, the American Red Cross "mercy ship" McKeesport will sail tomorrow for Bordeaux, France.

Large Red Cross emblems have been painted on the ship, with spotlights to make them visible by night. She will carry a capacity cargo of 14,000,000 pounds. At Bordeaux, the cargo will be distributed by truck to various refugee centers in southern France.

Willkie Scores Lack in Defense

BOSTON, June 14.—(AP)—Asserting that the government cannot conceal its lack of preparedness "by talking of military equipment on order," Wendell Willkie said tonight the New Deal belonged to the era of the Blum government of France and the Chamberlain government of Britain and must be replaced.

Willkie, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, asserted he would not accept the vice presidential nomination under any circumstances.

Relief Bill Boosted By 100 Million

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) Two powerful senate groups—roughly representing rural and urban areas — teamed up today to place an unbudgeted $100,000,000 for removing agriculture surpluses in the annual relief bill by a lopsided 58-to-16 vote.

Senator Adams, Democrat, Colorado, floor leader of the bulky annual relief appropriation, reminded the members that congress already had voted $85,000,000 for these purposes in the regular farm bill and that another $100,000,000 would be automatically diverted from customs funds.

The $100,000,000, with the $50,000,000 war refugee fund requested by President Roosevelt, and other senate increases pushed the bill's total to $1,224,791,357.

Italy's Envoy Protests to Hull

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) Ascanio Colonna, the Italian ambassador, protested to Secretary Hull today against what one of his aides described as a campaign to arouse anti-Italian feeling in the United States.

Secretary Hull made no immediate comment on the protest which was understood to have been an informal one, based chiefly on published reports from New York concerning alleged Fascist propaganda activities by Italian consular officials in this country.

The main subject of the protest, however, was said to have been the report that New York police had been directed to investigate alleged Fascist activities of Italian consular officials.

'Go to War,' Urges Retired General

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—(AP)—Dr. David P. Barrows, former University of California president and a retired general, said today "the United States should go to war now."

Addressing a Commonwealth Club luncheon, the holder of military decorations from five European countries asserted:

Move on Tangier Elates Spaniards

MADRID, June 14.—(AP)—Demonstrating Spanish youths sang songs of empire today and Falangist (Fascist) party spokesmen referred to Tangier, Morocco, as forever Spanish as Spain's forces took up stations in the neutralized international zone at Africa's northwestern tip. They marched in without a fight.

Two divisions of troops and a destroyer moved into the 225-square mile Tangier zone this morning. A foreign ministry spokesman here said the action was taken to guarantee the neutrality of Tangier, across the Straits from the huge British naval and military base of Gibraltar.

In Tours, France, authorized French circles said the Spanish occupation of Tangiers was made with the consent of the Allies.

Pepper Voices New Demands For Allied Aid

Seeks Authority To Convert Auto Industry to Plane Production.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Aroused over seeming congressional apathy at the moment the Allies were suffering their greatest disaster yet of the war—the surrender of Paris—Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, today renewed his demands for approval of a joint resolution giving President Roosevelt a free hand in expediting the defenses of the country.

Simultaneously the Florida senator, who has been the spearhead of congressional forces seeking unlimited aid to the hard-pressed Allies short of actual war, came forward with a new proposal calling for Presidential authority to commandeer the great American automobile industry and convert it immediately into aircraft production.

"Calls for Action."

"The need of the hour calls for action—positive action," said Senator Pepper. "Congress cannot afford to stand by idly for a single moment and fail to give every assistance to our national defense. Until action is taken I propose to renew my demands daily for congressional sanction of a resolution that will clothe the President with every authority to deal with the war situation as the exigencies arise.

"One of the immediate steps we should take," he declared, "is to commandeer a large segment of the great American automobile inudustry—all of it if necessary—and put it immediately to the task of retooling for military aircraft production. Every resource of the country should be applied to a gigantic program for building up the country's defenses and hastening aid to the Allies in the form of materials and machines."

Colleagues Warned.

Senator Pepper, declaring that Hitler's latest assertions about having no designs on the western hemisphere are to be given no more weight than his previous assurances against violating the neutrality of nations he has since invaded, warned his colleagues to overcome the lethargy which he charged has blinded congress to the realities of the situation.

"To me," he said, "it is one of the strangest interludes I have witnessed to see congress apparently apathetic on this—the very day that marks the greatest disaster yet suffered by the Allies in the war—the German occupation of Paris."

Just back from Chicago, where more than 30,000 people gathered in an open arena in the rain to hear him speak in favor of immediate Allied assistance, the Florida senator said it was apparent to him that congress has failed to catch the tempo of the country with respect to the defense demands of the hour.

"What congress should do," he declared, "is to take a recess for two weeks and go back home to feel the pulse of the nation. When they returned they would lose much of the lethargy that has been responsible for delay in expediting the administration defense program. To my mind there is no question about how the country feels on what we should do and the speed with which we should do it."

Since initiating his crusade for giving the President full power to act in the present emergency the Florida senator, he told The Constitution today, has received more than 20,000 letters and some 5,000 telegrams from over the country indorsing his stand on the war situation. These are continuing to pour into his office in unabated numbers, he said.

French Troops Retreat Far Below Paris

German advances carried on the east as far as Romilly, 65 miles southeast of Paris, and to St. Dizier, nearly 150 miles east of Paris.

The German west flank also advanced. (Five words were censored in the reference to this movement; censorship from Tours generally was heavy.)

For half an hour anti-aircraft guns thundered tonight in Tours itself. Refugees reaching here declared they had been bombed and machine-gunned west of Paris yesterday, and that many had been killed or wounded.

If the war goes on, the Loire river line through Tours and Orleans is the next strong barrier for a new defense.

The valley is the gateway to the center of France. Orleans, the nearest point to Paris, is 70 miles south of the capital.

The German charge into the very mouths of the mighty guns in the Maginot line was said by the French command to have been spearheaded with tanks and airplanes, all of which were declared beaten back.

It had been acknowledged earlier, however, that Nazi thrusts between Paris and the Maginot line were threatening it from the rear and that the line was being turned from Montmedy, its northern anchor.

From Bern, Switzerland, it was reported that what German-Italian sources called a "death blow" appeared to threaten France through a German offensive on the upper Rhine co-ordinated with an Italian offensive on the Maritime Alps.

Allied sources called such a disaster "possible," but said France was so well-armed and prepared in those sectors that such double blows could be struck only if the French fail to hold the German onslaught south of Paris.

German troops concentrations north of the Swiss border apparently were still there awaiting orders.

Neutral sources said the French had little to fear from an Italian land drive across the Alpine fortress regions but that the valleys of the Durance and Rhone rivers might be reached by air.

In this connection reports circulated in Switzerland that both German and Italian parachute troops had arrived at Italian air bases in the provinces of Piedmont and Liguria.

The last hours of Paris as a free city of France were described sadly here today by a few of those civilians who had stayed on there almost to the end.

They told of small groups of men—unwilling to leave in the face of any disaster—still sitting in alternate sun and shadow at the boulevard cafes; of a city filled with a great and unaccustomed silence where only the police still stood guard.

Early Invasion of Americas By Nazi Armies Held Unlikely

Fifth Columns Might Succeed in Hard Times, But Economic Pressure by Market Control Is Possible, Analyst Declares.

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE,
United Press Analyst.

The fall of Paris and the rapid weakening of France's surviving armed forces have given the United States something to think about.

The question being asked over here is: If Hitler conquers France and then is able to subdue an England fighting alone, what effect will his domination of Europe have on the western hemisphere?

Hitler has declared that he has no ambitions in the new world; that he favors Europe for the Europeans and America for Americans.

President Roosevelt expressed profound skepticism, citing similar pronouncements by Hitler in the past and his failure to live up to them.

Three courses which Hitler might take with regard to the western hemisphere have been much discussed. They are:

1. Open invasion by land, sea and air.
2. Internal revolt by fifth columnists to pave the way for eventual German domination.
3. Economic pressure by control, in combination with Italy and possibly Japan, of world markets.

The first proposition seems the least likely—at any rate, for some time to come. It is one thing to march with superior air and land force into adjacent Norway, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands and France or even to invade England, only little more than 20 miles across the channel at its narrowest point.

It is a different thing to attempt to wage war against a country separated by 3,000 miles of ocean and presently engaged in a whirlwind defense program which bids fair to match the program that made Hitler so strong.

Hitler lacks the navy for such an effort. If he could force the surrender of the British and French fleets, he might be in a strong position. But if defeated, Britain and France certainly will try to get their navies into this hemisphere intact. The danger is that Hitler might threaten the most terrible reprisals if the fleets are not surrendered.

In addition, Hitler has bitten off a lot of territory. If he subdues France, he will have more than 1,500 miles of coast line to take care of, from northern Norway to the Bay of Biscay. In between will be the beaten but rebellious peoples of five nations to be pacified, held in check and organized politically and economically, which is no mean task.

The second proposition is the fifth column weapon. It is so controversial and uncertain that no one could hazard a safe guess one way or the other. If bad times, privation and economic misery should develop, the fifth column method might have a chance.

And that ties in with the third proposition. It is known that Hitler has his great financial and economic genius, Hjalmar Schacht, at work on a plan to reorganize European economy, with Germany regulating it. The Fuehrer looks that far ahead.

In conjunction with Italy—if he becomes dominant in Europe—Hitler could fairly well dictate American trade with Europe, opening or closing markets at will. The Americas might be forced to the barter system.

"To Make It Easy."

"I want to make it easy," he said, "for such prominent interventionists as President Conant, of Harvard University; Walter Lippman, other well-known columnists, newspaper editors and internationalist bankers to enlist in the French foreign legion in order to practice what they preach without involving the American people who are 90 per cent in favor of keeping out of foreign wars."

On Capitol Hill, Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, proposed that the President be given authority to direct the automotive industry, as well as the airplane industry to deliver 50,000 warplanes by a fixed date.

Because of the crisis of the Allied cause, and the appeal of Premier Reynaud for American assistance, reporters flocked to Mr. Roosevelt's press conference in almost record numbers. The first question put to the chief executive dealt with Reynaud's appeal.

Doing All It Can.

It had not yet been formally received, Mr. Roosevelt said, but the answer was simple: The United States was doing all it possibly could for the Allies.

Previously, Mr. Roosevelt had announced he had signed the $1,498,000,000 appropriation bill for increasing the size of the army and providing it with mammoth stores of equipment.

He also disclosed the creation of a new committee to help with the preparedness task. This, he said, was the national defense research committee, to be led by Dr. Vannevar Bush, head of the Carnegie Institution and of the national advisory committee for aeronautics. Its job will be to see in what way the laboratories of the country, and their research scientists, can help in expediting the defense program.

Americans Ask Aid.

The day was notable for many other developments related to defense and the war abroad. Among them was a request by the President for an appropriation of $8,127,000 for rivers and harbors work linked with the defense problem, including the dredging of a 40-foot channel in the Delaware river, from Philadelphia to the sea.

A group of 100 Americans residing in London appealed dramatically for assistance to the Allies from their homeland, addressing their plea to Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, the minority leader of the senate. They asked for "planes and more planes, guns and more guns, and, if necessary, what is harder still, our men."

Would Provide Loans.

The house passed and sent to the senate a bill to permit the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to help finance defense programs. As revised at the request of Republicans under the leadership of Representative Miller, Republican, Connecticut, the corporation could set up new agencies for that purpose, but would limit their activities to production of materials of war.

President Roosevelt gave the names Missouri and Wisconsin to the two 45,000-ton battleships on which construction was ordered this week.

Princeton Leader Urges Military Training Law

PRINCETON, N. J., June 14.—(AP)—Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton University, proposed tonight that all men "between 21 and 45 be liable to be called for military training for relatively brief periods" as a means of bolstering the nation's defense program.

"Compulsory military training is necessary if an adequate force is to be available for the equipment which the country has determined we are to manufacture for our defense," he said.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 15, 1940.

Paris

Paris, the other home city of every traveled man and woman in the world.

Paris, that city all good Americans long to visit when they are rich enough to travel.

Paris, the beautiful, the city of ancient buildings draped in sunshot mist. The city of exquisite distances, the city of ineffable charm.

But that was the Paris of yesterday—

Today the hard tramp of goose-stepping Germans is heard down the Champs Elysees, the guttural growl of German command echoes around the turrets of Notre Dame. Such a Paris is no longer Paris. It is but the shell of a violated dream, the grisly bones of a once-adorable woman.

Someday, perhaps, the material Paris will live again, be restored to her gay civilization. But, today, the Paris the world has known and loved is dead, fallen before the might of a ruthless machine of force.

* * * *

Yet, though Paris the city is dead, Paris the spirit can never die. So long as there remains breath within a single Frenchman, the spirit that is Paris must survive. So long as memory recalls cool evenings at the Cafe de la Paix, Paris will live in the hearts and faiths of all decent people.

Paris has been, for a thousand years, the political, literary, artistic and social capital of Europe. Napoleon said that London is a corner of the world, while Paris is its center.

Paris has been the birthplace of human liberty. It was there that Thomas Paine wrote his "Age of Reason" and it was there the Declaration of the Rights of Man was first conceived. It was from Paris that stemmed the intense faith in the dignity of the individual and the right of the individual to a life of liberty, that was the spark to fire the American revolution. It was largely from the writings of French libertarians that the fathers of America found ideas and inspiration for our own Declaration of Independence, our own Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Paris, for more than ten centuries, has held aloft the torch of civilization. From her has come hope for downtrodden races and she has been the gateway to an ever-advancing culture of peace.

* * * *

Paris under the heel of the German conqueror is like some fair virgin queen dragged in chains behind the chariot of her despoiler through the streets of Rome.

Someday Paris will awaken to new life. She will be herself again. Someday the insensate conqueror will have been driven from her streets, someday the mighty strength that is the democracy of the world will have crushed those who would enslave freedom and beauty and the joy of life.

It will take more than all the might that is Hitler and Mussolini combined to erase from this earth those lovelinesses of life which Paris typified far better than any other spot on earth.

Until comes that day when Paris is reborn in all her free glory, the world must never forget what she has been, must never let go its faith in the motto that is France, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity!"

Let's Be Logical

It is but the course of common sense that this country should take every precaution needed to prevent, immediately, any possibility of "fifth column" work in the United States. The evidence is too recent and too clear for us to forget what traitors, saboteurs and spies did in Norway, in Denmark, in Holland and in Belgium.

Already there are evidences that saboteurs are at work in the airplane and munition plants of the United States. Alsop and Kintner, in their Washington column, "The Capital Parade," have revealed something of these vicious activities.

We have known for years that traitors to the American ideals and way of life have been active among us. As Communists, German Bund members and even in the guise of miscalled American organizations, they have scattered their noisome seed.

Yet, today, there is evidence we are in danger of losing our commonsense on the subject of aliens living among us. What should be a calm, businesslike, thorough check on every possible source of danger shows signs of developing into something cruel and unnecessary.

Americans are being asked, today, to give millions to the American Red Cross, to feed homeless and hungry refugees in Europe. All of whom are, it should be noted, aliens.

At the same time a move is made to throw off the relief rosters of the State Welfare Department some 19 resident aliens who have no other means of subsistence. Does this mean that aliens in this country, presumably lawfully and legitimately, should be doomed to starvation, merely because they are in this country?

Attorney General Ellis Arnall has drawn up, and forwarded to Washington, a proposed amendment to the federal constitution denying to aliens the privileges and immunities granted in that constitution. Doesn't it seem strange that, while one half of the world is fighting to the death to retain democratic liberty in ways of life, while this country is doing everything possible to aid them in their fight, that we should withdraw from people already within our gates the evidence of the blessings that democratic liberty brings?

Let us, by all means, keep eyes and ears alert for every indication of danger to this country, to its institutions and of impairment of its rearmament effort. But let us not show ourselves cruel or vindictive to innocent and harmless individuals among us, merely because we have been gripped in the vise of hysteria or succumbed to the temptation of political expediency.

On Southern Paper

Your Constitution this morning comes to you printed upon paper manufactured of southern pine pulp, in a southern paper mill. It is, today, a complete product of the south, heralding the development of an important new industry for this section and demonstrating what can be done when southern enterprise and southern capital join with southern research for the benefit of the south.

The story of the development of papermaking from southern grown pine starts, of course, with the late Dr. Charles H. Herty, whose research and laboratory work demonstrated the possibility of southern pine as a source of newsprint.

The mill now in operation at Herty (Lufkin), Texas, is the outcome of a movement launched in 1934 at the annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association. The construction of the plant began less than two years ago, in January, 1939, when ground was broken on an old, worn-out cornfield three miles from Lufkin. The place was renamed Herty, in honor of the father of the southern paper industry. It is a $6,000,000 plant and, as early as last January, the first newsprint began coming from its machinery.

This plant at Herty, Texas, has demonstrated two things. First that southern-produced newsprint is as high in quality as any produced in the world. Thus making true the vision which inspired Dr. Herty through his years of research at Savannah. Second, the Texas plant has shown that the manufacture of newsprint can be conducted in the south on a commercially feasible basic.

It is now acknowledged that this plant is but the forerunner of many others. The day is not far distant when all over the pine areas of the south there will be paper mills, bringing to this section a great new industry and pouring into circulation among southern people a new flood of money.

Look carefully at your Constitution this morning. Today's issue is an epochal event. The Standard Southern Newspaper has now been enabled to make itself, more thoroughly than ever before, a newspaper of and for the south.

A Frenchman, sentenced some months back for disparaging Leopold, of Belgium, now asks a parole on the ground that being psychic is no crime.

By the way, isn't some organization or another planning to hold a convention in Philadelphia soon? Or have they already met?

The good old days, if any, were when the battle was named for a crossroads, instead of everything between the Alps and the sea.

In Lively, Texas, a burglar in the night time removed every dress from a store. Comes now the thing of trying them on the moll for size.

Editorial of the Day

CARDS ON THE TABLE

(From the Philadelphia Record)

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' annual detailed statement of its finances received a good deal of attention from the press this year, largely, it seemed, because the union treasury showed a balance of $1,066,094 over expenditures.

A balance like that, of course, is cause for satisfaction not only to the members of the union, who naturally like to feel that their organization is in strong financial shape, but also to everyone in the garment trades and their customers. David Dubinsky, president of the ILGWU, explained the reason for the large balance; fewer big strikes.

Other items in the report are of general interest. Of $5,192,098 paid out, the largest part went for salaries. Strike relief and incidentals accounted for $280,000 and educational and recreational activities for $185,805.

But the most important feature of this report, as of its predecessors, remains the fact that they are issued at all. Each one contains sufficient detail to enable almost anyone to gain a clear outline of the manner in which the union management handles its affairs. The report invites criticism. We can think of no better way for a union to establish confidence.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

RECRUITING AN ARMY WASHINGTON, June 14.—Among many high-ranking War Department officials there is a strong belief that congress should enact some sort of compulsory military training. This country, except in war periods, has never used a draft system to fill up the army's ranks, and army men are naturally reluctant to express themselves publicly. But there can be no doubt of a general feeling at the department that congress should act, and act before adjournment.

The War Department reasons are extremely matter-of-fact. For the past six weeks the army has been trying to enlist 15,000 men, and only 8,000 have been recruited. With the regular forces about to be increased by 100,000 to 400,000 men, some sort of compulsion may be necessary. Meanwhile, the War Department has elaborate plans, made in co-operation with the governors of the 48 states, to bolster up its recruiting through the aid of state and local committees.

Then, too, it is no great secret that, in the event of an increasingly probable German victory, the War Department envisions a regular army of 750,000 men, with 2,500,000 of trained reserves. It is obviously impossible to create such an armed force in a relatively short time without conscription. As one official closely in touch with the European war put it: "We might as well make up our minds that we need about three million excellently trained men. The sooner we start the training the better. This is obviously an emergency period. Six months may make the difference."

21-YEAR-OLDS War Department officials have two plans for compulsory peacetime conscription. Both are based on the principle that 50,000 men should be added each month for a period of six months, and 75,000 a month thereafter. With its present officers, the army cannot efficiently train more than 50,000 new men a month. Both plans would require a one-year enlistment period, with the objective of building up a regular army of 750,000 and an ultimate goal of 2,500,000 reserves.

Every male in the country who is now 21 years of age would be subject to draft, under the first plan. From this group of 21-year-olds, numbering about 1,100,000, approximately 500,000 would be selected for training with exemptions for those not physically fit. Under the second plan, the eligible list would include all men between the ages of 21 and 30. A lottery system, similar to that used in the first World War, would be used to select 500,000 men as the first group to be trained. Exemptions would be the same as in the last war—physical unfitness, family dependency, key industrial positions and so on.

War Department officials advocating the first plan, while agreeing that the selection of all males who are now 21 years old is arbitrary, contend that only on that basis can the country develop a plan for universal military training. Its obvious disadvantage would be the reluctance of congress to limit the training of that age group.

PRESENT PLANS Long ago the War Department set up a nation-wide machinery for a draft system in case this country went to war. It centers in the offices of the adjutant general of each state, and branches out in local committees in every county in America. If the President approves the War Department is ready to adapt this machinery to speed up its recruiting.

The governor of each state would be asked to urge publicly the necessity of volunteering, and these proclamations would set in motion county committees who would canvass their territories for enlistments.

While it is obviously true that European events of the last few weeks have produced a great change in sentiment in the country, the administration is apparently not yet willing to sponsor compulsory military training. As of this writing (and policy is on a day-to-day basis), a three-point program for further improvement in our military establishment is being developed, under the leadership of the able Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina. Involving an expenditure of $75,000,000, the plan includes:

1. Another expansion of the enlisted reserve of both the army and navy.
2. Tripling the citizens military training camps to take care of 100,000 boys this summer.
3. Increased vocational education in CCC camps, in city schools and under the National Youth Administration to train mechanics, electricians and other skilled workmen who some day would be useful to the army.

Whether the program will go beyond this seems dependent on whether or not congress stays in session. If the session is prolonged and if the Germans continue their victory march, it would not be a bad bet that something more would be done.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Let the Neighbors Know.

They come, every now and then. These letters, well written, by educated people, telling of misfortune that has fallen and left them actually without food.

There is a pity to the stories they tell, enhanced by the bravery evident behind each sentence. They come from good folks, the sort of folks you and I like to meet and become friendly with, the sort of folks who are our neighbors, the sort of folks, in short, we are.

They write to this column, apparently under the impression it is able, by some magic power, to obtain jobs for the worthy, food for the hungry and new hope for the depressed.

But they all wind up with one plea, one urgency. "If you use any part of this letter, please don't give my name—for my neighbors don't know the plight of our family."

Understandable pride, of course. But still false pride. For I know no place in Georgia where there are not neighbors who would understand and be glad to help. For that is the sort of neighbors you find in Georgia.

Hungry Children.

Received one such letter yesterday morning. Written by the mother of a little family. Well written, well expressed, in a cultured, educated hand. And she tells how she feels she can no longer stand the sight of her little children, too brave to complain, yet going to bed with serious and sad little faces because, once more, there has been no supper. "I don't mind the gnawing ache of my own stomach, but to see them hungry," she writes.

She tells how her husband, a skilled electrician, lost his job. Then there were several temporary bits of work. Now nothing. And they are hungry.

She wants a job for herself, too. Anything, in fact, that will be the means of feeding those children.

The letter is dated from one of the smaller towns of Georgia. She says they have not asked for charity, in any form. "And the neighbors don't know."

Personally, I am convinced the neighbors should know. What are good neighbors for unless it is to lend a helping hand in time of trouble? It isn't fair to the good neighbors themselves to keep them ignorant of the fact that little children are having to go hungry and supperless to bed. I'll bet there isn't a one who wouldn't be gently knocking on the door, right now, with a tray of supper, if they only knew the need.

This is America, the home from which she writes is in one of the pleasantest and kindliest and most neighborly little towns I know. It is a town often in the news columns for happenings of kindness and renewed hope for the unfortunate and for great works of human restoration. And I just won't believe that neighbors in a town like that, in America, in Georgia, would permit babies to go hungry if they knew.

So, I'm Doing This:

With this belief, and confident it is the right thing to do, I'm sending the letter on to an acquaintance in that town. I'll ask him not to make the plight of this little family any more widely known than possible, but, in some way, to "let the neighbors" know. Maybe not the next door neighbors, the neighbors in the same block, but the neighbors in the same church, the neighbors who should know, those who profess allegiance to Him who said "even as ye did it to one of these, My little ones, ye did it unto Me."

And, who knows, when such neighbors are properly informed, there might be a job, again, for that husband or there might be some means provided for self-support, for husband or for wife.

Neighbors Overseas.

While on the subject of neighbors, don't you think that He who answered that question, "Lord, who is my neighbor?" by telling the parable of the Good Samaritan, would include among our neighbors the millions of pitiful war refugees in France who, if ever innocents did, have "fallen among thieves" and murderers?

This is just to mention, again, that Atlanta is still short of her quota for the Red Cross fund for those refugees. Give all you can and, if you can't send a check, you can at least buy a ticket or two for the benefit concert to be given at the auditorium Sunday afternoon under auspices of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs.

All we can give won't be enough for the need—but we must give that all possible.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Tuesday, June 15, 1915:

"London, June 14.—Germany today claimed another decided success along the eastern line. Along a line extending over 43 miles the entire positions of the Russians were taken, with 16,000 prisoners."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Sunday, June 15, 1890:

"Don't drink ice water, to relieve thirst and make you cooler. A hot drink will be far better and will aid digestion."

Old Note in Wall

Tattered, but still legible, a slip of paper stowed away by workmen in a playful moment 65 years ago, was found in a wall of a station on the railway between Port Elizabeth and Addo, South Africa, and has been placed in the library of the South African Railways headquarters. "This station was built between March and September, 1874," the note reads. "The men who did the work came from England in 1873, and their names are H. Taylor, Tomlin I. Taylor, R. Tutton, N. H. Tutton, S. Phillips—Bricklayers."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

"Communist" Not Libelous NEW YORK, June 14.—Judge Ferdinand Pecora, of the New York supreme court, has given a timely ruling that it is not libelous to call a Communist, or anyone else, a Communist while the Communist party enjoys legal status, with the right to place on the ballot its candidate for public office, including the presidency. That decision disposes, temporarily but perhaps not finally, of a doubt which has hampered discussion of conspirators against the nation who, like stickup men, kidnapers and the like, use false names to cover their activities and claim to have been hurt—usually $250,000 worth—when they have been identified in print with their expressed beliefs and sympathies and known activities. With the cautious reservation that, on appeal, some higher court may decide that Communism is personally disreputable, while collectively legal, I now present another interesting problem which imperils the good name of any citizen.

I refer to the congressional immunity by which members of the national legislature and, I believe, of the state law-making bodies as well, are given the right not only to utter the most vicious and outrageous slanders on the floor but to print them in the official records and, further, by connivance with certain newspapermen to procure their further and much more harmful publication in the public press.

About two years ago Senator Sherman Minton, an Indiana New Dealer, in a bit of a pet about some personal controversy with a newspaper owner, offered a resolution, which was no credit to his intelligence, whereby any publisher would have had to guarantee and on demand to prove the truth of any matter printed in his paper—a measure which, as someone pointed out at the time, would have forbidden publication of the Bible.

Licensed To Lie It was a frivolous and petulant bill, and Senator Minton did not press it, but the incident called attention to the fact that at the very hour of offering a measure intended, as he said, to punish wanton defamation he himself was one of a very small group of Americans who are legally licensed to lie about anyone who displeases them, even to the extent of the most shocking accusations without the slightest evidence to back them up.

There was no answer to that, because it is true, as every senator and representative knows, and that the license is seldom abused does not impair the fact that the reputation of no American is legally safe from slander from this quarter. The citizens cannot call the senator or representative to account or sue him for the purpose of refuting a slander and proving that it was uttered in malice and for personal or political revenge.

The unpleasant reality and the further fact that the Congressional Record may be and has been used for purposes of blackmail have to be accepted.

By Quoting Record My question, however, is whether by quoting truly from the Congressional Record, which is without doubt a public record, a newspaper or blackmail publication of the public press may clothe itself with the immunity that was intended for members of congress for a legitimate purpose. This immunity was intended for members of congress alone, so that they might be free to express themselves in debate.

It certainly was not intended to relieve journalists or publishers of their ordinary responsibilities under the libel law. And the fact that the Congressional Record is a public record does not wholly answer the question, because it is a fact that some documents of public record are not covered with privilege and are to be printed only at the usual risk.

It would be wickedly unfair to hold that because allegations have been placed on file in a legal petition in the office of the clerk of a county court the press has a right to print them without responsibility. If this were permitted any vile person might use the courts for no other purpose than to defame and with no intention to present evidence in support of the charges. Moreover, in certain types of cases affecting domestic relations and juvenile offenses the papers are sealed and, although they are public records, may be published only at the risk of severe penalties for contempt.

Although I have been told that the Congressional Record is wholly privileged, I have learned of no decision on the point and have heard the question, like the one which Judge Pecora dealt with, is still open. To me it would seem that although the Congressional Record itself cannot be edited or suppressed, a liberty to quote slanderous matter from the Record in the public press has the effect of extending congressional immunity, with its right to lie and slander, to persons for whom it never was intended.

ONE WORD MORE

By HAROLD MARTIN.

During the absence of Ralph McGill on vacation his column will be written, from time to time, by guest columnists. Harold Martin, reporter and feature writer on The Constitution, acts in that role today.

NO YOUNG MEN TO TAKE THEIR PLACE More than once in recent trips to towns around Georgia I've heard from old doctors the statement that no young men are coming in to take their place.

The youngsters, they say, are going off to get a medical education and then are setting up their offices in the larger cities.

The trend, they say, works a twofold hardship. It works a hardship on the people of the rural communities, who do not have the medical service they should have. And it works a hardship on the old veterans of the little black bag who want to turn things over to a younger man and take it easy for awhile.

The public health doctor is taking the place of the young men to a certain extent, of course. By control of malaria and typhoid and the other diseases which used to keep the doctor humping, they have made a healthier race and one which does not need so often the services of a doctor.

But the public health service does not go into every county. And there's still a need for the doctor with the zeal of the oldster of horse-and-buggy days—the type of man who'll fight storm and flood to get to the bedside of a patient who needs him.

A MAN SET APART The financial rewards may be greater in the city. But the doctor is still a man set apart among men. Service to mankind still is, or should be, the primary force that motivates him.

The young man may feel that the rewards are too small. But I've talked to many a small town doctor lately. And they have done all right. They live in homes as nice as those of any of their neighbors. They have been able to educate their children. They never seemed to have suffered from hunger.

As one of them expressed it:

"It's mighty nice to get a cash fee from every patient. But if a man's baby is sick and I treat it and it gets well and he sends me a ham instead of money—well, I don't object to that. It's just as good a ham as I could have bought."

The young doctors are not alone in turning their faces away from the small home town toward the more promising vistas of the bigger cities. Young men and women in every walk of life have been doing it for years. Atlanta and her sister cities were built by the brains and labor of the youngsters who came to them from the small towns and the farm.

It's been going on for generations and the cities have profited. But Georgia's cities are not Georgia. Georgia is farm and town and city, and town and country need to have their own return to build within their native communities.

The colleges are recognizing this fact more and more every year. One night this spring I sat for two hours listening to a discussion of this need.

Leaders of Georgia were there. Young Emory men were there. And the subject was "What can we do toward going back to our homes and building something there—something lasting, something permanent, something that will help both us and our towns?"

Maybe it was the development of some new industry that would utilize the products of the community. Maybe it was the development of a marketing co-operative. It might have been one of a dozen things.

The point is, they were thinking of building their careers, not in Atlanta, not in New York or Chicago, but back home in the little places they came from.

THE TIDE MAY BE TURNING Not long ago in a news story I quoted an expert on such matters as saying that Atlanta was not reproducing its population, but that rural Georgia would continue to send its youth in thousands to keep the wheels of the city turning.

Mr. G. T. Christian, editor of the Elberton Star, took issue with this statement.

"As time goes on," said Mr. Christian, "rural Georgia will learn to take care of her own and to keep her children at home on the farm or in industry set up in rural communities."

Mr. Christian may be right. The tide has been flowing to the cities for generations now. Perhaps there are signs that it is turning. Listening to those Emory youngsters, trying to figure out how to make a place for themselves back home, seems at least to indicate that it is.

Meanwhile, you young medical graduates, there's already a place for you there.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

Not many years from now you will be out on your own—either earning a living for yourself or helping some man earn a living for both of you.

In the latter event, your man will wish to be proud of you—proud of your appearance, your behavior and your intelligence—and he will judge your intelligence chiefly by the way you handle money.

To a child or the mythical drunk sailor, money is merely something to spend—something that must be used quickly because it has the magic power of buying something to eat or wear or play with.

Many adults are like that, too. When they have money, whether much or little, they seem restless and unhappy until they get it spent. They may not crave the things that money will buy, they may not have set their hearts upon the possession of anything in particular, but once they have money in their pockets, they develop a feverish and covetous appetite that is omnivorous. Their difficulty is not to find something they need or deeply desire, but to choose among the many goodies and shiny pretties the world offers. And their fever does not abate till the last penny is spent.

A government study of housewives in New York some time ago revealed that irresponsible morons, entrusted with enough money to buy supplies for a week, invariably spent all of it the first one or two days and thus suffered a long famine to pay for a short feast.

Morons or not, the happy-go-lucky spenders are suckers easily hooked by a hard-boiled world.

Getting and using money is a game, and the only winners are those who realize that it is a game and play it intelligently.

We are all divided into two classes—the easy marks and those who fatten on easy marks.

Those of us who are easy marks have a good time, as children do, but we end on relief. We never think of money as something to keep, but only as something to spend. We never count our change or add a bill, and we are ashamed to ask for a lower price. We'd rather pay too much than to argue.

The others serve us, and they are suave and pleasant, never showing resentment, but in the end they have the money and we have empty pockets.

Money is made to use, my dear, but only the simple run a fever until they get it spent.

Love,
DAD.

Country Sold for Song

Discovery of a faded parchment among the forgotten papers of a lawyer's safe in Sydney, Australia, reveals that 100 years ago half of New Zealand was sold for $400 by Maori chieftains to William C. Wentworth, the explorer, "father of responsible government in Australia," and John Jones, a Sydney merchant. In addition to this sum, the buyers were to pay annuities to the chiefs. A few months later the Treaty of Waitangi was signed between Maori and British officials, and the British government obtained control of New Zealand, so that the Wentworth-Jones purchase never was actually carried out.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"That'll be two dollars plus a slight fine of ten dollars for disturbing the peace!"

Mass Production.

A chance errand took me past the state capitol and the grim old Fulton county jail the Negroes affectionately term the "Big Rock."

I hadn't visited that region in years, having avoided the capitol, evaded the jail and having no business whatsoever thereabouts.

Therefore I was amazed to see the building of "Capitol Homes," one of the governmental housing projects. This one is for Negro citizens.

The houses, rows of them built solidly together after the Baltimore fashion—there's an old example of it in Atlanta known as Baltimore place—are going up rapidly. A huge steel crane handles materials deftly. The blocks of homes are of brick, with steel stairs, a precaution against danger in case of fire. They should be comfortable.

Even a layman could see the advantages of mass production in such house building. One set of plans, one set of dimensions. You and I wouldn't like a house identical with every one in the neighborhood, but the tenants of these will not mind. It's a rental project—and the units will be far superior to the shacks which most of the prospective tenants now occupy.

By the way, an architect told me an odd story about these housing projects. Or, at least, the one he was working on. The government will not permit back doors. Cost too much. So everything must come in the front door. If a laundress wishes to hang the clothes on the backyard line she must lug the wash out of the front door and around the block to the back. And back again. I don't vouch for that. But the architect told me.

Thanks a Million!

It's fine to know folks haven't forgotten.

My desk is stacked with letters and telegrams from former readers who say they're glad to see my stuff back in type. My home 'phone has been ringing for days. Do I appreciate it? Who wouldn't?

I wish I could write a personal letter to every one of these good friends—but I can't. I've never learned to dictate a letter which sounds like anything but a form out of a book. And I couldn't type enough of them in a week.

So you thoughtful friends who wired, wrote or telephoned will please take this as personal thanks. If my new associates on The Constitution like me as much as I like them, I hope the column will be right here until the pallbearers tote me to my last rest.

Bedspread Beam.

The radio beam which guides airplane pilots through darkness and fog has become familiar.

But it remained for A. C. J., of The Bartow Herald, of Cartersvills, to dig up a new road guide for motorists. In his "Column Six" he says:

"The way some people give directions tends to confuse rather than aid a motorist, but a filling station attendant in telling how to get from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Atlanta, Ga., had a hop on the ball when he said, 'Just keep between the bedspreads, and you can't get lost'."

A Hollywood press agent says nation is weeping because Dorothy Lamour has cut off her hair.

All but me. Until this was called to my attention I didn't know Miss Lamour had any hair—or ears or nose. They flash those pictures on and off so fast that one really can't bother about minor details.

Flying John!

Nobody in Georgia has a better time than John A. Davis, business boss of The Albany Herald, unless it is the guests he takes along on his weekly fishing trips to the Gulf coast.

I kept up with John's flying journeys until I ceased to get the Georgia exchanges. Now, I am rejoiced to see he is still driving and fishing—and occasionally catching a fish. The current issue reveals that he and his party journeyed all the way to N'awleans. How does a newspaper man—even in the business department—ever accumulate enough time and coin to travel that far?

All Is Ready For Red Cross Fund Concert

Benefit at Auditorium Tomorrow To Feature Atlanta Stars.

As Atlanta's Red Cross War Relief Fund drive moved steadily upward toward its $100,000 mark—yesterday's total being $52,819.52—everything was reported in readiness for the brilliant benefit concert which will be staged tomorrow afternoon at the Municipal Auditorium to raise relief funds for the Allies.

Sponsored by the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, the concert, to begin at 3:30 o'clock, will feature the Atlanta Philharmonic orchestra, augmented by the WPA orchestra, songs by Minna Hecker, gifted Atlanta singer; Robert Harrison, well-known violinist, and selections by a male quartet composed of Paul Overbay, Stanley Perry, Haskell Boyter and Leland Mackay.

Lindner to Direct.

Georg F. Linrner will direct the orchestra, which will be composed of 60 pieces. Miss Hecker will be accompanied by Irene Leftwich Harris, and during her singing of "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," C. I. Bradley will play the flute obbligato.

Bishop H. J. Mikell will open the program, after which the entire audience will unite in singing "America" while Dr. Charles A. Sheldon Jr. plays the organ.

Closing event on the musical program will be a series of special piano selections by J. T. Pittman with Mrs. Harriette Hirsch playing the second piano accompaniment.

Ticket Sale Brisk.

Miss Nana Tucker, well-known Atlanta musician and chairman of the federation's music committee, planned the concert with the aid of Mrs. Harold Cooledge, president of the Atlanta Music Club; Mrs. Charles Chalmers, who will accompany Mr. Harrison; Miss Helen Knox Spain, Mrs. Mozelle Horton Young and Mr. Boyter.

The ticket sale for the concert is in charge of Mrs. E. Raymond Johnson, who reports a splendid response during the advance sale. However, she pointed out there are still plenty of good seats available.

Bellboy Finds, Checks Bag Holding Diamonds

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 14.—(AP)—A jewelry salesman walked off and left his bag in the lobby of a hotel.

Some five hours later a bellboy, not knowing to whom it belonged, placed the bag in the checkroom. Later in the day the frantic salesman came looking for it. The bag contained mounted diamonds valued at $15,000.

Girls Warned To 'Beware of Sophistication'

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Convention Hears Group's Founder.

Sounding a warning to young people to "beware of sophistication," Walter W. Ross, of Kansas City, president of the Educational Foundation and founder of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, last night made the keynote address to the more than 300 delegates to the southeastern regional convention of the organization assembled at a downtown hotel. The convention opened yesterday.

"Sophistication, to young people, is a protection against being 'taken in,' yet, how many times is it the very thing that takes them in. Cultivate the open mind, honestly endeavor to be constructive in your activities and then don't worry about being called a crackpot. The use of the term never bothered Edison," he said.

The address, titled "New Horizons," largely was an account of the value, to the individual, of membership in Beta Sigma Phi. Purpose of the organization is to create an intellectual honesty in the approach to the arts, he said.

"Too many people read a good review of a book, and then praise the volume to the skies. Unfortunately, they never bother to read it. The musical composition they hear frequently mentioned by their friends is the one they buy for their phonograph even though they have never heard it, and probably don't like music anyway."

Regional officers will be elected at East Lake Country Club at 1 o'clock this afternoon following a breakfast at 11 o'clock this morning. Presentation of the Beta Sigma Phi cup for outstanding achievement to one of the 77 chapters in the area which is represented at the convention will feature the annual banquet tonight at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Banks Ready To Meet Demands, Senators Told

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—A spokesman for the American Bankers' Association told senators today that the banks were in excellent condition to meet credit demands of any emergency.

A. L. M. Wiggins, Hartsville, S. C., testified before a senate banking committee that the chartered banking system "never had greater deposits, never has been in sounder condition, and at the same time has the staggering total of $6,600,000,000 in excess reserves."

Boy Wounded by Fish Which Was 'That Long'

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 14.—(AP)—Twelve-year-old William Tolkkinen was truly a fisherman to the last. He waded into a creek and the moment he dropped his line he got a bite. Suddenly William screamed. A fin had pierced his leg.

Somebody thought he was drowning and called police. When police arrived they found William seated on the bank, nursing his bleeding leg and moaning. "Heck! He got away and (illustrating) he was that long, too."

Sullivan Urges Definite Alien Control Steps

Tells Lions U. S. Arms Program Faces Sabotage Danger.

Definite steps to regulate aliens and prevent any efforts to sabotage America's armament program were urged upon the Atlanta Lions' Club yesterday by Commissioner Lanius E. Sullivan, of the State Department of Public Safety.

He declared, however, that "independent, uncontrolled, self-appointed vigilante groups" should be suppressed and that the public co-operate "by keeping down unfounded rumors" and "loose talking that doesn't do anything but stir up unnecessary excitement and discord."

"We have received reports that as high as 60 per cent of the personnel in some of our big manufacturing plants is made up of foreigners who migrated to this country during the past few years," he said. "A great many industrial leaders have been rather lax in their support of American-minded citizens."

West Coast Problem.

The speaker declared that many of the west coast airplane factories "are infested with Nazi and Hitler admirers" and he added: "One writer on the west coast even went so far as to say that if you want to keep your job in an airplane plant you should take a course in broken English."

All civic organizations were besought to bring pressure on their congressman for passage of a law requiring immediate registration of all firearms.

Slack System.

"Our system is so slack that we enforcement officers have no way of telling how much arms and ammunition may be stored up in the house or the business establishment of some foreign representative in our country," Sullivan declared.

"I notice the judiciary committee of the senate has passed favorably on this legislation, and I notice, too, they are considering a law to require the fingerprinting of all aliens. This law should have been effective for the past five or ten years, and it would not be robbing any honest, patriotic American citizen of his freedom if they made it compulsory that every foreigner, who has come into this country for the past five or ten years, go down and get himself fingerprinted today."

AAA PaysFarmers Over 506 Million

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—American farmers received $506,179,199 for co-operating with last year's soil conservation and crop production control programs, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration reported today.

Administrative expenses in connection with the programs totaled $14,181,603. The payments and expenditures did not include those made under the sugar control program and parity payments to co-operating producers of cotton, corn, wheat and rice. The sugar and parity payments totaled about $260,000,000.

Visiting Relative Places Baby on Step as Joke

SALT LAKE CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Howard R. Bush found a baby in a basket on his doorstep. He called police. Then in walked G. F. Bush, of Grand Island, Neb., to make brother Howard a surprise visit.

G. F. said he had placed his 7-week-old son on the doorstep, then hidden near by just to observe his brother's consternation.

Council Offers Boys $5 To Catch Lake Catfish

LINCOLN, Neb., June 14.—(AP)—What has happened to the barefoot boy of yesterday?

The city council has offered $5 to the catcher of a 12-pound catfish in a lake here. A councilman explained, "We must do everything for the kids. This will encourage them."

Jackson Asks Registration of AllNon-Citizens

'Increased Vigilance' in Treatment of Aliens Pledged.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Attorney General Jackson pledged "greater strictness" and "increased vigilance" in the treatment of aliens today, and called also for a registration "of all non-citizens who are in our midst."

Addressing the immigration and naturalization service employes, who came under the Justice Department's control today, Jackson said that the doctrine that any person may come to the United States "unless it is shown that he is a menace must at least temporarily yield to the policy that none shall be admitted unless it affirmatively appears to be for the American interest."

He cautioned, however, against "hateful or unjust treatment of loyal non-citizens" lest it "have the result of making them the prey of those who would organize a 'fifth column' here."

Heretofore the immigration service has been in the Labor Department.

Immigration Commissioner James L. Houghteling told reporters that a plan was being worked out for a much closer watch of the country's borders. Use of two-way radios in border patrol cars has proved effective, he said, and will be extended.

Under legislation pending in congress for registration of all aliens in this country—estimated at 3,500,000 — the immigration service probably will undergo considerable expansion.

Barley Cut, Wheat Crop Planted, Barley Returns

But he says he harvested a field of barley last year, then last fall planted the same field to wheat. Up came a nice field of barley, but nary a stalk of wheat.

City's Receipts Rise $111,351 For '40 Period

General Tax Revenue During First 5 Months Declared Cause.

The Atlanta city government was in the black yesterday to the tune of $111,351.65, in a comparison of collections for the first five months of 1940 showed, according to figures compiled by City Comptroller B. Graham West.

Total municipal receipts through May, 1940, were listed at $5,611,931.95, as compared with $5,500,550.30 for the same period of 1939 and general taxes were responsible for the increase.

The first five months of this year brought $3,325,707 into municipal coffers, compared with $3,167,252 for the same period of 1939, and showed an increase of $159,455 for the current year.

Water receipts also were up for the current period, being listed at $999,771 as compared to $907,513 for the corresponding period of 1939, or an increase of $92,258 for the current year.

Several other city departments, however, showed a decline. The 1940 receipts of the recorder's courts were carried at $164,184 as compared with $181,067 for the same period of 1939. This was a loss of $16,883 in revenue, but court costs dropped about $24,000 for the current year's five months.

Business licenses also declined. The 1940 receipts were $265,379, while 1939 collections amounted to $269,369, exceeding 1940 collections by $3,990.

West pointed out that the larger collections in taxes for the early months of this year means that less will be collected from that source in the last months of the year. This is because the tax rate is fixed, and large early collections leave less money due the municipality in later months.

He expressed the opinion, however, that current year's receipts probably will equal those of 1939 on the basis of present figures, but added "we can't tell yet just what the picture may be next December."

'Defense Housing' Loans Approved

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today inaugurated a housing program for the families of enlisted men and civilian employes of the army and navy.

The chief executive approved United States Housing Authority loans of $1,305,000 to the Montgomery (Ala.) Housing Authority for construction of 424 dwelling units at the Maxwell field army air base and of $643,000 to Pensacola, Fla., for construction of 200 units at the Corry field naval air station.

Nathan Straus, USHA administrator, said that today's loans were the first of a number to be made for "defense housing projects."

Five Japanese Beetles Discovered in Florida

GAINESVILLE, Fla., June 14.—(AP)—The Japanese beetle has been found in Florida. Discovery of two beetles each at Miami and Jacksonville and one at Tampa in connection with the state-wide trapping activities of the United States Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine was reported to the state plant board by Dr. Wilmon Newell, plant commissioner.

The beetle previously had been found as far south as Charleston and Atlanta.

More Than a Sheet of Paper

The paper on which this advertisement is printed is more than just a sheet of newsprint made from Southern pine pulp. It is unmistakable evidence that we people of the South are doing something.

Long ago we discovered that the sections which produce raw materials only—cotton, wood pulp, ceramic clays, mineral ores—remain poor; while states which manufacture those products into finished articles grow rich and populous.

Now we are doing something toward processing our own raw materials. This newsprint, made in the South from Southern pine, is proof.

Another proof is the two new steam-electric power plants having a combined generating capacity of 160,000 horsepower planned or under construction at Atlanta and Macon. This power will be available for every type of industry in Georgia.

GEORGIA POWER COMPANY

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Sunday's lesson, the Book of Haggai, is an appeal to the people of God to complete the temple in Jerusalem. Perhaps we should quickly review a bit of history here. In the spring of 536 B. C., 50,000 Jews returned from captivity in Babylon to Jerusalem. They found the historic city of their fathers in absolute ruin. Fifty years before Nebuchadnezzar had destroyed the city. The returning Jews had raised the magnificent sum of approximately $400,000 to rebuild the temple, but the money was insufficient to complete the temple, and the stubborn opposition of the Samaritans, aroused by the Jews refusing to allow them to bring their idol worship into the new temple, delayed the work for 14 years. It looked as if it would never be resumed.

Haggai and Zechariah, in the year 520 B. C. called the Jews back to the task, and within four years the work was completed. Haggai's appeal may be considered under four distinct steps: first, the summons to rebuild; second, repeated messages of encouragement; third, a proclamation of perseverance; fourth, the co-operation of Zerubbabel, the civil leader in Jerusalem.

Without the courage and faith to Haggai, the second temple would have been completed. The Jews had promised to rebuild the Lord's house, and they fully intended to keep their pledge, but they had fallen into great difficulty and they lacked leadership. They reasoned among themselves that it was not the time to carry out their promise to the Lord. They fell into the deadly fallacy of taking difficulties as a reason to give up.

Haggai pointed out the fact that they had built good homes in which to live, ceiling them with cedar, while God's house remained incomplete. He warned them against selfishness. He told them that they could not prosper so long as they withheld from God—that little harvests would continue—that they were putting their money in bags full of holes. "Put God first," declared Haggai, "if you wish to enjoy true prosperity. He urged them to go to the hill country and get fine timber for God's house. They did. They also secured the finest stone, and the building was completed.

"The people did fear Jehovah," the prophet's grand comment on this great achievement. Victory crowned their effort, and the people rejoiced greatly.

The golden text for Sunday's lesson is taken from Hebrews. "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking our assembling together as the custom of some is." A fine lesson for our day and generation, and I pray we shall carefully consider it.

James W. Smith Succumbs Here At Age of 62

Atlanta Manufacturer Had Been Ill for Three Months.

James W. Smith, 62, senior partner of Smith & Nelson, Atlanta manufacturing company, died yesterday at his residence in the Pershing Point apartments after an illness of three months.

A native of Concord, N. C., he had been a resident of Atlanta for more than 40 years, during which time he was associated with the Western Electric Company and the Graybar Electric Company for 20 years, and later the Columbus Iron Works for a number of years.

He was the son of the late James M. and Mary Smith. He was a thirty-second degree Mason.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Coffey, of Knoxville, Tenn.; three sisters, Mrs. C. D. Savage, of Kanapolis, N. C.; Mrs. C. D. Bacon and Miss Annie Smith, both of Concord, N. C., and two brothers, Joseph A. Smith, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Thomas J. Smith, of New York city.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill. The Rev. Herman L. Turner will officiate. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Hiawassee Alumni Meet Tomorrow

The Hiawassee Junoir College National Alumni Association will hold its annual convention in Hiawassee tomorrow. Exercises will include the unveiling of a granite monument containing the names of every member of the alumni association and members of the college faculty.

Doctors Oppose Undertakers For 'Neighbors'

Zoning Board Rejects 'Psychological' Objection of Society.

There was some little rumor about the immutable law of "convenience and necessity" yesterday afternoon at the city hall.

And it all came about when a committee of doctors from the Fulton County Medical Society appeared before the city board of zoning appeals to protest the proposed erection of a replica of Mt. Vernon, George Washington's Virginia home, for use as a mortuary by Awtry & Lowndes, long established Atlanta enterprise.

Dr. C. C. Aven, former president of the medical society, backed by Dr. Major Fowler, chairman of a campaign committee seeking to raise $75,000, to construct a new home for the medical group on a West Peachtree street lot adjacent to the proposed site of the mortuary, wanted it known that the projected funeral home would be a detriment to the doctors, their plans and their aspirations.

They insisted that Joe W. Awtry and his colleagues find another spot on which to build their replica of Mt. Vernon.

William A. Fuller, attorney representing Awtry, said the doctors had only "a psychological, but no legal objection."

Carnegie Way Traffic Plan To Be Revised

Spring Street Channeling Will Be Removed To Speed Travel.

Channeling of traffic at Spring and Carnegie way will be revised because of objections of merchants, members of city council's police committee decided last night after an inspection of the installations.

Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen, committee chairman, said removal of six of the 4½-inch concrete line markers would improve the flow of traffic and at the same time eliminate the more serious complaints. He proposed to request the traffic bureau to make the corrections early next week.

In one of the shortest committee sessions in several months, the committee approved petitions for renewal of about 350 beer and wine licenses and 150 liquor store licenses. It also postponed for another two weeks action on a petition of F. M. Beusher, of Tampa, to operate a fleet of taxicabs in Atlanta.

Germans See Beaten France Within 10 Days

Nazi Leaders Boast Separate Peace Will Be Signed.

BERLIN, June 14.—(UP)—France will be beaten to her knees within 10 days and forced to sign a separate peace, Nazi leaders boasted today as the green-gray tide of Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg swept along the boulevards of Paris and smashed the "cornerstone" of the Maginot line at Montmedy.

Not content to parade in the glory of their capture of Paris, where German troops are marching down the boulevards for the second time in 69 years, Hitler's forces pushed on southward on both sides of the fallen city in "pursuit" of scattering Allied forces, it was said by the high command.

The French were said to be in "headlong flight and abandoning great quantities of equipment which cannot be replaced."

Possible War Service For Private Yachts Seen

BOSTON, June 14.—(AP)—That private yachts were being accepted for possible war service was indicated today when the navy took over, for $1, the 100-foot motor cruiser Gypsy from Robert F. Herrick, Boston attorney.

Naval officers here said they knew of no similar transaction since the last World War.

Six Navy Bombers Leave California for the Allies

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 14.—(AP)—Six United States navy Curtiss dive bombers took off today for New York, where eventually they will be turned over to the Allies. The six planes, about a year old, have been used by Scout Squadron No. 7 of the Marine Corps Reserve.

Romance, Fun Enliven Films Showing Here

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Romance fulfilled lightly, seriously, amidst a war, in Hollywood and in an oil town—that's your screen bill of fare for the current week.

The motion picture of the week is "My Favorite Wife," at Tommy Read's Fox, a sprightly comedy whose sophistication and actors evidently got some sequences through the Hays office on their words of honor alone.

Not a class picture, but one in which cast and story are good and the film is very entertaining is "Star Dust," which Billy Pratt is screening this week at the Paramount. Manager W. T. Murray has all the trade of the sentimentalists, both young and old. He's offering the No. 1 lovers of the film world, Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, in a dripping romance slightly shaded with murder, "21 Days Together."

The Kiddie Revue is better than ever at the Grand, and the feature Eddie Pentecost has playing with it, "Florian," is a sentimental story of horses and broken-down social orders. Bob Burns as a card sharp turned religious—temporarily—is Earle Holden's laugh offering at the Capitol.

FOX OFFERS MISHAPS OF DUNNE, GRANT

Irene Dunne and Cary Grant are teamed again with comedy the motif in "My Favorite Wife," at the Fox, which is essentially the same plot as "Too Many Husbands," with sexes reversed.

However, this newer version of a twisted Enoch Arden tribulation adds zest to dialogue by having the missing wife shipwrecked for seven years on a tropical Garden of Eden with one Randolph Scott as an only companion. Long enough for Grant to have Miss Dunne declared legally dead, marry Gail Patrick, and have nightmares about Wife No. 1 when he discovers she and Scott were marooned together.

This is the first co-starring comedy for Miss Dunne and Grant since the award-winning "The Awful Truth." It's plenty good, but not that good. Amusement is added by Scott in his Tarzan acts, and by Gail Patrick as the honey and molasses No. 2 wife who sleeps alone and doesn't like it on her own honeymoon. Miss Dunne did manage to time her reappearance before night fell. The dialogue goes on from there.

"STAR DUST" HOLDS LAUGHS AND LAUGHS

"Star Dust" has been advertised as the life story of Linda Darnell, or how a small-town girl broke into the movies. No real life story would be as funny as this.

This Paramount theater feature is entertainment most all the way, except in a few instances where choppy direction hinders. It has a laugh-studded cast—Roland Young, Donald Meek and Bill Gargan. John Payne, the boy with the handsome smile whom we'd like to see more often, is Miss Darnell's one and only.

Music is added by comely Mary Healy honeying out with "Star Dust," "Secrets in the Moonlight" and "Don't Let It Get You Down." If you'll see this film of Hollywood laughing at itself with your pleasure-seeking mind wide open, chances are you'll find it most acceptable cinema.

LEIGH, OLIVIER APPEAR IN LOVE SCENES

Some years ago, before any of us in this country knew much about Laurence Olivier and were yet to hear of a fiery-eyed English actress called Vivien Leigh, these two current-day heirs to the old Fairbanks-Pickford title of "Filmland's Sweethearts," made a picture together.

It was called "21 Days Together," and there are those gossip writers who insist it was during the making of this hurriedly-put-together dripping romance, in which they were called upon to kiss on several occasions, that they first fell in love.

The picture never played America. But now, with every romantic heart wanting to see them together, it has been brought out. The Rialto has it. The dresses are a little long, and Olivier is not quite the dark handsome hero he is today, but the essence is there. And the picture works through a London murder trial slowly enough for the audience to get good looks at the lovers. The plot is extremely melodramatic and romantic, which is all the public seems to care about in regards to these stars—together.

BURNS DEALS OUT FUN AT CAPITOL

Those of us who indulge in a friendly game of poker, occasionally, will find amusing the card tricks of Deacon Bob Burns in "Alias the Deacon" at the Capitol.

A card sharp by profession, the Deacon hitch-hikes into a little oil town, sees a widow woman being taken advantage of, does a little dealing from the bottom himself, to throw the banker and his crooked shuffling of the business deck into the hoosegow. Mischa Auer, in a comparatively minor part, adds some comedy of his own.

KIDDIE REVUE CALLED BEST YET

Without hesitating, I'd call the twelfth annual Kiddie Revue the most professional-like offering in the series of local talent offerings at Loew's for the benefit of the milk fund of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, and its companion feature, "Florian," on the screen, will appeal to all horse lovers.

The Kiddie Revue this year is done in two motifs—a broadcasting station and a battleship. While there is the usual array of tapping and singing, all of which is pretty much alike, a novelty has been worked into the presentation of each and the "show is kept moving." The patriotic setting of the battleship provides for a grand climax. All 117 members of the cast are to be congratulated.

Robert Young and Helen Gilbert star in "Florian." It is a heart-rending story of love for horses and a horse's love for man, set in the Austria of Franz Joseph before the war, and moving through the broken-down social order of post-war revolution. Through its royal horses, the picture seems to be calling to a modern war-torn world that in the end, blood will tell. Charles Coburn gives another magnificent performance as the doctor who sees in America the fulfillment of all civilization's dreams.

Scholarships Won By Five Georgians

Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, announced award yesterday of five educational scholarships.

Roy H. Gill, Brooks county superintendent of schools, has been awarded a scholarship to Peabody College for Teachers. Similar awards go to W. T. Bodenhamer, of Tifton, and W. T. Edwards, of Cairo.

Mrs. J. C. Brown, of Decatur, was awarded a music scholarship to the University of Cincinnati, and William Huffmaster was awarded a scholarship to the Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Col.

Surplus Foods, Clothes Barred To State Aliens

Welfare Department Head Issues Order Under Rivers Policy.

Braswell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, yesterday ordered that no surplus commodities or clothing be issued to aliens.

He asked that a careful investigation be made of all persons certified for food commodities, and that the rolls be purged of any alien recipients. This investigation will apply to all certified commodity recipients residing in each of the 159 counties.

Deen pointed out that this order is in line with the recent policy of Governor Rivers in urging control of subversive activities of aliens, Communists and fifth columnists.

Action Next Week Seen On Hatch Bill in House

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Representative Dempsey, Democrat, New Mexico, said today he had been assured that Majority Leader Rayburn would "try to find a place" on the house calendar for action next week on the Hatch political practices bill.

Virtual abandonment of an effort to adjourn congress at the end of next week has increased the chances that the measure will receive attention on the floor at this session. Approved by the senate, the bill would bar from political activity state and local officials who are paid wholly or in part from federal funds.

ENROLLMENT UP.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 14.—Preliminary enrollment figures released yesterday indicated an increase of almost 200 students over last year for the first session of summer school at the Georgia State College for Women.

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Success Story Dutch Leonard is being exploited in one of the finest success stories in baseball. No farther back in history than four years, he was not wanted by the National league.

Brooklyn gave up on him, sold him to St. Louis. The Cards never gave him a chance. They sent him off to Atlanta.

It must be admitted that some of us who write baseball had no idea what was running through Earl Mann's mind when he took him off the Cardinals' hands.

His record with Brooklyn was vague. He hadn't been used a great deal and his won-and-lost record was nothing to speak of.

So we asked Mann.

"Well," the canny young Cracker president replied, "his earned-run record is good. Maybe he'll win for us."

That was in 1936. Leonard, pitching mostly to Paul Richards, won 13 games in half a season. He injured his shoulder sliding. But still he was the best pitcher in the Southern league.

Then, in 1937, Dutch won 15 games. He was stricken with a kidney ailment and underwent an operation. But again he was the Southern league's best.

The operation for removal of a kidney stone was what the doctor ordered. Leonard was ready to go places. But the Crackers never got the full benefit of his skill.

Wise Clark Griffith had been watching Leonard and decided he'd be worth a try. So Griffith paid the draft price in '37.

Leonard was no sensation in '38, winning 12 and losing 15, but he had a hard luck, and last year he arrived with 20 victories for a second-division American league team.

Today he's the talk of baseball.

The story is told of a conversation between a couple of Cleveland Indians after Leonard had licked Bob Feller in 13 innings, 1 to 0.

"What in hell was he throwin'?" asked one member of the Indians.

"You got me, pal," replied a brother. "All I can tell you is that it wiggles its ears goin' by, and if you get a bat on it, it feels like you've laid into a dish of oatmeal. Darnedest delivery I ever seen in my life."

"How," he asked angrily, "do you expect anyone to hit it, when I can't even catch it. It comes over the plate all right, and it looks soft. But about the time I try to put a mit on it the damn' thing jumps and socks me in the leg. The guy's about to beat me to death with that dipsydoodler."

Earl Mann and Paul Richards are back of it and Clark Griffith is carrying on. It's a willingness to let him use his knuckler at his own discretion.

Atlanta gave him the green light on his flutter ball or butterfly pitch. Washington is doing the same. It's tough on catchers, but Leonard is a 20-game winner with it.

Big Break Leonard might have spent all his baseball days going from place to place and never having much success had it not been for Atlanta.

He freely gives credit to the Crackers.

Neither Brooklyn nor St. Louis realized he had anything. Mann and Richards did.

And so, through the treatment received here, Leonard has risen to the $15,000-a-year bracket as a pitcher with Washington.

Had Richards objected to calling for the catcher-killing pitch, Leonard probably would have drifted on out of baseball.

Small wonder, then, Leonard always speaks fondly of Atlanta and tells all who will listen that Earl Mann and Paul Richards are two of the finest people he has ever met in baseball.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 14.—(AP) Glen Fletcher, young right-handed pitcher, was purchased by the Indianapolis American Association baseball club today from the Columbia (S. C.) South Atlantic League team and will report to the Indians in Toledo tomorrow.

IN THIRD PLACE.

TEMPLE, Ga., June 14.—The Temple baseball club jumped to third place in the West Georgia League yesterday with a 5-2 victory over Villa Rica mills. Hammonds fanned eight visitors, and Harry Bolden got three for four for the locals. Temple goes to Villa Rica CCC Saturday.

Medwick got one hit and drove in a run.

Cleveland Club Is Investigating Indians' War on Manager Vitt

By RAY BLOSSER.

CLEVELAND, June 14.—(AP)—Looking at Oscar Vitt today, you'd say he was a man who had no fear of being kicked out of his job.

He looked calm. He joked. His Cleveland Indians, close to first place, talked about the war—the European one, not the battle they started when half of them painted the Tribe manager as the jittery, terrible-tongued Mr. Vitt, and demanded that he be fired.

"Well, I see we've chased the war off page one," Vitt remarked to the players at the usual clubhouse strategy session before today's 8-0 victory over Philadelphia.

"I'm sorry about the unfortunate thing that has happened, but I've talked the situation over with the big boss and he told me I'm remaining in charge and he's investigating the complaint which some of you made."

Vitt Stung.

But there was no doubt that Vitt, beneath the surface, was stung by developments. And there was considerable belief tonight the loquacious ex-third baseman, who appeared on the Cleveland scene in 1938 after pronounced success at Newark, was on the way out. If so, it was expected that Coach Luke Sewell, long-time Cleveland catcher who is popular with the players, would be named at least acting manager.

The "big boss" is Alva Bradley, Indians' president. Bradley smiling, too, conferred about an hour with Vitt to start an inquiry into charges of 12 players that Vitt ridiculed them and ruined their morale.

Vitt admitted remarking to Pitcher Mel Harder after Harder was knocked out of the box at Boston recently: "It's about time you won one, the money you're getting,' but said he "regretted it later." Another complaint was that Vitt stormed around the dugout and hammered the bat rack as the Red Sox were clubbing Pitcher Bob Feller, and said in Feller's hearing: "Look at him. He's supposed to be my ace. I'm supposed to win a pennant with that kind of pitching."

Since the dozen complaints included such key men as Pitchers Feller, Harder and Al Milnar, it was pretty obvious that Bradley would have to find a big peace pipe if he didn't discharge the 50-year-old pilot.

To Investigate.

"I'm going to investigate and see what it's all about," said Bradley, adding he had no idea how long it would take to complete the investigation.

"Ten years," offered the smiling Vitt.

Others known to have joined the protest included Hal Trosky, slugging first baseman; Third Sacker Ken Keltner, Outfielder Jeff Heath, Utility Infielder Oscar Grimes and even Catcher Rollie Hemsley, one of Vitt's favorites.

Talkative Oscar's immediate predecessor, Steve O'Neill, was discarded in October, 1937, because he was too easy on the players. Bradley tried to sign Bill McKechnie. But McKechnie, probably fully cognizant of the tradition that Cleveland managers don't keep their jobs very long, went to Cincinnati and drove the Reds to a National League pennant.

"When I learned Hemsley was in that delegation, that was the thing that crushed me," commented Vitt. "And that Bob Feller. Never in my life have I thought—much less said—anything that would hurt that kid. Oh, maybe I groaned in the dugout when Bob was being beaten, but that certainly was no reflection on him."

"Sure, I've been nervous in the dugout. What do the fellows want? A manager who doesn't care whether they win or lose?"

Grant Defeats Billy Gillespie, Reaches Finals

Atlanta Star Will Play Archie Henderson at Charlotte Today.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 14.—(AP)—Archie Henderson, of Chapel Hill, N. C., upset Gardnar Mulloy, coach of the Miami University tennis team, in semifinals of the southern tennis tournament today and tomorrow will meet defending champion Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, who conquered Billy Gillespie, of Miami, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Third-seeded Henderson, who cut a wide swath in spring tournaments, struck down Mulloy, seeded second, decisively, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5.

Henderson, flashing a powerful backhand, and Mulloy carried services in opening games of the first set, but Henderson broke Mulloy's service on the ninth and ran out handily. He came back to win the second easily. In the third set he trailed, 4-5, but there again broke Mulloy's service and brushed on to the finals.

Gillespie, member of the Miami University team, put up a brilliant battle against the veteran Grant, who has won the title eight times. After taking the second set, Gillespie built a 4-2 lead in the third, but Grant, playing carefully on returns, outlasted his young opponent in deep court play. Gillespie also started the final set with a two-game lead, gauging the pace accurately, broke through and came up with five games in a row.

Henderson had reached the semifinals with loss of but nine games in eight straight sets of the first four rounds. His victims, in order, were Joe Blackmon, of Bradenton, Fla.; Cortez Suttles, of Atlanta; Bud Hart, of Miami, and George Parks, of Miami.

Grant had achieved the championship round with victories over Rodman Robinson, of Charlotte; Campbell Gillespie, of the Miami team; John Ager, of Duke University, and Earl Bartlett Jr., the southern junior champion, from New Orleans.

Pat Berg Plays Betty Jameson In Finals Today

Defending Champ Beats Mann; Texan Downs 15-Year-Old Girl.

ST. LOUIS, June 14. — (AP) — Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, the defending champion, staged a sensational comeback today to defeat Mrs. Russell Mann, of Milwaukee, 1 up, on 20 holes and enter the finals of the women's trans-Mississippi golf tournament.

Miss Berg, dormie three, came back to square the match at the 18th hole. She then eased in a short putt for a par on the 20th to win the match.

Miss Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., golfer, advanced to the finals with a blistering 5-and-4 victory over 15-year-old Phyllis Otto, of Atlantic, Iowa. Miss Jameson won five of the last six holes.

The championship match will be a 36-hole affair, with the first 18 holes scheduled for 10 a. m., central standard time.

Midgets Race On New Track Here Sunday

Walt Raines, dynamic driver of his streamlined red and white No. 26, last Sunday afternoon became the first driver to win a second feature at the Atlanta Speedway, local home of the midget auto races. Raines has again entered the coming events with the avowed intention of becoming a three-time winner of the top event.

Raines stated to the officials "that the new dustless black-top surface would enable the drivers to get around the tricky course at 20 to 30 miles per hour faster, and that he would bet his winnings against a plugged-nickel that the present track record would be broken."

While this driver is at the present moment the top-bracket money winner locally, he nevertheless will be constantly confronted with the speed and driving skill of such pilots as Orville "Big" Stiff, Red Keel, Shorty Inloes, Bobo Breading, and others of the big-money class.

Sunday's races saw the largest field of starters ever to make the feature trek, when 14 drivers roared away in the feature.

Starting time will begin with the time trials and warm-up period at 2:30, and the first race at 3 o'clock. Atlanta Speedway is located on Memorial drive in the 900 block.

Cody Laird Named S.L.T.A. President

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 14. (AP)—The Southern Lawn Tennis Association elected Cody Laird, Atlanta, Ga., president today to succeed Dr. W. P. Jacobs, of Clinton, S. C. Pollard Parson, Nashville, Tenn., was elected secretary-treasurer.

At the meeting, held in connection with the 55th annual tournament here, the association voted to recommend to the intercollegiate tennis committee that it consider competition to determine the national college championship each year.

Bids for the 1941 tournament from Miami and Nashville were announced. The place will be decided next winter by the tournament committee.

Sharp SHOOTIN'

by AL SHARP

DAHLBENDER IS READY TO TAKE OFF.

Gene Dahlbender Jr. is getting harder to handle.

The 16-year-old Atlanta golfer has started adding the layers of tournament toughness it takes to make a champion.

Gene came from behind in two tough matches, winning after being 2 down with 3 to go in one and 3 down and 5 to go in another.

SHARP

Dahlbender wasn't losing to pars on that last nine holes. And he went on to win with three birdies and a bogey or two in his wake.

Fans who saw Gene swat that ball at West Point will tell you of drives that would have made Jimmy Thomson wonder what league he was in.

"The kid must have averaged 280," one of the spectators said. "And he surely didn't let up in the clutches."

It was a fitting start for Dahlbender on a circuit which will help him get the experience he will need.

And that is all the little man needs.

Try This One.

F. M. Boozer and Dick Beard have been playing golf together for years. They hold friendly battles at East Lake.

Boozer shot a ball under the bridge at the 7th hole, Course No. 2. He was still looking for it when the rest of the foursome walked up on the 8th tee.

"Hit one for me," shouted Boozer.

"I'll hit the first one for him, and find out what I did wrong," Beard said to a companion. "Then I'll knock mine right in the middle of the green."

Beard knocked the first ball ten feet from the cup. That was the one for Boozer.

The second shot he hit was for himself.

Hates Long Drives.

Beard must be something of a character, I learned while waving the white flag of surrender in a match with Boozer.

"You know that fellow doesn't like to hit long drives," mused my opponent as we shot the ears off defenseless rabbits in the high rough.

"Every time he hits a long one, it upsets him.

"'Doggone it,' he'll say, or words to that effect, 'I don't know what club to use when I hit a long drive. Now if I had hit my usual drive on this hole, I'd know what to do.'"

Yes sir, it takes all kinds. . . .

Mrs. Beck Wins Druid Hills Meet

Mrs. L. H. Beck won the low gross prize yesterday in the one-day ladies' golf tournament at Druid Hills Club.

Mrs. Mark V. Larned and Mrs. Henry Hubbard tied for the low net prize. Mrs. Max Mentzer won the prize for the least number of putts.

Mickey Baker Meets Archer In Golf Finals

Junior Medalist Whips Staton, Robert Turns Back McLemore.

By JORDAN BOTTOM.

In the championship consolation flight, Ridley Nichol defeated Gene Spratlin, 5 and 4, and George Wilson beat Joe Sewell, 7 and 6.

In the first flight, Jimmy McLemore defeated Leon Bragg, 4 and 3. Boyd Bullard beat Hollis Copeland, 1 up on the 19th hole.

Jack Copeland beat Buddy King, 4 and 2.

All matches except the championship one will be played this morning starting promptly at 9 o'clock. The second flight match will initiate the program and the others will follow.

The championship play will begin promptly at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Following this match, in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the championship consolation play will get under way.

A fish fry will conclude the events Sunday night at around 6:30 o'clock, at which time Dr. Julius Hughes will present prizes to the winners and runners-up in each flight.

Joe Medwick Stars Afield, Drives in Run

Giants Close in, Beating Pirates; Cards Win, Cubs Lose.

By JUDSON BAILEY.

BROOKLYN, June 14.—(AP)—Inspired by the vision of a National League pennant, the Brooklyn Dodgers performed like men of destiny today as they conquered Cincinnati's champion Reds, 2 to 0, on the two-hit hurling of Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin.

The debut of slugging Joe Medwick as a Dodger and the natural luster of a clash between the leading rivals for the flag brought out a noisy, typically Brooklyn crowd of 27,998 fans, 10,241 of whom were ladies' day guests.

Medwick was not exactly majestic at the plate, but he covered an amazing amount of territory in making six putouts in left field and batted in one of the Dodgers' two runs. This was more than satisfactory for the spectators, who cheered his every move.

The triumph gave the Dodgers a full game lead over Cincinnati with three games in the series still to be played tomorrow and Sunday. There were about 5,000 vacant seats in Ebbets field today, but officials of the Brooklyn club said there would be none for the remaining games.

From the time elaborate flag day ceremonies had been completed by the American Legion, the Dodgers never gave the Reds a chance. They scored on Gene (Junior) Thompson in the first inning and again in the third.

Hamlin, on the other hand, allowed only a single in the third and another in the seventh, each with two out, never gave a walk and never let a Red get to second.

Larry Miller Hurls Crackers to 8-to-1 Victory Over Lookouts

By JACK TROY.

That old saying about picking on a crip was illustrated last night by those noble lads, the Crackers.

They picked on Crip Polli and banged away at his successor, Al Baker, to capture the first game of the series, 8 to 1, before a ladies' night crowd of almost 6,000.

Polli retired after the fourth with the Crackers holding a 4-to-0 lead. Baker yielded four more. The Crackers' hit total was 13.

Unusual, indeed, was Emil Mailho's plate performance. The Cracker field captain, who has held the league batting lead for weeks, had a perfect night—five for five. Three of his hits were doubles.

Larry Miller, with a great variety of stuff, didn't yield a run until the eighth. While he gave up nine hits, they were scattered except in the eighth when he allowed three in a row.

MILLER'S SEVENTH.

The victory was Miller's seventh. He is the first Cracker to win that many games.

The game marked the debut of Pat Petrino, young first baseman from Fordham. Pat didn't get a hit, but he fielded flawlessly. He is remindful of Jack Bolling in the field. In fact, he is an improved edition if his initial performance is any indication.

To make room for Petrino, Jennings Poindexter was placed on the suspended list.

Willard Marshall was held out of the line-up last night, but he has improved so rapidly he probably will be back in action either today or Sunday. Jack Suydam played the full game.

Luman Harris will pitch the final game of the Lookout series this afternoon. Ken Ash probably will work for the Culyermen.

The Crackers opened the scoring in the first inning, capitalizing on a passed ball for their run. With one out, Anderson walked and Mailho doubled. Polli threw out Suydam. Then R. Hooks let a pitch get away and Anderson scored. McQuillen struck out.

WILD PITCH.

A wild pitch helped the Crackers score their second run in the second inning. Richards led off with a single and went to second on Bolyard's error. Chapman made a great catch of Williams' smash to left. With Petrino up for his first time in a professional game, Polli loosed a wild pitch and Richards scored. Petrino walked, Miller sacrificed and Glock grounded out, Letches to A. Hooks.

The Crackers scored again in the third without a hit bringing a runner across. After Anderson flied out, Mailho singled, took third on Suydam's single and scored on McQuillen's outfield fly.

It was a little different in the fourth when the Crackers scored two more. After two outs, four straight hits accounted for the tallies. Miller, Glock and Anderson singled, Miller scoring on Anderson's drive. Mailho doubled, scoring Glock, and Anderson, trying to score, was thrown out, Dejan to Letchas to R. Hooks, on a close play.

MISSES SECOND.

McQuillen failed to touch second on his would-be triple in the fifth, and so the Crackers failed to score again.

The Crackers took advantage of Lookout errors to score two more runs in the seventh. Mailho led off with a double. Suydam was safe when R. Hooks erred on his bunt. McQuillen's grounder was bobbled by Letchas and Mailho scored. Richards forced Suydam. Williams' grounder went through Letchas and McQuillen scored.

Finally the Lookouts scored a run. It was in the eighth inning. Three straight singles by Letchas, Chapman and Dejan ruined Miller's shutout.

The Crackers came back in their half on consecutive singles by Mailho, Suydam and McQuillen, with two out, to score their eighth run.

LOUISE SUGGS, NEW STATE CHAMPION.

Suggs Defeats McLaughlin, 2 and 1, for State Crown

16-Year-Old Austell Golfer Takes Five-Up Lead, Staves Off Rally To Win at Columbus.

By AL SHARP,
Constitution Golf Writer.

COUNTRY CLUB OF COLUMBUS, COLUMBUS, Ga., June 14.—The little girl with the big swing won her first championship here this afternoon.

Louise Suggs, 16-year-old Austell golfer, beat Loaine McLaughlin, of Columbus, 2 and 1, in the finals of the Georgia women's golf tournament.

Louise played beautiful golf on the front nine as she took a 3-up lead and after she had increased that lead to 5 up, it was just a matter of time until Miss McLaughlin was out of it.

However, Miss McLaughlin staged a brilliant rally which fell short.

5 DOWN AT 12.

After going 5 down at the 12th, the Columbus golfer shot pars on three of the next four holes for wins. But the holes were running out and Miss McLaughlin's rally was cut short when they halved the 17th to end the match.

Miss Suggs was even with women's par at 39 on the front side, losing two strokes to par on the sixth. She was five over women's par on the back side when the match ended.

Using a brassie off the tees because she did not get a chance to practice with a driver, what with graduation exercises at Austell High and exams, Louise had the gallery of about 200 fans whistling at the distance she got.

On two occasions, Louise knocked the ball 270 yards or so close to it you wouldn't know the difference. Naturally, the ball got a good roll on the sun-baked fairways, but those brassie shots were wallops any way you look at them.

EASY IRON.

Louise had an easy iron left to the eighth green, and she planted it within six feet of the cup for a birdie three after Miss McLaughlin had hit the green with a pretty long iron shot. Miss McLaughlin's drive landed in a soft spot and stuck, leaving her a tough try for the green.

Louise also made some fine recovery shots. She played her chips boldly, but gave few of her putts a chance.

To Miss McLaughlin goes a lot of credit for the fine golf she played.

She was not expected to give Louise much of a battle, but they were even through the sixth hole and Miss McLaughlin was playing pretty golf.

The sixth probably was the turning point. They halved it in 6's, but Louise topped her drive there and left the door wide open. Loaine had her distance with her drive, but it caught the rough. Louise came back with a fine recovery. Loaine topped her second shot. So they were both on in four and down in two putts.

TAKE ADVANTAGE.

Had Miss McLaughlin been able to take advantage of Louise's missed drive, there might have been a difference in the score.

In reaching the finals of the tournament, Louise beat Mrs. Conrad Kinyon, 6 and 5; Miss Carolie Dykes, 4 and 3, and Miss Martha Daniel, 3 and 2.

Two Atlantans Win Lower Flight Titles.

COUNTRY CLUB OF COLUMBUS, COLUMBUS, Ga., June 14.—Two Atlanta golfers won lower flights in the state's women's golf tournament here today.

Mrs. W. D. Tumlin beat Mrs. J. S. Mason, of Thomasville, 5 and 4, in the second flight finals. Mrs. Albert Donnaud took the second flight consolation with a 2-and-1 victory over Miss Virginia Woodruff, of Columbus.

In the championship consolation, Miss Eileen Stulb, of Augusta, beat Miss Grace Moore, of Atlanta, 7 and 6.

VOLS 14; SMOKIES 7.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 14.—Nashville combined a barrage of 16 hits with five Knoxville errors to defeat the Smokies handily today, 14 to 7, in the first of a three-game series.

The hard-hitting Vols drove Lefty Berl Richmond to the showers with a five-run flurry in the third inning, climaxed by Gus Dugas's home run poke with two mates aboard. They continued the assault on three other hurlers.

The Smokies blasted Ace Adams and Lefty Lee Rogers for 15 safeties, but the Vol flingers kept them scattered. Catcher Charlie Fallon homered for Knoxville.

Ken Overlin Licks Syracuse Fighter

Model Planes Due To Qualify This Afternoon at Northside

At 1 o'clock today rubber powered models will qualify at the Northside airport for the Southeastern Airplane Contest, sponsored by The Constitution with the Atlanta Aero Engineers as host club.

The two top prizes in the two-day meet are: A three-year course in aeronautics in the International Correspondence Schools and a trip to Chicago for the national model plane meet in July, given by the Atlanta Exchange Club.

For the longest single flight in the gas-powered events, which will be held from 9 until 6 o'clock tomorrow, a Milos chronometer wrist watch will be given by the Diamond Jewelry Company.

Gas models qualifying time is from 9 until 10 o'clock and from 1 until 2 o'clock tomorrow, with the events immediately following. H. R. Hudson, official National Aeronautic Association contest director, will be in charge of the qualifying and flights. Don't miss the rubber-powered models' flights this afternoon following the qualifying rounds at the Northside field at old Camp Gordon, near Chamblee.

Jack Dempsey Deadly Serious Avers Downing

By KENNETH GREGORY.
Associated Press Staff Sports Writer.

Fans will pay a $5.50 top to see the Boxer Jack Dempsey-Wrestler Cowboy Luttrell fight show in Atlanta's baseball park July 1. . . . Promoters say they already have received requests for reservations from seven states and it looks like they'll pack 'em in. On the surface, it seems the brawl is on the up-and-up, but there are plenty skeptical of the whole thing.

Promoter Jim Downing, lifelong friend of Dempsey's who just returned from New York where he signed the one-time Manassa Mauler for the show, reports the former world heavyweight champion deadly serious about the "feud" with the husky and somewhat wild man of the wrestling forces. . . . Incidentally, it's not one of those boxing-wrestling hybrids. . . . Both men are to wear regular fighting weight gloves and the Marquis of Queensberry rules will prevail.

Dempsey, approaching 45 years, weighs 215 pounds. He has kept in pretty good condition by refereeing wrestling matches around the country. . . . Luttrell is 34, boxed for about three years before taking up wrestling. . . . He is from Jacksboro, Texas, and claims he has never been knocked out. . . . Luttrell has a lot of clippings to show that he is a good puncher, at least in a free-for-all.

The Red Cross should get something like a couple thousand dollars out of the show. . . . There's one matter to be settled. . . . Dempsey signed for six rounds. . . . Luttrell signed for 10 and demands that many. . . . Promoter Downing thinks he'll get a compromise at eight.

SUCCUMBS—William Forman Dunbar, former manager of the Southeastern Underwriters' Association, died yesterday at his home after a long illness.

Wm. F. Dunbar Dies at 71; Was InsuranceHead

Former Southeastern Underwriters' Manager Had Long Illness.

William Forman Dunbar, 71, former long-time manager of the Southeastern Underwriters' Association, died yesterday at his home, 100 Peachtree way, after a long illness.

Mr. Dunbar retired in September, 1936, after serving as manager of the Underwriters' Association for almost 20 years—a position he took after completing a term as insurance commissioner of Tennessee.

He was born in Natchez, Miss., December 7, 1869, the son of William Forman Dunbar and Mary Conway Dunbar, nee Shields.

A graduate of Tulane University, where he received his law degree, Mr. Dunbar early entered the insurance business and during his long career maintained a close and active interest in it. He served as special agent for the Agricultural Fire Insurance Company in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi, and later became secretary of the Insurance Exchange at Memphis, Tenn.

A capable executive, Mr. Dunbar was well known through the south in insurance circles, and during his management of the Southeastern Underwriters' Association it became one of the outstanding organizations of its kind in the entire country.

Besides his insurance work, Mr. Dunbar possessed literary ability, writing many essays and much poetry, and was sought after as a speaker because of his story-telling ability.

He is survived by his wife, the former Virginia Heiskell, of Memphis; a daughter, Miss Augusta Dunbar; a son, William B. Dunbar; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunbar Murray, of Natchez, and a brother, Joseph Shields Dunbar, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill, with Dr. Ashby Jones officiating. The body will be taken to Natchez, Miss., this afternoon for burial.

Postal Receipts Gain in Decatur

Decatur postal receipts for the first 10 weeks of the second quarter show a 27.7 per cent increase over the corresponding period of last year, Postmaster Wylie West said yesterday.

With two weeks remaining in the second quarter, the Decatur office has handled so far $11,666.99 in postal transactions, an increase of $2,529.35 over last.

Head Wires and Meter Reveal Brain Injuries

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—The doctor can now wire your head with an electric meter and read whether your brain has been damaged by a head accident. The method was demonstrated to the American Medical Association today by Dr. H. H. Jasper and Dr. A. R. Elvidge, of the Neurological Institute, Montreal.

A couple of hairlike wires are pasted to the scalp and the electrical potentials that flow from them, due to the body's natural electricity, show what is happening in the brain. The wires even showed when the patients were only feigning brain troubles.

Fireproof Cotton Seen As New Industrial Boon

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 14.—(AP)—The burning match was tossed on the pile of fluffy white cotton. It went out, and left a smudge; but the cotton had not burned. There you have it—fireproof cotton.

"It's the greatest thing that's happened to the cotton industry, the Department of Agriculture believes," W. J. Heenan, an inspector of the department, said after tests here. The federal government has made an allotment of 500,000 pounds of this new treated cotton to a Charlotte manufacturing concern. The trick is performed, naturally, by chemicals.

Women Swap Notes on Change Marriage Makes Between Daughter and Mother

THESE WOMEN! -:- By d'Alessio

"All right, Miss Judson, suppose we put it this way: 'Do you promise to learn to love, make an attempt to honor, and perhaps—just perhaps even obey, in time?'"

By Caroline Chatfield.

"I'm crazy about my daughter's fiance," said a mother to one of her older friends. "He flatters me to death, makes over me and tells me that he knows I'm responsible for my child's fine traits and he can never get through thanking me for bringing such happiness into the world for him. Says he never ate such food as he's eaten at my table. The house seems to run on greased wheels. He can't understand how I manage so well with only one servant and still have time to go about, read and keep up with the times. Why, I feel like a queen when he comes to see us."

"I recall something like that, too," said the older friend, "but very faintly. You've got a grand surprise coming to you in a few months. You just wait until you go to visit in his home, expecting some more of the same; just wait until things are reversed and he is host while you are guest. Then you've got to do the pretty talk to him. After he's got your girl, it's another story."

"Your invitation comes and one fine day you set out all a-twitter with excitement, going to visit your married daughter in her new home. Naturally, you think everything will be as it was. They meet you. You can hardly wait to see the house. They usher you into the living room and one glance shows you the arrangement of the furniture is awful. They've spoiled what could be a lovely room. If only you could get your hands on the sofa and put it where it belongs, shift a few chairs and tables! You sit down to dinner and the poor child's inexperence is evident all through the meal. A few suggestions would simplify things for her unbelievably! You will make them. Only you remember this home belongs to your son-in-law. Your child is his wife. He won't thank you for criticisms or suggestions. He will resent your taking charge. You bite down.

"I tell you it's the weirdest sensation imaginable! You pinch yourself and argue, 'She's still my child. I have a perfect right to say anything to her.' Then the voice of wisdom cautions. 'You are guest. Her husband is host. If you want to make fair weather with him, if you want to be invited again, keep quiet. Don't violate his hospitality, even if you bite the end of your tongue off.'"

"That's a horrible thought," said the uninitiated mother. "I'd rather stay at home and never go to visit a married daughter. I don't think I could keep my mouth shut. I don't think I could play the part of a guest in my daughter's home!"

"Oh, yes you can, and after the shock of the first visit, after you get the hang of the changed relationship you won't have any more trouble. Really, my son-in-law and I are good friends. We are genuinely fond of each other. I enjoy visiting in his home, but I never let myself forget that it is his home and I'm his guest. I take what he offers, say thank you with my sweetest smile and softest words. I'm so thankful to him for making my child happy that anything goes with me."

In-law mama, do you know your place and do you keep it?

MY DAY: An Afternoon Spent With Many Visitors

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—I reached the White House yesterday in time to greet my luncheon guest, who entered at the same moment. The afternoon was a succession of callers, among them a group of 4-H Club representatives, who brought me two delicious-looking packages of products from the newly formed Atlantic County, New Jersey, Women's Market. I have ordered them sent to Hyde Park, for I always feel that there I am better able to appreciate special things of this kind.

A group of colored people also came to talk over conditions at the National Training School for Girls. The percentage of white girls sent to this institution is apparently growing less and less, so we have an opportunity for making this an outstanding model institution for the re-education of young delinquent colored girls. The present appropriation is entirely inadequate and has resulted in the staff not being able to do a good job. Too much is expected of them and therefore no real program of education or rehabilitation can be carried on.

I wish that I could feel that this administration would leave an improved condition in District of Columbia institutions as a memorial to the interest taken by the wives of the members of congress and the wives of administration officials. I cannot say, however, that I feel that any of us could leave here tomorrow with a sense of great accomplishment.

In the afternoon my old friend Mrs. Anne Winter, who for years was my grandmother's companion, arrived to spend the night at the White House with her friend Miss Marie Voydi, who is an attendance officer in the school system of New York City. Mrs. Winter is a character and the President always enjoys hearing her tell of things which have happened to her during the 80-odd years she has lived. She is a gallant spirit and nothing ever seems to daunt her.

Miss Thompson and I worked all evening, though for a part of the time she was a little discouraged with me because I kept falling asleep, which I think is the effect of returning to a fairly warm day and the relaxing Washington climate.

I held my last press conference this morning, but I promised if I came back for anything of special interest during the summer that I would call a special meeting. I hope that most of the ladies of the press will have some holiday and enjoy relaxation such as I look forward to and which is necessary for us all.

I have a number of guests coming to lunch today. A little later this afternoon I am going to visit the local Red Cross headquarters to see what they are doing. I hope I may be of assistance to the Red Cross in Poughkeepsie and in Hyde Park during the next few weeks.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "Now that you girls are more interested in paper dolls than in anything else, lets pack away some of your other things so you'll have more room."

Mother: I'll be glad when this paper doll craze is over! Your room looks like a cyclone had struck it all the time. I never saw such a mess!"

Pinafore, Sunsuit

By Barbara Bell.

A three-in-one pattern that pretty well takes care of your small daughter's hot weather outdoor togs, design No. 1990-B includes a morsel of play suit, an air-conditioned, eye-shading bonnet and a pinafore to wear when she's feeling more like a lady than a tomboy! The pinafore buttons down the front so she can easily put it on all by herself, and has an inverted pleat in the back, to give it flare and charm! All three are easy to make.

Yellow gingham, with brown for the curly-cues of braid, pink chambray with white or blue linen with pale pink—all these are smart fabric suggestions. And, of course, a seersucker outfit like this will be a joy both to you and to her; it's so cool and soft in hot weather, tubs out in a jiffy and needn't be ironed. Better send for the pattern right now.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1990-B is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 ensemble requires 3 1-4 yards of 35-inch material without nap; 3 1-2 yards braid.

Send, right this minute, for Barbara Bell's New Fashion Book! It's a brilliant pattern parade of the best spring styles, in designs that you can easily, thriftily make at home!

Make Hubby Conscious Of Clothes

By Yolande Gwin.

Maybe it had never occurred to you, but your One and Only has 10 pockets in his clothes!

Women who get up in the middle of the night for a search through hubby's pockets for money or clues of unfaithfulness, exist only in comic strips, and some movies.

Today there is a more subtle way of finding out, and anyway, who wants to lose beauty sleep to be a pocket pioneer?

But pockets have their problems. If Your Man is going to make a personal appearance somewhere tonight, don't let him ruin his sleek and casual man-about-town look by bulging pockets. He may use those back pockets for his extra handkerchiefs, his wallet, a flask maybe, and heavens knows what all. Then what happens to that niee straight backline? It will have more bumps than a mountain range.

It is the same with business suits. It is not necessary for him to carry extra packages of chewing gum, old letters, a bundle of receipts from the insurance company, a picture of the baby, boxes of matches, pipe, a large jackknife and scores of other things. This causes sagging pockets, and spoils the fit.

When he was a Boy Scout it was all right. But now that he is that Very Special Someone in Your Life, you do a little Girl Scouting.

You can do it some day when he is at the office and that evening if you are going out, suggest that he wear this particular suit. When he puts it on and is giving himself that last admiring and once-over look in front of your vanity mirror, say:

"Darling, what have you done! You look so slim! I do declare, if all men wore their suits with the well-groomed air you do, there would be a lot more heart trouble in the world! Honey, your hips looks like they have been sliced away!"

Woman's Quiz

Q. What articles are needed for a stain removal kit?

A. Absorbent cloths, medicine droppers, soap flakes, soap, fullers earth, iron-rust soap for removing iron rust and many other stains, 10 per cent solution of ammonium hydroxide for neutralizing acids, a detergent for removing grease stains or dirt on dark woolens, a potassium permanganate bleach, oxalic acid crystals for removing iron rust, Javelle water for a bleach, but note that it will remove color and injure silk and wool, acetic acid to neutralize Javelle water, peroxide, a mild bleach that may be used on silk and wool, glycerine for tannin stains, carbon tetrachloride as a grease solvent, amyl acetate to remove cod liver oil stains, turpentine to remove paint, sodium thiosulphate to remove iodine, sodium hydrosulphite a bleaching agent that will also remove dyes.

Q. Is it proper for a bride to exchange wedding gifts that have no particular sentimental value?

A. There is no reason why brides should not return to the store from which it came, any articles that she cannot use and obtain in exchange something that she needs. But if the gift has definite significance, or is marked with the bride's initials, it cannot be exchanged.

The Youngsters of Screen Like To Wear Pretty Clothes

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, June 14.—Here's a pretty dress for feminine 11-year-olds. Modeled by Gloria Jean, the summery confection is made of navy and white dotted swiss—self-belting—and with pleats in both front and back. The dress has novel buttons down the front, a green leaf with white, round trim. The same leaf-green shade is repeated in the piping on the collar and cuffs; the collar and cuffs are of printed white organdy.

Cottons are always a summer favorite. And this season again sees the younger set of Hollywood's film colony wearing cottons of all kinds.

Linda Darnell has an evening gown of two shades of fine voile, angel blue and buttercup yellow, inspired by one of the quaint frocks worn in "Brigham Young." The skirt is very wide, with the blue tone placed over an underskirt, equally wide, of the yellow. The upper part of the bodice, draped about the shoulders in southern belle fashion, is of the blue; and below is a snugly fitted midriff of the yellow. A bunch of cornflowers with long stems is thrust through a gold clasp at the right of the waistline. Slippers chosen for this dress are sandals of blue crepe with narrow gold piping. Her evening bag is shaped like grandmother's reticule, and made of shirred layers of the blue and yellow voile drawn up on a gold cord.

A new version of the print ensemble made its local debut the other day when Alice Faye came to lunch at the Brown Derby wearing a fitted, short-sleeved coat of printed silk over a slim dress of dark blue crepe. The background of the print was of citrine with a spaced and etched design of scarlet, dark blue, and purple mauve printed in small circles. The coat, unbelted and fastened at the front with a three-inch chain of old silver coins, the half-closed effect permitting the dark dress beneath to show. A large Breton of navy blue straw, navy blue kid pumps, and natural chamois gloves handstitched in navy blue complete the ensemble.

Mary Martin, at Ciro's with her new husband, Richard Halliday. The attractive actress wears a simple dinner dress of white chiffon, with short above-the-elbow sleeves. An added simplicity note—one string of pearls. A not-so-simple three-quarter-length ermine coat adorned the back of her chair.

Green crepe fashions the corselet waist and brief jacket of a casual costume worn by Brenda Marshall. The chalky white blouse is of jersey. The flared skirt is of black and white checked taffeta.

Ann Sheridan has a two-piece summer dress showing white jersey shirt and flared skirt of black, red and white striped seersucker. The full skirt, which has a snug-fitted waistband, is accented with an alternate use of the stripes edging the set-in pockets.

Anne Shirley has copied a pair of gloves she wears in "Anne of Windy Poplars." The gloves are of beige leather, banded across the knuckles and around the thumb with brown suede.

Easy To Turn the Backyard Into Family Play Yard

By Ida Jean Kain

Grown-ups don't play enough . . . and that's why we get neuritis, neuralgia, neurosis and rheumatism! Due to sedentary work, joints get stiff and ligaments lose tone. We don't wear out, we rust out!

What I'm trying to do is to scare you into turning your backyard into a play-yard. Probably your husband rides to work, sits at a desk all day and sits around all evening. Does he get any exercise . . . precious little! You do your housework, which is activity of a sort, but not the kind of exercise to keep you in good physical trim, to say nothing about your waistline. But if you would rig up a game or two in your backyard, the whole family could get fun and exercise out of it.

There are all kinds of games, adaptable to both small and large backyards. How about playground tennis? It's fun, full of action and requires not too much space. Instead of a tennis ball, you use a rope quoit or a small rubber ring, which is tossed rapidly back and forth over the net, which should be 4 feet 9 inches from the ground. All you need is a space about 20 by 40 feet and level enough to provide even footing.

Badminton is a swell game, and anyone can play it. All you need is a little space for the equipment, which consists of a net and two rackets and a shuttlecock. Batting the shuttlecock back and forth across the net is the best stretching and twisting exercise you can find.

The same net can be used for volleyball. It's fun to toss a ball across the net, and its exhiliarating exercise. Paddle tennis is another game to play with a net—this time stretched across a concrete driveway. For this game solid wooden paddles and a sponge rubber ball are used.

Another way to use a cement drive is for shuffleboard. The game is to shove wooden disks along with a long-handled cup and get the disks in the high score marks and off the lines. The markings look somewhat like a game of hop-scotch. Shuffleboard doesn't sound like action, but wait until you try it.

Tether tennis, sometimes called pole tennis, is a heap of fun. All you need is a pole 10 feet high to which is fastened an eight-foot long rope to which is attached a ball. The object of the game is to whale the ball with a tennis racket, trying to wrap it around the pole, with the opponent attempting to prevent it from winding. It's an amusing game!

There is also horseshoes, croquet and archery.

Drop in at a sporting goods store and ask for inexpensive games to play right in your own backyard. They have all kinds. You won't lose any appreciable number of pounds with the games, because exercise is not reducing, but you can lose inches, get a lovelier figure, step up the circulation and feel like a new person!

A Diagnosis Is Always Worth While

By Dr. William Brady.

A correspondent offers this little lesson in diagnosis for the benefit of whom it may concern:

Early in August I got a crimp in my back while leaning over the engine of my automobile. Consulted family doctor, who said it was prostate trouble, but he made no examination. I took the medicine he prescribed, and after a while felt better. Then in May I began having trouble again, and had to get up four or five times every night. Family doctor said it was the same old trouble of course, and that examination was not necessary—he knew what it was. Then I wrote you and asked if you could give me the name of a good doctor for prostate trouble. You recommended Dr. ——.

I still had faith in the family doctor, but continued to get worse. I had to call the doctor you recommended at 10 o'clock at night the first time. As soon as he examined me he said I had an abscess which had to be drained at once . . . called hospital ambulance, operated at 11:30 p. m. I was out in five days, and have been in fine health ever since—that was nearly three years ago. I am 61 years old and feel 30. I don't know how to describe the trouble so you will understand, but I wish you would write Dr. —— and get any professional information you may care to have. Anyway I feel I have to thank you and Dr. —— for saving my life. (Signed) . . . . .

It is immaterial precisely what the trouble was. The lesson is plain enough for him who reads. It recalls an early lesson in diagnosis I learned as an intern.

A laborer with delirium tremens received the digitalis treatment—enormous doses of tincture of digitalis, in fact enough to produce digitalis poisoning—and made a good recovery. As senior house physician on the ward at the time I was proud of the result of treatment. Nearly a year later, when my classmate, the junior intern and I had change places on the service, the same patient returned, again delirious, breath heavy with alcohol. My classmate, now senior, decided to use the digitalis treatment again. On the suggestion that we had better examine the patient carefully first, the classmate insisted he knew what was the matter, all right. So the patient received the first few enormous doses of digitalis, and at autopsy it was revealed that the man had been suffering from pneumonia and empyema.

Miss Betty DeKlyne Becomes The Bride of Frank J. Sharpe

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 14.—The study of the St. James Episcopal church here formed the setting for the marriage of Miss Betty Jane DeKlyne, of Atlanta, Ga., and Frank Jackson Sharpe, of Clarksburg, W. Va., which was solemnized this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Eugene Hopper performed the ceremony in the presence of members of the families and a few close friends of the couple.

The lovely bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Paulding DeKlyne, Jr., of Atlanta, and the groom is the son of Theodore Edwards Sharpe Sr. and the late Mrs. Sharpe, of Charlotte, N. C.

Mrs. Harry Eugene Stark, of Knoxville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and only attendant. She was gowned in a shell pink linen ensemble with which she wore a matching hat and white accessories. A shoulder bouquet of orchids completed her costume.

The lovely bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Clifton Walker Carter, of Walhalla, S. C. The bride was gowned in navy blue sheer trimmed with a ruffled white organza collar. Navy blue accessories and a shoulder spray of purple orchids completed her costume. The bride's only ornament was a pearl and diamond necklace belonging to her mother.

Mrs. DeKlyne, mother of the bride, chose for the wedding a model of burnt straw chiffon in a printed design, with which she wore a matching straw hat and white accessories. A shoulder spray of gardenias completed her costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and New York City, after which they will reside in Clarksburg, W. Va. Mrs. Sharpe chose for traveling a moss green plaid suit with which she wore a white felt hat and brown and white accessories. A shoulder spray of orchids completed her ensemble.

Among out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Walker Carter, of Walhalla, S. C.; T. E. Sharpe, Mr. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eugene Stark and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sellen, of Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Jane Smith, of Atlanta; Miss Marjorie Dobbs, of Memphis, Tenn., and Miss Nellie V. Werner, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Atlanta Chapter To Honor Mrs. Mell.

The June meeting of the Atlanta chapter D. A. R. honoring Mrs. Thomas C. Mell, state regent of the Georgia Society D. A. R., will be held at Craigie House, 1204 Piedmont avenue, N. E., today at 3 o'clock.

The regent, Mrs. John W. Rice, will preside, and reports will be given by the newly elected officers.

Flag Day will be observed, and an interesting program has been arranged. Mrs. John E. Wells will give a paper on "The Woman Who Took Up Her Needle." Herman Allison will present the musical program.

RehearsalPartiesCompliment Today's Brides and Grooms

Climaxing a series of prenuptial parties given in honor of today's brides-elect and their fiances were the buffet suppers given last evening following the wedding rehearsals.

The hosts were assisted in entertaining by their daughters, Mrs. DeLos Spring, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Miss Sarah Burns.

Another delightful affair was the buffet supper at which Mrs. Cecil Greenwood and her daughter, Miss Peggy Greenwood, were hostesses at their home on Flagler avenue, complimenting Miss Eva Martha Saywell and her fiance, Thomas Green, of LaGrange.

Miss Madeline Provano and Everett Beck Barnes Jr., were honored last evening at the party at which Mr. and Mrs. George S. Barnes were hosts at their home on Columbia drive.

The hosts were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Kitty McCroskey and Mrs. Everett Beck Barnes, Sr.

Mrs. Marcus Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Rosenberg, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Rosenberg and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Haas were hosts at a dinner party at the Ingleside Club, honoring Miss Marie Rice and her fiance, Cecil Marks.

Miss LaVerne Partain and Douglas T. Grey were honored after their wedding rehearsal at a buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Glen S. Stewart were hosts at a private club.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were assisted in entertaining by their daughter, Miss Doris Stewart, and Mesdames J. O. Partain, C. L. Ivey, R. J. Partain, H. G. Waller, of Gainesville; Misses Mary and Jacqueline Partain.

The buffet table was centered with an exquisite arrangement of American Beauty roses in a cut-glass crystal bowl. Crystal candelabra holding burning red tapers completed the decorations.

In addition to members of the wedding party, guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Partain, of Chattanooga; Chester Grey, of East Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones, of Manchester; Brabson Jones, of Murphey, and Mrs. John C. Grey, of Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Parties Compliment Miss Ruth Arrowood.

Miss Ruth Arrowood, whose marriage to Robert W. Smith will be a social event of today, has been feted at prenuptial social affairs. The members of Maple Grove 86, Woodmen circle, honored the bride-elect with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. R. G. Joyner Sr. on Cascade road.

A miscellaneous shower was given by Miss Bessie Arrowood and Mrs. Gordon Arrowood, sisters of the bride-elect, at the home of Mrs. Arrowood on Gaskin street recently for the bride-elect. On Sunday Mrs. Udona Bowers entertained the bridal couple at a dinner party at her home on Lockwood drive. Yesterday Mrs. D. P. Arrowood, mother of the bride-elect, gave a tea at her home.

For Miss Hopper.

Miss Phoebe Jane Hopper, whose marriage to Henley McCoy takes place on June 22, continues to be honored at prenuptial social affairs. On Monday Miss Charline Young, of Paris, Ky., one of Miss Hopper's bridesmaids, will entertain at a spinister dinner at Wisteria Gardens.

Today Mrs. William E. Hopper, mother of the bride-elect, will compliment her daughter's wedding attendants at a luncheon at her home on Lenox road.

Centering the lace-covered table will be a white bowl containing an arrangement of white snapdragons and white gladioli. Flanking either side of the arrangement will be silver candelabra holding burning white tapers.

At this affair Miss Hopper will present her attendants tiny gold heart-shaped lockets containing miniature photgraphs of the bride-elect.

GEORGIA, FULTON COUNTY.
To the Superior Court of said State and County:

The petition of CLARK HOWELL, HUGH H. TROTTI and ROBY ROBINSON respectfully shows:

1. They petition for themselves, their associates, successors and assigns, to be incorporated for a period of thirty-five (35) years, with the privilege of renewal, under the name and style of "THE CONSTITUTION BROADCASTING CO."

2. The principal office of said corporation shall be in Fulton County, Georgia, but petitioners desire the right to maintain offices elsewhere, both within and without the State of Georgia.

3. The amount of the capital with which the corporation will begin business is One Hundred Thousand ($100,000.00) Dollars. The capital stock of the corporation shall be in shares of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars par value, and the minimum capital shall be One Hundred Thousand ($100,000.00) Dollars, and the maximum capital shall be Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand ($250,000.00) Dollars. Petition is made for the right to increase the said capital stock up to any amount within the said maximum by a majority vote of the stockholders of the corporation; and petition is also made to authorize the issuance of preferred stock upon any terms that a majority of the stockholders may approve to any amount within the said limit of capitalization of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand ($250,000.00) Dollars.

4. The purposes for which the corporation is formed and the business or objects to be carried on and promoted by it are as follows:

(a) To carry on and conduct a radio broadcasting business in all its branches; and upon its own behalf or upon the behalf of others, to arrange, present, produce and to broadcast through its own radio station or through other radio stations, or by or through or as a part of a chain of radio stations, programs of entertainment, advertisement, amusement, education, or otherwise, and to make any and all contracts or arrangements and to provide all facilities necessary, useful or advantageous in the conduct of the business of the corporation.

(b) To build, construct, purchase, lease, own, maintain and operate a radio station or radio stations, but only for the broadcasting, rebroadcasting, transmission, distribution and dissemination of entertainment, instruction, music, plays, radio shows, operas, concerts, recitals, exhibitions, lectures, athletic contests and other performances and entertainments, public or private, news, speeches, photographs, pictures, and any other matters or things of interest to radio listeners.

(c) To engage in the field of television in any manner or way whatsoever.

(d) To manage, arrange, prepare, direct, stage, conduct, exhibit or in any manner produce, and to photograph, record and/or broadcast the sound of, plays, operas, concerts, recitals, exhibitions, lectures, athletic contests and other performances and entertainments, either public or private, to purchase, sell, exchange, own, appropriate, hold or in any manner acquire, dispose of, deal or traffic in, plays, operas, scenarios, librettoes, scores, stories and other dramatic, literary, musical or artistic works of whatsoever nature and the rights to the use thereof; and to employ and otherwise contract with, to arrange for the employment by others of, to borrow, and otherwise acquire the use of the services of, playwrights, composers, librettists, dramatists, actors, actresses, singers, musicians, dancers, performers, entertainers, directors, photographers, technicians and all other necessary or suitable artists or persons.

(e) To engage in the creation, production, purchase, broadcast, distribution and sale of radio shows and transcriptions; theatrical productions, records, slides and films upon which voice, music or other sounds of any kind whatsoever are recorded, together with coordinated sound picture records and films from which the recorded sound and pictures can be produced in co-ordination, synchronization or times relation with each other.

(f) To engage in the creation, production, purchase, distribution and sale of radio scripts, and literary works of any and every kind and description whatsoever.

(g) To broadcast, disseminate, distribute, transmit, retransmit, receive or collect by any means whatsoever, news, instructions, entertainment, speeches, photographs, pictures, plays, operas, concerts, recitals, exhibitions, lectures, sermons and the like, in combination or separately; and to provide and furnish for the use of others, transcriptions or any other facilities for any of such purposes.

(h) To engage in a general advertising business in all its branches, whether for itself or as a broker or agent for others; to engage in the demonstration, introduction or sale of goods, wares, merchandise and products of every kind whatsoever, for itself or others.

(i) To manufacture, construct, purchase, sell, lease, install, own, operate, repair, maintain and otherwise deal in and deal with radio broadcasting apparatus, television, transmitting or receiving apparatus, and equipment, sets, accessories, parts, and instruments of all kinds and descriptions, and any and all things used or capable of being used in connection with radio transmission, broadcasting, reception and communication of any kind or description.

(j) To engage in and carry on the business of importing, exporting, manufacturing, producing, buying, selling and otherwise dealing in and with, goods, wares and merchandise of every class and description.

(k) To engage in and carry on any other business which may conveniently be conducted in conjunction with any of the business of the corporation.

(l) To purchase, lease, hire or otherwise acquire, hold, own, develop, improve and in any manner dispose of, and to aid and subscribe toward the acquisition, development or improvement of, real and personal property, and rights and privileges therein, suitable or convenient for any of the business of the corporation.

(m) To purchase, lease, hire or otherwise acquire, hold, own, construct, erect, improve, manage, operate and in any manner dispose of, and to aid and subscribe toward the acquisition, construction or improvement of, plants, mills, factories, works, buildings, machinery, equipment and facilities, and any other property or appliances which may appertain to or be useful in the conduct of any of the business of the corporation.

(n) To acquire all or any part of the good will, rights, property and business of any person, firm, association or corporation heretofore or hereafter engaged in any business similar to any business which the corporation has the power to conduct, and to hold, utilize, enjoy and in any manner dispose of, the whole or any part of the rights, property and business so acquired, and to assume in connection therewith any liabilities of any such person, firm, association or corporation.

(o) To apply for, obtain, purchase or otherwise acquire, any patents, copyrights, licenses, trademarks, trade names, rights, processes, formulas, and the like, which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the corporation; and to use, exercise, develop, grant licenses in respect of, sell and otherwise turn to account, the same.

(p) To acquire by purchase, subscription or in any other manner, take, receive, hold, use, employ, sell, assign, transfer, exchange, pledge, mortgage, lease, dispose of and otherwise deal in and with, any shares of stock, shares, bonds, debentures, notes, mortgages or other obligations, and any certificates, receipts, warrants or other instruments evidencing rights or options to receive, purchase or subscribe for the same or representing any other rights or interests therein or in any property or assets, issued or created by any persons, firms, associations, corporations, syndicates, or by any governments or subdivisions thereof; and to possess and exercise in respect thereof any and all rights, powers and privileges of individual holders.

(q) To purchase or otherwise acquire, and to hold, sell or otherwise dispose of, and to retire and reissue, shares of its own stock of any class in any manner now or hereafter authorized or permitted by law.

(r) To borrow or raise money for any of the purposes of the corporation, and to issue bonds, debentures, notes or other obligations of any nature, and in any manner permitted by law, for moneys so borrowed or in payment for property purchased, or for any other lawful consideration, and to secure the payment thereof and of the interest thereon by mortgage or pledge or conveyance or assignment in trust of the whole or any part of the property of the corporation, real or personal, including contract rights, whether at the time owned or thereafter acquired; and to sell, pledge, discount or otherwise dispose of such bonds, debentures, notes or other obligations of the corporation for its corporate purposes.

(s) To aid in any manner any person, firm, association, corporation or syndicate, any shares of stock, shares, bonds, debentures, notes, mortgages or other obligations of which, or any certificates, receipts, warrants or other instruments evidencing rights or options to receive, purchase or subscribe for the same, or representing any other rights or interests therein, are held by or for this corporation, or in the welfare of which this corporation shall have any interest, and to do any acts or things designed to protect, preserve, improve and enhance the value of any such property or interest, or any other property of this corporation.

(t) To guarantee the payment of dividends upon any shares of stock or shares in, or the performance of any contract by, any other corporation or association in which this corporation has an interest, and to endorse or otherwise guarantee the payment of the principal and interest, or either, of any bonds, debentures, notes or other evidences of indebtedness created or issued by any such other corporation or association.

(u) To carry out all or any part of the foregoing objects as principal, factor, agent, contractor, or otherwise, either alone or through or in conjunction with any person, firm, association or corporation, and, in carrying on its business and for the purpose of attaining or furthering any of its objects and purposes, to make and perform any contracts and to do any acts and things, and to exercise any powers suitable, convenient or proper for the accomplishment of any of the objects and purposes herein enumerated or incidental or the powers herein specified, or which at any time may appear conducive to or expedient for the accomplishment of any of such objects and purposes.

(v) To carry out all or any part of the aforesaid objects and purposes, and to conduct its business in all or any of its branches, in any or all states, territories, districts and possessions of the United States of America and in foreign countries; and to maintain offices and agencies in any or all states, territories, districts and possessions of the United States of America and in foreign countries.

(w) The foregoing objects and purposes shall, except when otherwise expressed, be in no way limited or restricted by reference to, or inference from, the terms of any other clause of this or any other article of this certificate of incorporation or of any amendment thereto, and shall each be regarded as independent, and construed as powers as well as objects and purposes.

(x) The corporation shall be authorized to exercise and enjoy all of the powers, rights and privileges granted to, or conferred upon, corporations of a similar character by the General Laws of the State of Georgia now or hereafter in force, and the enumeration of the foregoing powers shall not be deemed to exclude any powers, rights or privileges so granted or conferred, provided, however, that none of the enumerated powers, rights and privileges contained herein shall be construed to authorize the corporation to engage in radio broadcasting as a public utility.

(y) To secure pecuniary gain to the corporation in the exercise of the said objects.

5. The names and addresses of your petitioners are as follows:

CLARK HOWELL,
Pine Hill,
West Wesley Road,
Atlanta, Georgia.
HUGH H. TROTTI,
230 Wilton Drive,
Decatur, Georgia.
ROBY ROBINSON,
146 Brighton Road, N. W.,
Atlanta, Georgia.

WHEREFORE, petitioners pray that they be incorporated under the name and style aforesaid, and the said corporation be granted all rights, powers, privileges and immunities hereinabove set out or prayed for and all similar rights, powers, privileges and immunities allowed by law.

HOWELL & POST,
Attorney for Petitioners.
1004 Atlanta National Building,
Atlanta, Ga.

ORDER

The above and foregoing petition having been read and considered, and it appearing from the certificate of the Secretary of State, attached thereto, that the name of the proposed corporation is not the name of any other existing corporation registered on the records of the Secretary of State; and it further appearing that the objects and purposes of said petition are proper and are in accordance with law:

It is hereby ordered that the application of said petitioners be granted, and that said corporation be, and it is hereby, incorporated for a period of thirty-five (35) years, with privilege of renewal, under the name and style of "The Constitution Broadcasting Co.," with all the rights, powers, privileges and immunities prayed for or enumerated in said petition, and with all rights, powers, privileges and immunities allowed a corporation by law.

This 12th day of June, 1940.

PAUL S. ETHERIDGE,
Judge Superior Court, Atlanta Circuit.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—Stock market leaders today rebounded 1 to 5 points in the face of the gloomiest European news since the start of the war.

Even the hardest-boiled brokers were surprised at the way speculative forces shook off depressing bulletins having to do with the fall of Paris to the Nazis, the further retreat of the French government to Bordeaux and claims of numerous Allied ship sinking by the Germans.

Principal explanation given in boardrooms was that rapidly brightening prospects of industry due to proposed heavy rearmament spending combined with broadening of purchases from abroad, was more than enough to counteract unsettling happenings elsewhere.

Heyden Chemical was up 6 and Aluminum of America 5 1-2 in the curb. Lesser improvement was posted for American Gas, Jones & Laughlin, E. W. Bliss and Bell Aircraft.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15-16ths inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 14 points higher at 10.68 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 10.04 cents; middling 7/8ths-inch average 10.49 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—An influx of foreign buying orders cancelled early losses in cotton futures today and swept prices to gains of 16 to 19 points.

The market balked at the start when a little pressure from Bombay and Liverpool, plus southern hedging, revealed hesitant buying. Weakness in Liverpool and distressing European news were held accountable for morning caution.

Orders, said to be for French account, abruptly hit the ring and the list swung ahead. The buying was believed to represent covering of hedges on cotton that might have been destroyed in war areas.

Mill buying was stirred by broad-scale demand for textiles. Further optimism was generated by the government consumption report for May indicating use of 636,467 bales against 606,090 a year ago.

Exports Thursday 450 bales; season so far 6,214,599. Port receipts 16,878. Port stocks $2,524,496.

TRADE BUYING, COVERING CAUSE COTTON GAINS

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—(AP) Trade buying and covering, favorable reports from dry goods centers and strength in most other markets bolstered cotton futures here today. Closing prices were steady, 14 to 23 points net higher.

Agriculture Department Buys Pork for Relief

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department announced yesterday additional purchases of 72,556,160 pounds of pork products for relief distribution under a program designed to relieve market surpluses.

Purchases announced today included 22,516,160 pounds of lard, 18,638,000 pounds of salt pork, and 31,402,000 pounds of smoked pork.

The department asked packers and distributors to submit bids for additional purchases next week. The pork products are being bought with funds appropriated for disposal of farm surpluses.

Buyers apparently reasoned that months of wasting of prices had discounted a great deal of bad news so that even the fall of Paris failed to check the buying movement which got under way last Tuesday.

Again at the forefront of the rise were United States government issues. Several Treasuries pushed ahead 1 to 1 5-8 points and the average improvement was more than half a point.

Bonds of speculative rating were helped by the stock market upturn and analysts' estimates of rising industrial returns under the defense program. Foreign loans also gained widely.

Money Market.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—Business in the French franc came to a standstill today as German legions marched through Paris and disrupted financial connections with the United States.

Local foreign money dealers quoted a price of 2.18 U. S. cents for the franc, a nominal figure unchanged from the previous day. The pound sterling, meanwhile, fluctuated uncertainly at slightly lower levels most of the day and ended 2 cents down in relation to the dollar.

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent. Canadian dollar in New York open market 19 per cent discount, or 81.00 U. S. cents. Great Britain, demand unquoted, cables 3.70, 60-day unquoted, 90-day unquoted. Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Nervous holders of world sugar futures liquidated contracts today as they studied European news. Final prices were down 4 to 5 points on sales of 9,200 tons. July closed 1.15b, September 1.14b.

Domestic futures closed unchanged to 2 points down on sales of 5,250 tons. In the raw market 10,000 bags of Puerto Ricans clearing late June were offered at 2.80. A lot of 1,000 tons of Philippines due July 12 was offered at the same price. Buying interest hovered around 2.75 cents. In the refined market 4.50 cents a pound continued the price in eastern territory.

No. 3 range follows:

	High	Low	Close
July	1.82	1.80	1.81b

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP)—Active and normal trading conditions returned to the grain market today in the first session without the minimum price levels which had been in effect since May 20 and wheat and corn values advanced as much as 2 1-2 and 3 5-8 cents respectively.

Strength in securities and prospects of additional government flour buying over the weekend accounted for much of the strength although pit brokers said the market's behavior, despite serious character of news from Europe and removal of the minimums, did much to restore confidence. Buying came largely through houses with milling and eastern connections, they said.

Wheat closed 1 to 1 7-8 cents higher than yesterday; corn unchanged to 2 3-8 higher; oats 3-8 to 1 1-8 lower; soy beans 5 to 8 cents lower and rye 3-4 to 1 1-2 lower. Lard finished 25 to 32 cents higher.

THE MORTAL STORM

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS.

Freya Roth, brilliant young medical student, emerges from the haze of her first year's examinations to find the shadow of Adolf Hitler looming over Germany. Despite the fact that her father, Dr. Johann Roth, world-renowned scientist and Nobel Prize winner, is Jewish and married to a Gentile, German aristocrat, theirs is a happy home. Ever, like her father, Olaf and Emil von Rohn, Amelie Roth's sons by her first marriage, have become Nazis; the former Brown Shirt; Emil, a Storm Trooper. Even 12-year-old Rudi, Freya's younger brother, innocently demands that swastikas be sewn onto his sleeves. Freya's first awareness of the meaning of the Nazi regime arrives when, although she has won a much sought-after scholarship, she is advised by her father against announcing it too soon—for she is a woman, and in the Nazi scheme of things a woman's place is in the kitchen, not in the scientific laboratory. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT VI.

Freya could see nothing but the red-gold stems, stretching in endless corridors ahead, and behind them.

Freya stared at this strange peasant boy who spoke like an educated man. "Who are you," she asked him curiously. "You talk—well—you talk differently from the men of St. Johann!"

The boy's grin came back again, and Freya felt her own eyes dance to meet it.

"I'm a peasant, right enough," he explained; "my father bought a farm on the Wetterstein, where the villagers send us their cows in the summer, but it is true that my father was a wise man; he taught us himself, for up on our Alpe there is no school and no way of reaching one in the winter. We make everything ourselves. Father's dead now, and my brother Karl and I run the farm together."

"But you've read," Freya said accusingly. "You've thought, I can tell; things haven't just happened to you, as they do to most peasants, without sense to them!"

The boy still smiled; but there was a curious dignity in his clear eyes. "The winter is long up there," he said, pointing to the peak of the Wetterstein; "we have time to read and think; but we are simple people. My mother has not been down the mountainside for 20 years. We make everything ourselves, we hardly use money, except to buy ourselves tobacco, or a nail or two. We're Communists too, does that frighten you? We kept Russian prisoners to help us during the war. They wrote to us when it was over; and we liked what we heard of it. Besides, we trusted those Russians, they had been our friends. They told us that in Russia nobody need starve and everyone's got to work. That sounded right enough to us, security and no idleness! Here there's no real test of a man's worth—that's why Hitler gets listened to! Rich people are scared of Communists, they won't think out what the world wants. It's tired of its rich people, who make wars and live on others, but we needn't kill them like the Russians did—that I should never want to do, Fraulein—any more than you wanted to see that hare killed! Still, by persecuting and killing us, they may make us kill them!"

Suddenly Hans paused. "Now we are at the wood's edge," he told her; and as if Hans had thrown open a door, the stems grew brighter, and parted into a space of golden snow. Beyond the shining upward slope, the peak itself stood bare before them.

Warmed and exilarated by the sunny air, they put on their skis, and began a zigzag track up the steep ascent; each in turn leading, to break down the soft weight of the new snow. They moved onwards and upwards in an effortless rhythm, beyond the need of speech. Both had skied from childhood, so that it was an unconscious exercise; while they climbed they never hastened or altered their steady, even pace. Blue crystals shifted and streamed away in the wake of their ski tracks; the empty snow fields sparkled in an unbroken expanse.

There was no sound but the faint hiss and crush of the close-packed snow, shifting under their weight. The cloudless bowl of the sky burned a deep gentian. In the hushed, empty world, where nothing moved but themselves, their bodies grew more consciously alive.

Freya felt eatch steady beat of her heart; the drawing and holding of her breath took on a strange significance; nor was she merely conscious of herself. She began to be equally aware of Hans, his little physical habits sinking into her mind, held the same importance as her own.

Beside Olaf or Emil, Hans would have looked slouched and heavy; he had not their trained compact lightness; but he was without tension. Olaf, for all his suppleness and the dignity of his proud carriage, was tense with his consciousness of himself. Olaf felt responsible for the impression he made upon others. Hans, pursuing his way with vigorous certainty, felt no responsibility beyond losing it. Hans had dealt with emergencies all his life, and took for granted that when they arose, he could deal with them well enough; but the element of style that controlled and haunted Olaf's actions had never dawned upon Hans. Even the slightest failure was an indignity to Olaf; but to Hans failure had no more moral significance than success.

Freya flushed when she found herself comparing Olaf with Hans; for it was the first time she could remember ever comparing Olaf with any other man.

Hans' clothes were worn and patched in places; but they were made of good stuff. His bare hands were as clean as Freya's own; though they were chiseled deep with woodcutting and heavy manual tasks.

When Freya said at last, "Hans, I'm hungry—let's stop here and eat!" it already seemed superfluous to ask him to eat with him. She was unaware of it, but new things had taken place in her, she would never feel condescension again.

Hans trod the snow round them, into firmness, and loosened his Loden cloak from the straps of his rucksack, spread it for Freya to sit on. He dug himself a hole at her feet as if he were accustomed to snow as a cushion. He drew out of his rucksack black bread and goat's cheese, although when he saw that Freya had plenty for two, he shared her finer fare without protest.

When they had satisfied their first eager hunger, Freya said to Hans, a little uncertainly, "I've been thinking what you said about the hare, and the children. I hadn't thought of it like that you know. I just couldn't bear to see it defeated! Can you understand what I mean—that tiny creature alone against such cruel odds? All those brutal men, creeping nearer and nearer with their sticks? And to know that an animal so harmless—so swift—and so alive, was going to have the life beaten out of it. Oh, it was cruel, Hans!"

Hans looked up at Freya with clear, reflective eyes. "And yet for a child to be hungry," he observed, "is as cruel as for a hare to be killed to feed it—at least fathers think so!"

"They might have shot the hare and not tortured it!" Freya pleaded.

Hans laughed. "Ah, but it is expensive to be so merciful," he explained; "peasants cannot buy guns."

"You speak only of the hare," Freya added in a low voice, "not of their brutality to me! If you had not come—they might have ruined my life!"

Hans moved uncomfortably in his snow hollow. "I think that they would not have done you much harm," h told her. "Rough they were—and more rough they might have been. An accident is always hard to bear, and it is worse when one human being sets out deliberately to hurt another. But ruin your life! No, they could not have done that, for it was not within their power! You are a person whom, I think, no one could ruin!"

Freya frowned; she could not quite accept this spiritual compliment at its full value. The insult to her womanhood remained.

"It is not only girls who suffer from violence," Hans went on gently. "Anyone may get broken, by someone who has power over him. All men employed by others have to bend themselves, and accept another man's will; but we need not cry because we are not all Samsons!"

"I am not crying," said Freya rather crossly. Hans said no more, but he helped Freya bury the scraps of their lunch and put away the neat little tins they had been packed in.

Freya watched with amusement his bowed flaxen head, and fair clenched brows, he was wrestling with his thoughts as if they were enemies.

"It is what I wanted to explain to you," he said at last, "for I saw you were frightened when I said I was a Communist. In Russia there is a terrible punishment for a man who interferes with a woman. We do not believe in any inequality of value between human beings. People call Communists 'Reds' as if they were by nature violent; but that is not our ideal—our ideal is only to attack selfishness. It is Nazis who suppress knowledge, degrade women, persecute Jews, and drag their people back into the Middle Ages! But in our modern world there is no real need to fight and bully, for machines can supply more and more riches, enough for all. None need suffer or be deprived of a good life, except by the will of other men, who have unfair advantages. Do you not see that if we learn how to divide and prosper in our own countries we shall soon learn how, by the same method, to divide and prosper all over the world?"

"But," Freya objected, "Communists are not necessary at all; and they have persecuted other classes, and still persecute each other! You may not, but you do not live under their regime! Nor are yours the only high aims! Olaf and Emil, my brothers, have very high ideals! They, too, believe in brotherhood. You do not understand that the Nazis wish to purify and strengthen our whole nation. Their morality is a stern and high morality, my brothers would sacrifice their life for it. This too, is a religion!"

"It is a religion," Hans agreed, "but it is a cruel one! Communists do not say: 'This man has a drop of Jew blood in him—torture—outrage—kill him!'"

Freya stared at Hans as if something ugly and incredible had reached her. It stole out of the sunny day like a dark shadow, to rest upon them both. "A Jew," she repeated slowly, "but, Hans, my father is a Jew! Not by religion, but by race—my grandfather and my grandmother were Jews, and before them for many centuries, Roths were Jews, but Germans, too—always Germans! Hitler (whom my brothers love) could not wish to persecute good German Jews? Only wicked, corrupt Jews, usurers who suck the lifeblood out of simple people. Such men he might well punish. But Jews like my father cannot have anything to fear, that would be impossible! When you think what he has done for the world! Why, my brothers, Olaf and Emil, love my father as if they were his sons!"

"Fraulein," Hans said in a grave voice, with all the sunshine gone from his young face, "where whips and swastikas lead the way it is a fool who does not know what to expect! I can believe that your brothers and many more, seek to obey their Fuhrer for fine and noble reasons, but they will not be allowed to practice their wise and noble aims, if they conflict with the ignoble and cruel aims of the state! Such men will be as eyewash to reassure a public that might become too hostile if all Nazis showed cruelty and baseness. Believe me or not—to vote for this Herr Hitler, with his great voice that shakes the heart, is to bring darkness and horror into the world.

He is no German but a man who gave up his own country from personal pique! He fought with us because he had to fight, and would not fight for Austria; but was he even a great fighter? He rose no higher than a corporal, he won no honors! He disobeyed our laws, and tasted prison for disobedience—is it for this we make him our lawgiver?"

Now that Freya saw Hans without laughter, she was surprised by the strength of his young face. She sat quite still and silent, feeling as if from the great noon hush of the mountains some reassurance might reach her to overcome the fear she felt lie cold at her heart.

How could one believe in cruelty or danger in this warm and golden world? Her father's face rose up before her, his wise benevolent eyes, his great brow behind which so much creative knowledge lurked, ready to be used for the good of all mankind. She thought of their ordered, peaceful home.

The Roths were not rich, but they had always had enough to use reasonably for the benefit of themselves and others. She thought with a sudden queer intensity of God. Their mother was a Catholic, a liberal Catholic; their father an agnostic, who practiced a religion he did not preach.

"I suppose there is a God," Freya said half to herself and half to Hans, "and if there is He must have made us all? His very Son was a Jew! Have we not all the same senses, the same joys, the same terrors? Can we change our skins or our blood? What other can we be, than what we are born?"

"We cannot be any other," Hans agreed gently, "and since we are all brothers we must work together for the good of all."

THE MORTAL STORM

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS.

Freya Roth, brilliant young medical student, emerges from the haze of her first year's examinations to find the shadow of Adolf Hitler looming over Germany. Despite the fact that her father, Dr. Johann Roth, world-renowned scientist and Nobel Prize winner, is Jewish and married to a Gentile, German aristocrat, theirs is a happy home. Ever, like her father, Olaf and Emil von Rohn, Amelie Roth's sons by her first marriage, have become Nazis; the former Brown Shirt: Emil, a Storm Trooper. Even 12-year-old Rudi, Freya's younger brother, innocently demands that swastikas be sewn onto his sleeves. Freya's first awareness of the meaning of the Nazi regime arrives when, although she has won a much sought-after scholarship, she is advised by her father against announcing it too soon—for she is a woman, and in the Nazi scheme of things a woman's place is in the kitchen, not in the scientific laboratory. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT VI.

Freya could see nothing but the red-gold stems, stretching in endless corridors ahead, and behind them.

Freya stared at this strange peasant boy who spoke like an educated man. "Who are you," she asked him curiously. "You talk—well—you talk differently from the men of St. Johann!"

The boy's grin came back again, and Freya felt her own eyes dance to meet it.

"I'm a peasant, right enough," he explained; "my father bought a farm on the Wetterstein, where the villagers send us their cows in the summer, but it is true that my father was a wise man; he taught us himself, for up on our Alpe there is no school and no way of reaching one in the winter. We make everything ourselves. Father's dead now, and my brother Karl and I run the farm together."

"But you've read," Freya said accusingly. "You've thought, I can tell; things haven't just happened to you, as they do to most peasants, without sense to them!"

The boy still smiled; but there was a curious dignity in his clear eyes. "The winter is long up there," he said, pointing to the peak of the Wetterstein; "we have time to read and think; but we are simple people. My mother has not been down the mountainside for 20 years. We make everything ourselves, we hardly use money, except to buy ourselves tobacco, or a nail or two. We're Communists too, does that frighten you? We kept Russian prisoners to help us during the war. They wrote to us when it was over; and we liked what we heard of it. Besides, we trusted those Russians, they had been our friends. They told us that in Russia nobody need starve and everyone's got to work. That sounded right enough to us, security and no idleness! Here there's no real test of a man's worth—that's why Hitler gets listened to! Rich people are scared of Communists, they won't think out what the world wants. It's tired of its rich people, who make wars and live on others, but we needn't kill them like the Russians did—that I should never want to do, Fraulein—any more than you wanted to see that hare killed! Still, by persecuting and killing us, they may make us kill them!"

Suddenly Hans paused. "Now we are at the wood's edge," he told her; and as if Hans had thrown open a door, the stems grew brighter, and parted into a space of golden snow. Beyond the shining upward slope, the peak itself stood bare before them.

Warmed and exilarated by the sunny air, they put on their skis, and began a zigzag track up the steep ascent; each in turn leading, to break down the soft weight of the new snow. They moved onwards and upwards in an effortless rhythm, beyond the need of speech. Both had skied from childhood, so that it was an unconscious exercise; while they climbed they never hastened or altered their steady, even pace. Blue crystals shifted and streamed away in the wake of their ski tracks; the empty snow fields sparkled in an unbroken expanse.

There was no sound but the faint hiss and crush of the close-packed snow, shifting under their weight. The cloudless bowl of the sky burned a deep gentian. In the hushed, empty world, where nothing moved but themselves, their bodies grew more consciously alive.

Freya felt each steady beat of her heart; the drawing and holding of her breath took on a strange significance; nor was she merely conscious of herself. She began to be equally aware of Hans, his little physical habits sinking into her mind, held the same importance as her own.

Beside Olaf or Emil, Hans would have looked slouched and heavy; he had not their trained compact lightness; but he was without tension. Olaf, for all his suppleness and the dignity of his proud carriage, was tense with his consciousness of himself. Olaf felt responsible for the impression he made upon others. Hans, pursuing his way with vigorous certainty, felt no responsibility beyond losing it. Hans had dealt with emergencies all his life, and took for granted that when they arose, he could deal with them well enough; but the element of style that controlled and haunted Olaf's actions had never dawned upon Hans. Even the slightest failure was an indignity to Olaf; but to Hans failure had no more moral significance than success.

Freya flushed when she found herself comparing Olaf with Hans; for it was the first time she could remember ever comparing Olaf with any other man.

Hans' clothes were worn and patched in places; but they were made of good stuff. His bare hands were as clean as Freya's own; though they were chiseled deep with woodcutting and heavy manual tasks.

When Freya said at last, "Hans, I'm hungry—let's stop here and eat!" it already seemed superfluous to ask him to eat with him. She was unaware of it, but new things had taken place in her, she would never feel condescension again.

Hans trod the snow round them, into firmness, and loosened his Loden cloak from the straps of his rucksack, spread it for Freya to sit on. He dug himself a hole at her feet as if he were accustomed to snow as a cushion. He drew out of his rucksack black bread and goat's cheese, although when he saw that Freya had plenty for two, he shared her finer fare without protest.

When they had satisfied their first eager hunger, Freya said to Hans, a little uncertainly, "I've been thinking what you said about the hare, and the children. I hadn't thought of it like that you know. I just couldn't bear to see it defeated! Can you understand what I mean—that tiny creature alone against such cruel odds? All those brutal men, creeping nearer and nearer with their sticks? And to know that an animal so harmless—so swift—and so alive, was going to have the life beaten out of it. Oh, it was cruel, Hans!"

Hans looked up at Freya with clear, reflective eyes. "And yet for a child to be hungry," he observed, "is as cruel as for a hare to be killed to feed it—at least fathers think so!"

"They might have shot the hare and not tortured it!" Freya pleaded.

"You speak only of the hare," Freya added in a low voice, "not of their brutality to me! If you had not come—they might have ruined my life!"

Hans moved uncomfortably in his snow hollow. "I think that they would not have done you much harm," h told her. "Rough they were—and more rough they might have been. An accident is always hard to bear, and it is worse when one human being sets out deliberately to hurt another. But ruin your life! No, they could not have done that, for it was not within their power! You are a person whom, I think, no one could ruin!"

Freya frowned; she could not quite accept this spiritual compliment at its full value. The insult to her womanhood remained.

"It is not only girls who suffer from violence," Hans went on gently. "Anyone may get broken, by someone who has power over him. All men employed by others have to bend themselves, and accept another man's will; but we need not cry because we are not all Samsons!"

"I am not crying," said Freya rather crossly. Hans said no more, but he helped Freya bury the scraps of their lunch and put away the neat little tins they had been packed in.

Freya watched with amusement his bowed flaxen head, and fair clenched brows, he was wrestling with his thoughts as if they were enemies.

Now that Freya saw Hans without laughter, she was surprised by the strength of his young face. She sat quite still and silent, feeling as if from the great noon hush of the mountains some reassurance might reach her to overcome the fear she felt lie cold at her heart.

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Previous to 5:46 a. m. suggests caution and moderation in all things. Between 5:46 a. m. and 9:49 p. m. is most favorable for contacting influential people, dealings with women, social matters, financial interests. After 9:49 p. m. guard against a depressed feeling—mentally or physically.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The combined influences for the day tend towards quick flareups, peevishness and irritation. There will be a danger of overestimating finances and overdoing gayety.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Through the morning hours and until 2:40 p. m. any moves, decisions or plans that are put into effect may be very disappointing. Everything possible should be done to settle questions, compromise differences, and smooth difficulties in your relationships with others.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Previous to 12:07 noon, you can accomplish your desires with unexpected ease. The entire day is favorable for general business, financial transactions, educational and literary matters, but is not auspicious for assuming new and heavy obligations.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Before 12:37 p. m. will be the time to do those things you want to dispose of quickly. Action and plenty of it can be obtained now. After 5:12 p. m. practical works and affairs requiring tact can proceed with much gusto.

August 22nd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Give more attention than usual to details during the entire day, for it will be easy to overlook opportunities. Strict care should be taken of any promises given. Do not push your credit too far.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Late gatherings last night, which extend into the early morning hours today may prove disappointing where friendships are concerned. Between 6:27 a. m. and 10:26 p. m. favors attention to unusual pursuits, getting work done quickly, artistic ideas. After 10:26 a. m. sudden changes should be avoided.

October 23rd and November 20th (SCORPIO)—After 10:26 a. m. sudden changes should be avoided. People may be too independent, or feel rebellious with existing conditions, but this is not the time to do anything about it.

November 21st and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 11:50 a. m. your feelings may run to extremes—feelings of depression followed by high hopes, which are not well founded. This is not an auspicious time to begin worthwhile endeavors and those things that you hope to materialize in a big way late.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN) — Today your mind will be more alert, orderly and systematic, and this is a favorable period for travel, communications, making agreements, dealings with close relatives, and seeking favors.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Vibrations permeate the entire day that tend to agitate the mind and disturb the health.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The entire day is most favorable for constructing, planning and for putting into effect any new plans upon which you have been working, as you are likely to find people willing to listen to your ideas, and older people will be favorably inclined towards you.

WGST

Will INTERRUPT All Programs to Broadcast Important News Flashes

NEWS FLASHES of all important happenings—from all over the world—will come to you first over WGST. This is assured because we have at our disposal the combined news gathering facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System's entire staff of domestic and foreign correspondents and their strategically located short-wave stations . . . The Atlanta Constitution's three globe-circling news services as well as their entire reporting staff . . . In addition to these we have Transradio News Service machines located right in our own studios . . . This array of unsurpassed facilities means the quickest, most accurate and complete radio news service that any station can possibly give.

These facilities will be utilized fully. In addition to giving our listeners more than 15 regularly scheduled newscasts each day, we will interrupt any program regardless of its nature to broadcast important news bulletins.

Take advantage of this greater newscasting service. Keep your dial tuned to WGST (890 kc.) at all times!

Child Becomes Atlanta's 19th Traffic Fatality

Six-year-old Alice Lee Gorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gorman, of 1288 Lucile avenue, S. W., yesterday became Atlanta's 19th traffic fatality of the year. She was killed instantly when struck by a truck in front of her home, police reported.

The truck was driven by Edward M. Atwood, 21, of 517 Lawton street. A technical charge of reckless driving—having an accident—was placed against the youth, and he was released on his own recognizance.

Witnesses, according to police, said the child ran into the path of the auto as she attempted to cross the street to visit a playmate. The mother was not at home at the time of the accident.

Rushed to the West Side hospital, the little girl was dead on arrival and the body was removed to the J. Allen Couch Funeral Home.

Besides her parents, the child is survived by four sisters, Ruth, Margaret, Frances and Bernice, and two brothers, Howard Jr. and John.

The girl's death was the first traffic fatality here since May 13, police reported. Last year, from January 1 to June 14, there also were 19 traffic fatalities within city limits.

Prompt Action Demanded in Bridges' Case

Immediate Senate Approval of Deportation Resolution Asked.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Immediate senate action on a resolution for the deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast CIO maritime leader, was demanded today by Senator Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, in view of house passage by a 330-to-42 vote.

The Harry Bridges defense committee served notice at San Francisco that it would call for a nation-wide protest against the house for approving the legislation directing the attorney general to send Bridges, an alien, back to his native Australia at once.

Undeterred, Reynolds told reporters that "if the immigration committee doesn't act on that bill within five days, I will ask the senate to discharge it and bring the legislation to the floor."

"That man ought to be deported because he is opposed to our form of government," Reynolds added.

During house debate yesterday a long letter from Bridges was read by Representative Marcantonio, Affiliated Labor, New York. In it Bridges asserted: "I am very familiar with American institutions, civil liberties and American democracy and I appreciate and support them."

at the CITY HALL

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday was setting his private sails towards increased demands for manganese, used extensively in tempering steel. He quit the executive offices until Monday to inspect his manganese and talc mines in north Georgia and Mayor Pro Tem. Frank H. Reynolds was occupying the executive chair.

Tommy Sutherland, 2-year-old son of Carl T. Sutherland, city personnel director, breezed into the personnel office at the city hall yesterday and took over. He was accompanied by his mother. Young Sutherland set the pace for activity during his short visit.

Captain Jack Malcom yesterday was on vacation and M. L. Thomas, traffic engineer, presented all traffic measures to council's police committee during the absence of Malcom, who heads the traffic bureau.

Illinois G. O. P. Blocks Delegation for Dewey

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 14.—(AP)—The Illinois Republican convention sidetracked an effort today to pledge the state's 58 delegates to Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, and adopted a platform declaring:

"The Republican party stands for Americanism and peace. The Democratic party stands for internationalism and war."

REGISTRATION GAINS.

ATHENS, Ga., June 14.—(AP)—An increase in first-term summer school registration at the University of Georgia was recorded today, a total of 1,487 students having enrolled during the first two days of the session. This is an increase of 50 students over the same time last year.

LIGHTNING KILLS MULE.

CARROLLTON, Ga., June 14.—A bolt of lightning shot into the barn of Ray Bonner at Center Point, killing one mule but damaged none of the other livestock nor the building.

Whether you have a few suitcases or many items of furniture to be moved, you can find somebody for the job by turning to Classification 84, "Moving and Storage."

Griffith Acquires Control In Eatonton Messenger

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

EATONTON, Ga., June 14.—The sale of his interest in the Eatonton Messenger to Louis T. Griffith was announced today by Frank Dennis. Thus acquiring the controlling interest in the paper, Mr. Griffith will assume the editorship July 1.

Tom A. Gregory Jr., present editor and part owner, will retain his interest in the paper, but will be inactive in its management. He recently was elected county school superintendent.

"OVER THE TOP."

CEDARTOWN, Ga., June 14.—Cedartown's war relief drive went well over the top of its first quota of $600 this week as Chairman M. M. Cornelius reported more than $800 had been raised through public subscription and a benefit ball game and theater production. Plans are under way for a continuation of the drive in an effort to raise a second $600 quota.

Plans Made To Market Cotton Picker Widely

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 14.—(AP) Plans to launch their mechanical cotton picker on the open market this summer on such a gigantic scale as to "possibly" displace the ancient system of hand picking within a short while were announced by the Rust brothers, John and Mack.

The machine has undergone several "improvements," John Rust said, and because of war conditions "this displacement" of hand labor "will come to pass soon."

THE CONSTITUTION CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING Information

CLOSING HOURS

Daily Want Ads are accepted up to 8 p. m. for publication the next day. Closing hour for the Sunday edition is 7 p. m. Saturday.

LOCAL CLASSIFIED RATES

1 time, per line 29 cents
3 times, per line 22 cents
7 times, per line 20 cents
30 times, per line 16 cents

10% Discount for Cash

Minimum: 2 lines (11 words).

Ads ordered for three or seven days and stopped before expiration will only be charged for the number of times the ad appeared and adjustments made at the rate earned.

Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Constitution will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

All Want Ads are restricted to their proper classification and The Constitution reserves the right to revise or reject any advertisement.

Ads ordered by telephone are accepted from persons listed in the telephone or city directories on memorandum charge only. In return for this courtesy the advertiser is expected to remit promptly.

"TO CUT A LONG TALE SHORT"

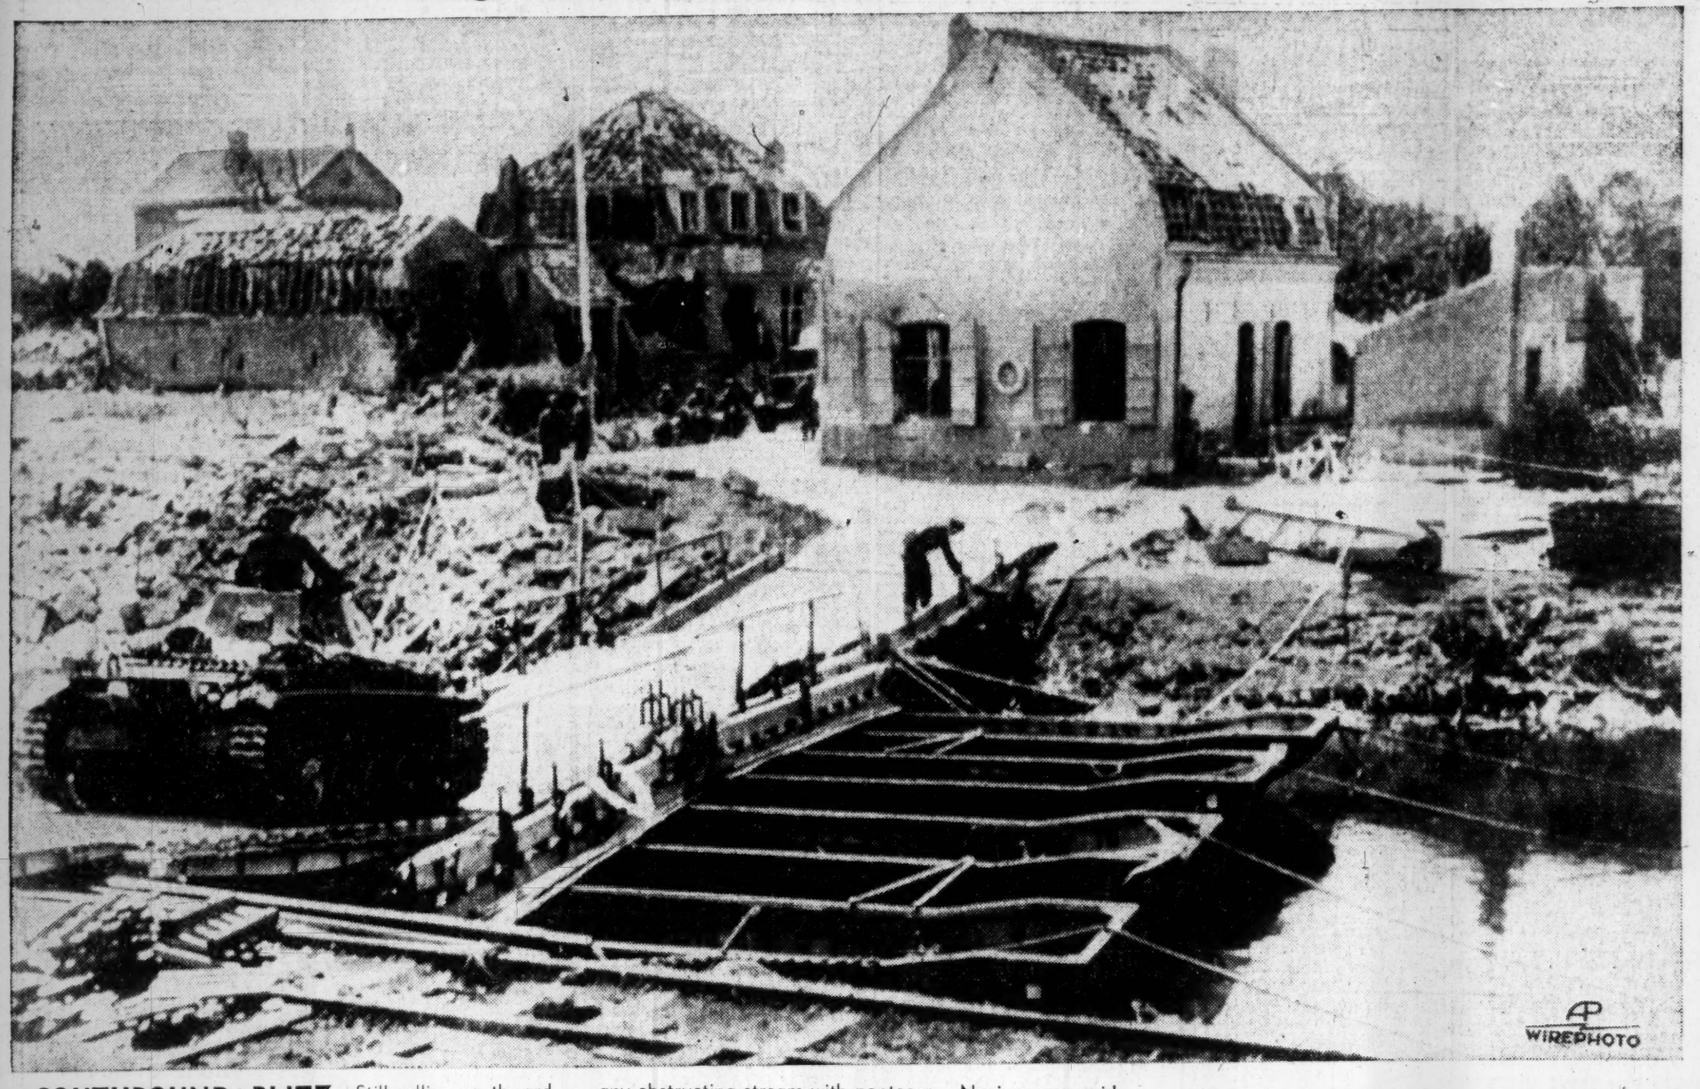

An acquaintance of ours recently consulted the family doctor about a cure for snoring. The "Doc" asked him whether it disturbed his wife. "Not only my wife but the whole congregation" was his reply. This is the age when people are are "doing things," and every woman should know how to drive a car. One of the cars below would be just the thing while she was learning.

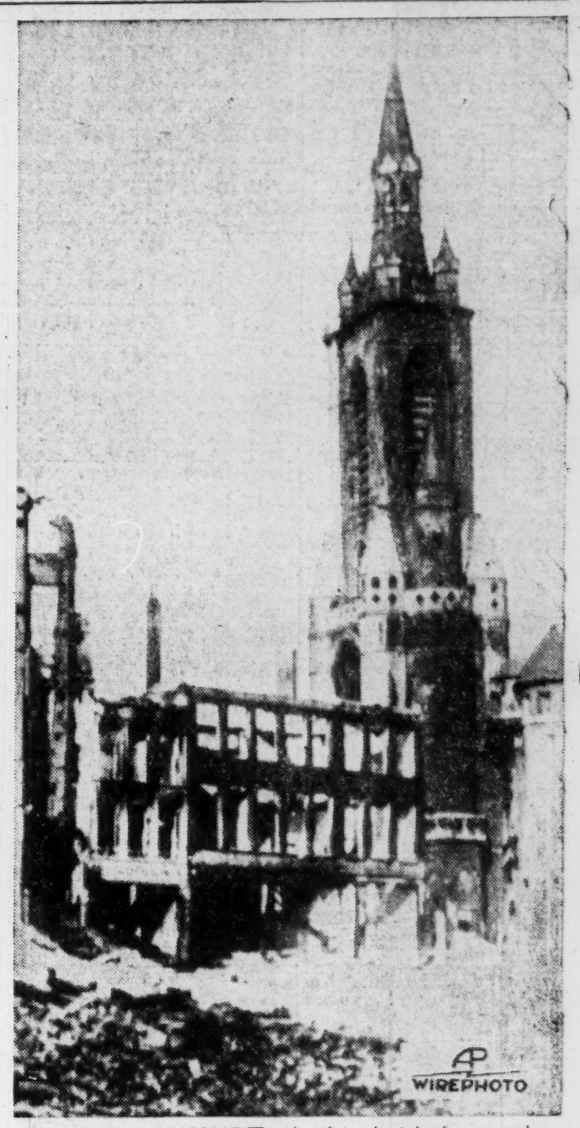

EITHER OF THESE WOULD DO:

Hitler's Thundering Mechanized Horde Recognizes No Obstacle

SOUTHBOUND BLITZ Still rolling southward through France, Nazi mechanized troops are only momentarily delayed by waterways. Swift-moving engineers clear the way and bridge any obstructing stream with pontoons. Nazi sources said this picture showed a German tank crossing a makeshift bridge across the "Canal de Aire." Aire is a town south of Dunkerque, in northern France on the River Lys.

CHURCH UNHURT As if in denial of reported ravages, Berlin offered this picture of a church in war-torn Tournai, Belgium, standing gaunt but apparently intact amid the ruins of modern war.

FLANDERS REVENGE British bombers will not forget Dunkerque. They paid a return call to bomb Nazi oil supplies. The plume of black smoke, they claim, is rising from an oil tank.

ARMENTIERES AFLAME The French town most famed in song during the World War shared the brunt of the Nazi thrust. This building was fired by a German bomb.

AMERICA'S PART The skies were darkened by smoke after British R. A. F. fliers bombed and fired German-seized oil tanks in now historic Dunkerque. The plane at right, the British say, is an American-built Lockheed-Hudson bomber, on patrol over the channel area, scene of the Flanders retreat.

'ALL'S WELL' It's hotter work than under the kleigs, but Robert Montgomery, now a volunteer ambulance driver, takes it with a grin. Bet's that ace dramatic actor from out Hollywood way.
